She and all her kin were ardent Confed-erates. She was a quiet and retiring lady who would as soon be suspected of the performance I have described as she would be of having inherited the warlike qualities of Joan of Arc. No more cruel story was ever told on a woman. A boy named Leady, who claimed he had been ill-treated by Morgan, carried the information from Greenville to Bull's Gap. He was theretofore instigated by alry regiments and a battery especially to look after Morgan. Gillem went up to Bull's Gap and camped. After lying there inactive for nearly a month he re-ceived word from scouts and citizens that Morgan's force had moved from the east life and I saw his dead body. Hundreds of others saw it who were intimate with him in life. His wife, who was a Miss Ready, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., was a beautiful and accomplished woman and they were very happily mated. Mrs. Morgan, several years ago, married Judge Williamson, of Tennessee. She saw her former husband's remains and mourned Morgan's force had moved from the east and occupied Greenville and the sur-rounding country. Greenville is seven-ty-five miles east of Knoxville and twen-ty miles east of Bull's gap. Gillem got notice of the advancing of the enemy on the evening of September 3. He moved the Thirteenth Tennessee Cavalry in ad-vance accomp⁻¹ed by Major Sewell's Battalion of the Tenth Michigan cavalry at 11 o'clock that night. This party was commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Wil-liam H. Ingerton. The night was as at his funeral. His body was sent to her, being passed through the lines under a flag of truce.—By J. E. A Thorough Job.

Judge — , a well-known jurist liv-ing near Cincinnati, was fond of relating this anecdote. He had once occasion to send to the viliage for a carpenter, and a sturdy young fellow appeared with his, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Wil-liam H. Ingerton. The night was as dark as a wolf's and a tergic series of storms of rain, thunder and lightning raged from early in the evening until after daylight on the 4th. When the ad-vance command had reached a point about two or three miles west of Green-ville they were ordered to halt by a cou-rier sent forward by the General until Gillem came up with the main force. He arrived at 2 o'clock in the morning. About the time the brigade was con-centrated a woman from Greenville drip-ping with rain and en horseback was "I want this fence mended to keep the cattle. There are some unplaned boards—use them. It is out of sight from the house, so you need not take time to make it a neat job. I will only pay you a dollar and a half. ping with rain and en horseback was

In re-ality she was an adventuress, and ex-vaa dollar and a half. The Judge went to dinner, and, coming out, found the man carefully planing each board. Supposing that he was try-ing to make a costly job of it he ordered him to nail them on at once just as they were, and continued his walk. When he riety actress, anxious to cause a sensation, get herself talked about among the offireturned the boards were planed and cers of the armies and mentioned in re-ports and newspapers. This woman cor-rectly told Gillem the situation at Greennumbered ready for nailing. "I told you that this fence was to be

"I do," said the carpenter, gruffly, carefully reasuring his work. When it was finished there was no part of the fence so thorough in finish. "Now much do you charge?" asked the Wilcox, when within three fourths of a mile of the village got a glympse of the Confed-erate reserve picket in the road. He proposed to Roberts to make a dash into the town with a view of surrounding the house where Morgan was in bed, cap-turing him and staff and trust to luck to get out. Roberts was ready for any en-terprise and closed engerly with his su-perior's daring proposition. "But I should have known it was there. No; I'll take only the dollar and a half." And he took it and went away. Tea years afterward, the Judge had the contract to give for the building of certain magnificent public buildings. MORGAN'S DEATH. "Forward ! Trot ! Gallop ! Charge !" "Forward! Trot! Gallop! Charge!" rang out on the air and on the cars of the startled, astonished Confederate sentrics They were literally ridden over by the dashing Federals, and before Dick Mor-gans's subordinate, whom he had left in command, got a man in saddle the Wil-liams house was surrounded by Wilcox's men. They shot and captured the two or three guards nicked up all the horzes It is a pity that boys were not taught in their earliest years that the highest success belongs only to the man, be he carpenter, farmer, author or artist, whose work is most sincerely and thoroughly done.
