Among other subjects, the letter refers to the Tariff question, and says the bill is likely to become a law, though its opponents are endeavoring to postpone the vote until nearer the end of the session, when it is hoped the bill will be defeated or carried over to the next session. At the close of the letter, Mr. Wilson says he is disgusted with Washington, as there are too many suckers around the public treasury and two many offices seekers. The popular drama by Goldsmith will be rendered in Anderson Friday night in Masonic Hall, by a company of the best amateur talent in the city, for the purpose of raising Anderson's contribution to the fund asked from this State to refit the room assigned to the care of South Carolina in the Mount Vernon Mansion. The object is a patriotic one, which appeals to all the people of our State. Other States are preserving the rooms in Washington's Home which have been assigned to their care in a handsoma manner, and South Carolina must not permit her room to remain a reproach to the patriotic reputation of our State. It is a cause for which the ladies in charge of raising the fund might well have asked subscriptions, but they have decided to ask no gits from our people. They will give an entertainment worth the admission price to those who attend.

The play will not only be the most elaborate and interesting ever attempted in Anderson, but music will be furnished by the Anderson Musical Union. Every effort has been made to render the evening as delightful as possible to those who attend, and we have no doubt a full house awaits the play.

Price of admission, fifty cents. Reserved seats may be procured in advance without extra charge. Tickets will be on sale at Messrs. Orr & Sloan's drug store, where a diagram of the hall will be found.
