CONTRASTS.

"It is unnecessary to say that wherever the sacred foot of wealth trod on this ship all was gold and silver, shining brass, cleanliness, comfort and decency. We had come on board, however, to see the emigrants, and we were determined to see their quarters first. When we saw the quarters of the single men descriptions of slave ships flashed across me. Below this place our guide showed us a deep hole, saying, I could not take you down there; it is much worse than what you see.' But my business was with the women's quarters and we went there. Between two decks better lighted than the men's quarters was a larger space open from one side of the ship to the

THE WOMEN'S QUARTERS.

"From either side of a long central walk to the outer walks of the ship were slung two enormous hammocks-one suspended about three feet from the floor. What was going on in two other ham-mocks above these I could not see, but I presume they were the same as those below. I suppose each of those hammocks carry about one hundred persons. They were made of sailcloth, and being suspended all around from hooks were perfectly flat. Narrow strips of sailcloth divide this great bed into berths. These strips of cloth, when the mattresses were out, formed divisions about eight inches high. When the mattresses are in it must be almost on a level. HERDED LIKE BEASTS.

"Now, in these beds lie hundreds of men and women. Any man who comes with a woman who is or calls herself his wife sleeps, as a matter of right, in the mid-t of hundreds of young women who are compelled to live in his presence day and night. If they remove their clothes they must do so under his eyes. If they lie down to rest it must be beside him. It is a shame even to speak of these things, but to destroy such an evil it is necessary to look at these abodes of misery. In daylight, and when open for finspection, they are empty, swept and SCENE AT NIGHT. "But think of the scene in the darkness of the night, the ship pitching in mid-ocean, when a gimmerir imp or two makes visible to you the nass of moaning humanity. Look at that young mother with two or three helpless babies in the agonies of wea-sickness, unable to move but over the prostrate bodies of her fellow sufferers. Look at this innocent girl child lying among dissolute men and abandoned women, half suffocation and sea-sickness, amid curses and groans of hundreds. If she arises and flees to save her soul, whither shall she go? Again she must tread on the writhing bodies of men and women. A LIVING HORROR.

"But the picture is too horrible to be looked at, the sounds too dreadful to listen to. This is no brutal or impure dream, it is truth. It is a living borror, menacing the lives, honor and souls of hundreds and thousands of our fellow women, the ship on these things being supposed to carry in this manner 1,000 steerage passengers. She carried last year on one voyage 1775 emigrants. I was grieved to see the American flag floating over a whited sepulchre like that beautiful boat, haunted by the memories of sin, full of ravening wickedness and all manner of bick and quietly remained there until the Strange Sensations.

Conductor A. S. Parker, of the Grand Trunk Railroad, who resides in Battle Creek, Mich., by an accident lost a leg and arm at Stillwell Station. The members severed from the body were left; lying by the side of the track, while the body was immediately conveyed to South Bend for medical assistance. As soon as he recovered consciousness he began to complain that his right arm was in a cramped condition. His attendant, knowing his arm was many miles away by the side of the railroad track, paid no attention to his complaints, thinking him out of his head. He still continued his assertions that the fingers of his right arm were doubled under his hand, and asked his assistants to send and get his arm at Stillwell. By his speech they saw that he realized the accident, and a telegram was sent to Stillwell to send the mutilated arm to its owner. The request was carried out, and the arm sent to him by express. So soon as it was taken up off the ground, a few moments after the telegram was sent, Parker remarked to his assistants that his arm was all right now, that they had picked it up. Every time a person took hold of ng the route Parker would speak of it, and cry out with pain when it was roughly handled; and whenever any of his attendants touched it while it lay in the next room to him he knew it as quickly as though the arm were still at- difficulty with the negro, who worked tached to his body. The messenger who got the arm said that he found it just as Parker had said it was, with the fingers cramped under it. This boy in the field and whipped him unmeris one of the most singular yet well authenticated cases on record, where a man could feel an arm which was cut off and lay many miles from him, and which had n cut off many hours. The physicians are baffled to account for it, and can only class it under the head of the unexplainable phenomenal mysteries which are met with in the study of nature.

A Coiorado Spider Story.

A short distance from Buena Vista, says the Leadville (Co.) Chronicle, is a cave inhabited by spiders which differ from other spiders in their enormous size and are quite useful to the needy people of that region. The cave was discovered last December by a party of sight-seers, and the spiders and their work were witnessed. On entering the cave one is first struck by the funny looking webs. They are worked like in that State, foreclosed it at the time webs of other spiders, but every fibre is allowed by the contract. The lower court ten times as large as the ones woven by allowed the debt against the farmer, alordinary spiders. On passing further into the cave the spiders are encountered, They are about the size of small birds at least double the cash rates. The farmand make a strange noise while weaving their web. The webs are so tough and the fibre so large that it is almost an impossibility to break down a web. Some four weeks ago while looking at the cave a miner got to examining the webs. Their strans were about the size of a number 12 thread, and he thought that they could be used for thread. Having a needle in his possession he broke off one of the strands and found that it fitted the needle. Sewing a loose button to test the efficacy he found it as strong as silk thread, and that it answered his purpose. Since then the people have flocked in and carried away hosts of the webs, but the spiders do not appear to object in the least. There is some talk among capitalists of starting a thread there and using the webs for

Generous and liberal in everything else, he could not brook personal reflection, and the sting rankled in his mind. For two years, wherever the two operators have been in communication, the words have seemed curter, the letters cut shorter, until the unfeeling instruments themselves have seemed to espouse the quarrel. Last Saturday they broke out into angry bickering, hot words were exchanged for hot words, faster and more furious grew the war, the click-click of the instruments was deafening, when, suddenly, it reached a climax, the deadly insult was given and received, and the instruments resumed their ordinary slow and business-like

This was all. The Charlotte operator closed the instrument, obtained leave of absence, got into his coat and boarded the morning, the moon shining bright, Gastonia, and the other train in sight. A few minutes interval and the antagonists confronted each other. The Charlotte man weighs about 130 pounds. The Greenville man 170. The latter had two friends with him evidently to insure fair play. PERRY, HOUSTON Co., GA., Jan. 28, 1880. PERRY, HOUSTON Co., GA., Jan. 28, 1880.

In the year 1873, there were two negro prisoners confined in the jail of this county, who were very badly afflicted with that loathsome disease Syphilis. In my official capacity as Ordinary, I employed Capt. C. T. Swift, then a resident of this place, to cure them, under a contract, "no cure, no pay." He administered to them his celebrated Syphilitic Specific, and in a few weeks I felt bound, under my contract, to pay him out of the county treasury, as he had effected a complete and radical cure.

In testimony i hereunto set my official signature and seal.
