The tournament at Farmer's Store, in the Fork, on Saturday, the 21st ultimo, was a pleasant occasion, and was attended by a arge crowd. Twelve knights participated in the tournament, which resulted in favor of the following: 1st, John G. Cox; 2nd, Charles Stewart; 3rd, W. P. Snelgrove; 4th, R. G. Todd. Mr. Cox received a purse of 6, while the others crowned respectively the following ladies that night at the ball: Queen of Love and Beauty, Miss Ada Brownlee; 1st Maid of Honor, Miss Annie Kilgore; 2d Maid of Honor, Miss Emma Snelgrove. The ball was largely attended and much enjoyed by all present. The difficulty in deciding the question as

o what is the dark of the moon, propounded by our Honea Path correspondent arises probably from using the expression with reference to two different ideas. If the term is used in its primary meaning to signify the time when the moon is dark to the earth, then it is that period of the lunar month when the moon cannot be seen at any hour of the night; but if used in the sense in which it is frequently employed, in an inaccurate way, to signify the dethe Anderson National Bank nearly one crease of the moon, then it is that period which follows the full moon, and lasts to

The regular meeting of the Executive Committee of Pomona Grange was held in Watson's store on last Monday at the usual ime. No special business matter came before it. Several questions of general inerest were considered and discussed, without arriving at any particular conclusion. The guano question came in for its part of attention, but which, owing to the late day on which the propositions were submitted, was necessarily postponed for the present The Executive Committee are strongly inclined to the opinion that if farmers would direct their thoughts more earnestly to the consideration of the indispensable constituents of profitable fertilizers, by selecting the most desirable chemicals and purchasing them in bulk at wholesale rates, and manipulating or composting them on the farm, at least one-third of the expense would be saved to the farmer, and a much better and more reliable fertilizer secured for application to crops. This much successfully effected would enable the farmer to use one-third more of guano without additional cost.

MR. EDITOR: Will you allow us a little pace in your columns to make mention of a very pleasing, delightful and gratifying occasion which took place on last Friday evening at Leeland Academy, which is in the charge of Mr. W. H. Frierson, who is a young man of charming modesty and manners, and of promising usefulness to the educational interest of the youth of our community. He is managing his school upon the improved and advanced method of imparting instruction. We endorse him as a scholar, efficient teacher and Christian gentleman, and we never speak thus of any one unless it is based upon true merit. But, nowever, we were highly pleased with the occasion-first, because it was unexpected and untalked of; secondly, because it was gotten up in such good style and refined taste; thirdly, because it was gotten up especially to contribute to the enjoyment and encouragement of the children: fourthly, because the programme proved a success: and, lastly, we were laughing all the time because everybody else was laughing and vieing with each other in contributing to the merriment of the pound party. At an early hour we arrived at the Academy, accompanied by some of the lively, cheerful faces and voices, where we found every preparation necessary to make the occasion entertaining and attractive and complete. Indeed, we were surprised. We were not looking for such a big thing. But when we saw around the long table erected in the yard the committee of arrangements, consisting of Mrs. Dr. D. S. Watson, Mrs. John A. Reeves, Mrs. M. A. Snipes, Mrs. John Hall, Mrs. P. A. Masters and Mrs. Williams, receiving and arranging those pounds, our astonishment was easily accounted for Everything was arranged in such a way as to impress the minds of the children that it was intended especially for them. At 7.30 o'clock the school was collected in the Aecdemy, together with a few guests, consisting of young ladies and gentlemen, by Mr. Frierson, who announced the pound supper ready, and that as it was leap year the little girls and young ladies would select their partners and gallant them to the table in the yard, where they would be waited on by the committee, and the instructions were carried out with precision and much grace. The crowd formed a large circle around the table, which was well pounded and brightly illuminated One must stretch his imagination to realize the beauty and charms of such a festivity. Everything during the eating was orderly and mannerly conducted. It had to be so, for every pupil was under the influence and control of the much-beloved teacher.

Immediately after eating they returned into the house, where their happy spirits were elevated to the brightest glee of mirth. But there was no dancing-"not a bit of it." In fact, some of the little lovely ones asked us to assist in keeping it down. But just at this time, when all was noise and laughter, Mr. P. A. Masters and his two sons, Joe and Reuben, and Mr. J. H. Masters. filled the region around with instrumental music, such as many of the little ones never heard before. It was the first time true element. We had this thought: that Academy, and will never forget the happy moments of that evening. We hailed and welcomed it as a favorable omen of the future success of the school. We participated in it as a demonstration of confidence and appreciation of the teacher, as well as to encourage the children and to give variety to their monotonous school days. At 10 o'clock we adjourned by order of the BELTON, S. C., Feb. 23, 1880. MR. EDITOR: I desire to give through your MR. EDITOR: I desire to give through your paper the following reasons why I think we should all vote a tax on the Atlantic and French Broad Valley Railroad, formerly known as the Belton, Williamston and Easley Railroad.

1. Every railroad which has ever been built across the Blue Ridge running into the state of the Ministering and the state of the state the great valley of the Mississippi, as this does, is a paying road with a premium on its stock. I believe the least premium is 50 per cent, on its stock, that is one dollar is worth one dollar and fifty cents, so that likely we will not lose our taxes, as each axpayer according to our charter is a stockholder in the road to the amount he pays, and I feel sure that after the road is built there will be a premium on its

2. The competition caused by building this road will reduce the freights on our corn, cotton, bacon, flour, guano, etc., I think, enough to doubly pay the small tax. We are not asked to vote every year, and this reduction will last through all time, but our tax can not be for more than four years, as the law is plain on that as language can make it. 3. I feel quite sure that by building this road all our real estate will be raised in value in five years more than the amount of the tax we pay.

4. All the school taxes resulting from this 25c: road are bound to be kept in the township through which it runs and applied to the free schools, which, I hope, will enable us to run our free schools for ten months in the year. Certainly this is a very important item to all the poor children in our townships, and this tax will last to educate future generations.

5. By building the road we will greatly increase the property of our County and reduce the taxes, as the more property we have the less per cent, it will take to pay the expense of keeping up our bridges, poor house and other necessary expenses. This reduction will be for all future time.

For these and many other reasons, I do think it is to the interest of every man to vote for this little tax and secure the road. I feel quite sure that in ten years no one will regret that he voted for this tax, as every man will feel proud that he helped to velocipede with a saw. It is a riding-rear-back-and-come-again cross-cut saw with a velocipede saddle on it.....Miss Norris, of Savannah Township, is visiting friends at | Respectfully, W. C. Brown, 10c, Total, $100.55.

It is always sad to record a death, and the sadness is increased when the good, the young, the strong die, just when a new ca-reer of usefulness in the Church, and of reer of usefulness in the Church, and of comfort and helpfulness amid their homes and loved ones seems opening before them. The tender sympathy of the whole Church will go out to the Rev. Dr. John B. Adger and family, at the news of the death of his only son, John B. Adger, who died January 3, from wounds received by being thrown from his buggy a few weeks ago. Both his legs were broken by the fall; and though hopes of his recovery were entertained at first, unfavorable symptoms soon appeared, and the skill of physicians and the tender watchful care of friends could not save him. The time to depart had come, for the Lord had called him to himself. had called him to himself.

had called him to himself.

During the period between his hurt and his death—days of physical suffering to himself, and of hope and fear, suspense and agony to his friends—he was calm and patient, saying, after asking his physician if there was any hope of life: "If I am to die, I am ready to go." He was ready, because his trust was in that Saviour who said, "Be we therefore ready." It was natural for him his trust was in that Saviour who said, "Be ye therefore ready." It was natural for him to be ready to meet Jesus in death, for his life had been with him.

Mr. Adger was not only known as the son of Rev. Dr. Adger, whom we all honor, but was personally known and esteemed, especially in Mississippi and South Carolina.

After a thorough training at the University of Virging he went through a course of

After a thorough training at the University of Virginia, he went through a course of scientific study in Germany; and on returning to this country he was made Professor of Chemistry in the University of Mississippi, filling the position faithfully and ably. Close application to professional duties injured his eyes, and he was compelled to resign his position, and ultimately abandon the cherished hope and noble ambition of his life. His eyes nover recovered from the his life. His eyes never recovered from the injuries they received, and his desire to be useful to his fellow-men, and serve his Master as a Christian teacher of seience— 'an interpreter and priest of Nature''—ex counding God's thoughts in his works, and pounding God's thoughts in his works, and showing men how to apply these thoughts to life's uses for the welfare of society—this noble desire he had to surrender.

All this disappointment could not but be a sorrow to him—a sorrow shared by his family and friends. But when in spite of all these severe dealings, he could still trust the Heavenly Father who directed and overruled them; when his life, in spite of its disappointment, remained that of a son, that life was no failure.

This grief falls with increased weight just now upon the bereaved father; for since the recent financial disaster in the family this only living son was a special prop and com-

now upon the bereaved father; for since the recent financial disaster in the family this only living son was a special prop and comfort to his parents. But there is another circumstance which makes the sorrow for this death peculiarly pathetic. A short time before the accident which caused his death, Mr. Adger was elected elder of the church at Pendleton, S. C., of which his father is pastor, and on the Sabbath subsequent to the accident he was to have been ordained; but, as Dr. Adger wrote to Charleston, "The ordination will have to be postponed."

Yes: "postponed," for "God had ordained him unto eternal life," and called him to "the general assembly and church of the first born in heaven." It is a comforting thought to all the bereaved family, that the

He serves among the people of ancient Smyrna, where he himself (as we understand) was born thirty-one years ago, when his father was missionary there. He can compare experiences with those Smyrna Christians, for like them he was "tried" and had "tribulation;" like them, he was "not hurt of the second death." He is now made "king and priest unto God." For, being "faithful unto death, he hath a crown of life." He is assigned a position in the the Upper University.
