But as Kizzy hung up the broom and disappeared, the large card-board motto slid on the floor on the one side of her, and the skeins of worsted on the other, all in a tangle of vivid color, and Miss Tillie forgot them—forgot the present entirely—and sat with her hands folded, and her soft eyes looking out to the line

It was the word "marigolds" that had sent her thoughts wandering; so often will one simple word waken a whole train of recollections. There was sadness mingled with these freshly stirred remembrances—a sadness that had come to her through her first and only romance. She was young when that happened;

even now she was pretty and pink, and plump. Then she was slender and pale, and Joe Gifford had seen the wide world in her eyes; and there had been promises and an engagement ring, and a little brown cottage bought, back on the hill, with a function of the property of t

"How's your mother?" asked the boy, who came forward to wait on her. "Awful sick, and ain't had anything to cat al! day." The boy was just then called to wait upon some men who entered the saloon, and the girl sat down. In five minutes she was nodding, and in seven she was sound asleep and leaning her head against a barrel, while she held the poor old nickle in a tight grip between her thumb and her finger. One of the men saw her as he came from the bar, and after asking who she was, said: "Say, you drunkard,s see here. Here we've been pouring down whiskey when this poor child and her mother want bread. Here's a two-dollar bill that says I've got some feeling left." "And I can add a dollar," observed one. "And I can add a dollar," observed one. "And I'll give another."

They made up a purse of an even five dollars, and the spokesman carefully put the bill between two of the sleeper's fingers, drew the nickel away and whis pered to his comrades: "Jist look athere—the gal's dreaming!" So she was. A big tear had rolled out from her closed eyelid, but the face was covered with a smile. The men tiptocol out and the eyelid, but the face was covered with a smile. The men tiptoed out, and the clerk walked over and touched the sleeping child. She awoke with a laugh, and cried out: "What a beautiful dream! Ma wasn't sick any more, and we had lots to cat and to wear and my hand burns yet where an angel touched it!" When she discovered that her nickel had been replaced by a hill a dellar of still a dellar been replaced by a bill, a dollar of which loaded her down with all she could carry, she innocently said: "Well, now, but ma won't hardly believe me that you sent up to heaven and got an angel to come down and clerk in your grocery!"—

IS THE EARTH DRYING UP?-Physicists and scientists say, that the amount of water on the surface of the globe is steadily decreasing, and that the land brown cottage bought, back on the hill, with a funny, strangly, red bud tree in a corner of the bit of front yard; and Tillie, who had very little money of her own in those days, invested fifteen cents in a paper of marigold seed to beautify the yard.

"For," she said, "marigolds are such hearty, jolly kind of flowers! There is so much satisfaction in them."

But just as they had come up, and begun to bloom in huge, brilliant masses of golden-yellow and velvet-soft red-brown, three weeks before the wedding day. Is steadily decreasing, and that the land gains on the sea year by year. It is quite true, that in some portions of the globe the sea is eating up, as it were, the land. This is true of the Atlantic coast, which gives evidence of a steady encroachment of the ocean upon its shores. New York will some day be a city under the sea, and its great bridge and ruins can be examined and disinterred only by means of diving bells. Geographers tell us that two-thirds of the carth's surface golden-yellow and velvet-soft red-brown, three weeks before the wedding day. lose a good deal of that element without suffering. If the nebular hypothesis is correct, and the earth was once a vast what was it that took all the light out of them—all the suggestive beauty and sweetness out of the brown cottage, and made the red-bud look like a stunted, malicious gnome? What but a horrible quarrel with Joc—a quarrel in which they had both neted with the wisdom and common sense of a couple of belligners the grant shillers for the grant shill gran erent children fighting over something as important as a rag doll, and breathing deadly threats against each other.

And Joe had wound it all up by repairing to the brown cottage, in a terrible termer and pulling are repairing to the deadly threats against each other.

Cottain districts will be come and pulling are repaired. The early should gradually lose its moisture, great changes will be effected. There will be more land and a denser population, fower marine animals, and more room for the races which now inhabit the land. the races which now inhabit the land. Certain districts will become arid, swamps will dry up, vast waterways will be converted into dry land. What a pity it is we cannot go to sleep for a thousand years, so as to see what kind of a world this will be in the year 3000. There will, we apprehend, be some water left even then.—Demorest's Monthly for Feb-

WOMEN AND LADIES .- In the days o Kizzie's head was poked inside the door.

"Miss Tillie," she said, "he's a-goin' to be married—the fellow with the wart is!"

As the head disappeared, Miss Tillie snapped the thread of her reverie, gave her head an impatient little toss and picking up her motto and her wooi, began to work briskly.

WOMEN AND LADIES.—In the days of our fathers there were such things to be met with as men and women; but now they are all gone, and in their places a race of gentlemen and ladies—or, to be still more refined, a race of "ladies and gentlemen" has sprung up. Women and girls are among the things that were; but "ladies" are found everywhere. Miss gan to work briskly.

A Nocturnal Ramble and What Became

Some genius—we suspect him to be-long to the jovial order of humanity— has said: "The day to drone and dream, has said: "The day to drone and dream, the night to learn and ramble." We do not propose to dispute this worthy's view of the matter, but present herewith the experience of a Philadelphia journalist, Mr. William H. Cunnington, 1712 North Twentieth street, one of whose nocturnal rambles he thus refers to, beginning his narration rather peculiarly, however: "I am not a rheumatic, and have been troubled very little with bodily pains. Last Tuesday morning I experienced a very annoying stiffness of the neck, which grew worse as the day wore on. Toward evening it became very severe, and I could scarcely turn my head in any direction. Arriving home at tea time, it rection. I started in the midst of a heavy snow storm, and remained at the theatre until the close of the performance, although I could feel mained at the theatre until the close of the performance, although I could feel my neck getting worse and becoming very painful. Leaving the play the trouble came to reach home. [SEAL] R. L. MOORHEAD, Del. Jty C. C. P.

To the Defendants above named:

In diseases of the pulmonary organs a safe and reliable remedy is invaluable. A YER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is such a remedy. It is a scientific combination of the medicinal principles and curative virtues of the finest drugs, chemically united, of such power as to insure the from the property of results of the finest drugs, chemically united, of such power as to insure the from the finest drugs, chemically united, of such power as to insure the from the finest drugs, chemically united, of such power as to insure the from the finest drugs, chemically united, of such power as to insure the from the finest drugs, chemically united, of such power as to insure the from the finest drugs, chemically united, of such power as to insure the greatest possible efficiency, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily. In ordinary Courghs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, influenza, Clergyman's Sove Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of Aver's Cherry Pectoral, are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every house-hold for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy so effications, soothing, and helpful.

Low prices are inducements to try some of the many mixtures or syrups, made of cheap and ineffective ingredients, now offered, which, as they contain no curative qualities, can afford only temporary relief, and are sure to disappoint the patient. Diseases of the throat and lungs demand active and effective treatment; and it is dangerous experimenting with unknown and cheap medicines, from the great liability that these diseases may, while so trified with, become deeply seated or incurable. Use Aver's Cherry Pectoral, and you may confidently expect the best results. It is of acknowledged curative power, and is as cheap as its careful preparation and fine ingredients will allow. Emine all pulmonary compla To the Defendants above named:

Take notice that the complaint and summons in this action was filed in the office of the Clerk of the Court for Anderson County, S. C., on the 6th day of January, A. D. 1882, and that the object of this action is to obtain a partition and sale of the Real Estate of Charles Hayne, deceased, and a settlement and division of the proceeds among his heirs at Iaw. No personal claim is made against any of you.
