ADVERTISING AND THE CONGRESSMAN.

Mr. Editor: Your polite announcement that we would give our readers an account of our visit to Richmond forces us to break silence.

Richmond is indeed a grand and glorious old city—glorious in her history, and grand in her possibilities. To say that our stay of three weeks in the historic city was pleasant, would be feebly to express the real truth; the hospitality of the people and the many places of interest about the city completely captivated us.

Besides the attractions of the city, to sit as a member of the law making body of one of the leading Christian denominations of the Union was both pleasant and profitable. That body was composed of many of the most distinguished divines in the Southern pulpit and a number of the ablest laymen in Southern Methodism. Such men as Chief Justice Jackson of Georgia, Judges Tucker and Long of Florida, Lieut. Geo. Shands, of Mississippi, the Hon. Geo. Thurnburg, Speaker of the House of Arkansas, Judge Ireland, of Kentucky, figured prominently in the deliberations and put their impress upon the work of the body. The writer esteemed it a privilege to be permitted to gather inspiration from the counsels of the wise men of both classes. Bishop Keener pronounced it the ablest General Conference ever held by the Southern Methodist Church. His age and experience and ability make him authority.

Your correspondent did not confine himself strictly to the deliberations of the Conference. His object in going to Richmond was twofold. As we declared to you two weeks ago by "Lay Delegates," who were none other than our colleagues, the accomplished and genial Judge J. Fuller Lyon, of Abbeville, much of our time was given to a study of the public school system of Richmond. We bring away many pleasant recollections, and we trust, many useful lessons from the primary schools of that city. And, Mr. Editor, let me ask friend Lyon, which is worse, to spend much time among the schools that are taught by handsome ladies, homely ladies and ugly ladies, or so far to fly to the charms of a coquetish young widow as to vote "yes," when he meant emphatically, "no." He was the Lyon of our delegation, and thought to be the handsomest member on the floor, but he couldn't find that woman—let the old gray-haired Doctor from Virginia "walk his log." However, if he will keep right quiet we may not report him to Mr. Lyon; and as for voting yes for no—well, under the circumstances, heterophamies are excusable.

The want of time and space, sir, would preclude the possibility of our giving a detailed description or making a faithful picture of the many objects and places of interest it was our good fortune to visit. At the proper time and under favorable circumstances we propose to give the children of Anderson County the benefit of the impressions produced upon our mind while in Richmond.

The regions round about the city had not the interest for us as for the old soldiers who figured there in times that tried men's souls. A number of empty places were noticeable at Conference; they were touching monuments to the fidelity of the wearer to the Lost Cause. For such as were them, the old landmarks of the bloody days were full of tender interest. Our evening visits were to objects of interest within the city limits.

Prominent among them was the State House and its surrounding park. The State House itself, in our judgment, is a very common affair for the great State of Virginia, the mother of statesmen. Our own is far superior to it.

Our visit to the State library was purely accidental, but in the highest degree gratifying. We could, of course, only take a glance at the many objects of its interest to every lover of his country's history. There we saw what we supposed to be the original Declaration of American Independence, besides a number of copies of papers written by Washington's own hand. In the portrait gallery are the portraits of many of America's and Virginia's distinguished dead.

While in the Capitol we failed to meet the State Dept. of Education, but had the pleasure of shaking the hand of Gov. Lee. The Governor is a genial gentleman of pleasing address and purely Southern in appearance.

The equestrian statue of Washington, which first attracts the attention of a stranger upon entering the park, is the finest piece of work of the kind it has ever been my pleasure to behold. Around it are the statues of Jefferson, Henry, Lewis, and Marshall. These statues themselves are so many text-books for the student. The little old stone house on Main street known as Washington's Headquarters is a city relic; it is jealously preserved by the city authorities and is industriously pointed out as one of the objects of greatest interest.

Of course, no visitor would think of leaving Richmond without a drive through the lovely Hollywood Cemetery, the veritable city of the dead. Twelve thousand persons are buried there. Nature made the place beautiful, and the wealth of men has adorned and made more attractive the last resting place of their cherished dead. In this beautiful place—beautiful in the sweetness and sadness of the thoughts it inspires—stands the Confederate Monument in all its solemn grandeur. In its pathetic and solemn silence it speaks of the deeds of the nameless heroes that lie beneath it. While strolling silently and pensively with my companion, Judge Lyon, among the Confederate graves and wondering if some of our own Carolina's unsung heroes had not slept there for twenty years and more, our eyes fell upon a nicely polished piece of marble with this inscription: "South Carolina's dead." Reverently and silently we stood gazing upon the tomb of those who willingly laid their lives upon the altar of their country, and, in our souls, repeated that lovely sentiment of the poet, "Cold in the dust the perished hearts may lie; But those which warmed them once can never die."

And now, Mr. Editor, I find that this letter is already too long, and still there are many places of interest worthy of more than a passing mention. Oakwood, with her thirteen thousand Confederate soldiers, Belle Isle, Liberty Prison, St. John's Church, Monumental Church, the old reservoir, made famous by the atrocious murder committed there last year while the State Commissioner of negroes. Several dogs commenced to fight while they were hunting, and, in attempting to separate the dogs, he struck one of them with his gun, which was discharged, and the lead entered his abdomen. He lived but a short time.

Mr. Editor: Being of a statistical turn of mind, I have figured up what the so-called "Tillman Farmers' Movement" cost the farmers of the State to assemble in Columbia to give Mr. Tillman a chance to unload some of the wisdom that has been troubling him so much to keep confined in his devoted head. The meeting in Columbia cost as follows:

200 delegates for R. R. fare, $5.00—$1,000.00
200 delegates hotel bills three days, $300.00
200 delegates whiskey and incidentals, $5.00—1,000.00
Total, $2,000.00

This meeting in Columbia cost the farmers thirty-two hundred dollars outlay in actual cash. The meeting took place just at planting time, when every man who had a farm ought to have been at home at work; so we add to the above—200 delegates took from their farms three days each, allowing their time to be worth $3.00 per day, $1,200.00
So we have $4,400.00. So much for the meeting in Columbia.

Now, we have, say, thirty-three Counties, and I suppose each one elected their delegates to a mass meeting like Anderson County did. Suppose there were 250 present at each of these mass meetings 250 farmers, (who ought to have been at home at work,) and I guess that is a low estimate, and suppose that each farmer's time was worth $1.00 per day to him at home, then it follows: 250 farmers in 33 Counties lose one day each, making a total of days lost 8,250.
8,250 days, $1.00 each, $8,250.00
Add to this cost Columbia meeting, 4,400.00
Making a grand total of this cost, $12,650.00
It cost to get to hear Mr. Tillman speak and to pass a few resolutions. Truly this is a step toward economy.

"Sir Smug," he cries, (for lowest at the report of the Committee upon Theological Seminary, which was published in the Southern Presbyterian Review for July, 1884, and in other publications, and by his statements made upon the floor of the Synods of South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida, which direct and control the said Seminary, to dismiss the said Rev. James Woodrow, D. D., as professor in the said Seminary and to appoint another in his place, and specifying to take such other steps as in their judgment may be best adapted to restore the Seminary to the confidence of the church.

Upon this the Synods and Synods were called and the vote resulted as follows: yeas 65 and nays 25.

Gen. Youmans's Assistants.

COLUMBIA, May 28.—When asked this afternoon for information as to the reported nomination of Messrs. James Furman and Greeneville, and James P. Lessee, of Charleston, as Assistant District Attorneys, District Attorney Youmans said: "While I have not yet made the nomination, I have said to Messrs. Furman and Lessee that I will ask the Attorney General to appoint them Assistant District Attorneys. It is not probable that a change will be made in these offices. The late Judge J. P. Lessee, who held the office of District Attorney, died on the 15th of June, 1885, and was succeeded by Mr. Furman and Mr. Lessee. The salary of Mr. Furman will be $2,000, and of Mr. Lessee, $1,500.—Correspondence News and Courier.

The domestic portion of the White House is undergoing a thorough overhauling. A procession of painters, decorators and upholsters has been moving through the upper part of the structure for several days. Every indication points to a social crisis of some kind. The large corner bedroom has been completely repainted and cleaned, after which new and tasteful draperies and furniture will take the place of the old. While these repairs are being made the President is sleeping on a cot in the small hall room at the head of the stairs. He assumed two of his ministerial visits on Wednesday that he enjoyed the Jeffersonian simplicity of his temporary quarters. The cot recalled his bunk in the Adirondacks, perhaps. Others of the President's intimates declare that he chafes considerably under the restrictions of house cleaning, and foresees already one of the new burdens of his future state. He has read somewhere that house cleaning is the abomination of married life.

Grace Memorial Church, of Lexington, Va., which has been completed at a cost of between $80,000 and $90,000, and is to be dedicated to God. The occasion promises to be one of more than usual interest. Several bishops and other prominent clergymen are expected to participate in the exercises. Grace Memorial Church is said to be one of the most beautiful edifices in Virginia. It was erected in grateful memory of the late Gen. Robert E. Lee, a faithful member and vestryman of the church during his residence in Lexington.

Another lymeneal surprise was given the boys on Sunday. Mr. Will Hunt, about 17 years old, went riding on Sunday evening with Miss Minnie Ferguson, Tode Ferguson's 15 year old daughter. They came back married, and the young man is now a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The Evolution Question Settled.

The Sixth day's proceedings of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, South, on Tuesday, was devoted to the discussion of the evolution question. The debate was opened by Dr. R. K. Smoot, of Texas, in favor of the report, contending that the matter is properly before the Assembly, and that it is a question of science or expediency; that it can not be deferred. Dr. George D. Armstrong, of F. J. Funkin and G. B. Stricker followed in support of the report, recommending the Synods to do what, in their judgment, was best to restore to the Seminary to the confidence of the church, and the amendment of Dr. Dinwiddie directing them to do so specific thing.

A number of members spoke upon this view of the case, and several motions were made. Dr. Hill's motion prevailed that the section be referred to a committee of three, to be appointed to harmonize the differences existing between the two amendments adopted by the Assembly, and Drs. Hill and Dinwiddie and Gov. Mary were appointed.

Chairman Dr. Hill of the special committee, announced that they had harmonized the conflicting sections of the report upon Theological Seminaries, and offered the following report:

Resolved, That, whereas, the General Assembly, is convinced that Rev. James Woodrow, D. D., one of the Professors in Columbia Theological Seminary, holds views repugnant to the Word of God and to our Confession of Faith, as appears both by his address published in the Southern Presbyterian Review for July, 1884, and in other publications, and by his statements made upon the floor of the Synods of South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida, which direct and control the said Seminary, to dismiss the said Rev. James Woodrow, D. D., as professor in the said Seminary and to appoint another in his place, and specifying to take such other steps as in their judgment may be best adapted to restore the Seminary to the confidence of the church.

The Cost of the Farmers' Movement.

This meeting in Columbia cost the farmers thirty-two hundred dollars outlay in actual cash. The meeting took place just at planting time, when every man who had a farm ought to have been at home at work; so we add to the above—200 delegates took from their farms three days each, allowing their time to be worth $3.00 per day, $1,200.00
So we have $4,400.00. So much for the meeting in Columbia.

Now, we have, say, thirty-three Counties, and I suppose each one elected their delegates to a mass meeting like Anderson County did. Suppose there were 250 present at each of these mass meetings 250 farmers, (who ought to have been at home at work,) and I guess that is a low estimate, and suppose that each farmer's time was worth $1.00 per day to him at home, then it follows: 250 farmers in 33 Counties lose one day each, making a total of days lost 8,250.
8,250 days, $1.00 each, $8,250.00
Add to this cost Columbia meeting, 4,400.00
Making a grand total of this cost, $12,650.00
It cost to get to hear Mr. Tillman speak and to pass a few resolutions. Truly this is a step toward economy.

"Sir Smug," he cries, (for lowest at the report of the Committee upon Theological Seminary, which was published in the Southern Presbyterian Review for July, 1884, and in other publications, and by his statements made upon the floor of the Synods of South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida, which direct and control the said Seminary, to dismiss the said Rev. James Woodrow, D. D., as professor in the said Seminary and to appoint another in his place, and specifying to take such other steps as in their judgment may be best adapted to restore the Seminary to the confidence of the church.

Upon this the Syn
