Death of a Worthy Young Man. The old familiar saying, "Death loves a hining mark," was never more truly verified than on last Tuesday morning, when the news spread rapidly over the city that the spirit of our young friend and fellow-townsman, Wilbur H. Sadler, had on the preceding night taken its flight to that mysterious world from whence no raveler ever returns. Mr. Sadler was prostrated about four weeks ago with nervous fever, which kept him confined to his room until about ten days ago, when he had recovered sufficiently to walk out upon the streets, and his friends were hopeful that he would soon regain his isual health. He was again stricken down on last Thursday with the fever, and from that time gradually grew worse antil he passed away. Mr. Sadler had been a resident of Anderson about two years, during which time he was engaged as a salesman in the drug store of Messrs.

It was our privilege and pleasure to be intimately acquainted with the deceased, and we can say unfeignedly that we never knew a more noble, generous, kind-hearted young man. He possessed all those virtues that are worthy of admiration, and made a friend of every one with whom he became acquainted. He was genial, manly and true, and treated all who came within his circle of acquaintance with the same uniform courtesy. He was just entering manhood, having attained his 20th birthday a few days ago. It is indeed sad to see one with such a bright future cut down just as the mantle of manhood was being thrown around him. To him life's sun has set. For him life's cares are ended. Since early youth he had been a faithful member of the Methodist Church, and it may be truly said that he lived up to his profession. His remains were interred in the Presbyterian cemetery Tuesday afternoon after appropriate funeral services, conducted by Rev. J. W. Wolling, in the presence of a large concourse of sorrowing friends. The grief-stricken family have the deepest sympathy of our whole city in their bereavement.

Wilbur has gone, but his memory will long be cherished by a host of friends.

He was invited to address the Convention after it had transacted its business and responded in a few remarks, thanking the Convention for the compliment paid him, and saying that he could testify to all that had been said in reference to Hon. He said he did not expect an endorsement from Anderson County, but hoped that, if the delegation to the Congressional Convention should be forced to withdraw Mr. Simpson's name, he would not be forgotten, if his name was still hefore that Convention His remarks were well received and liberally applauded.

Rev. B. F. Mauldin died at the residence of his son, Mr. B. Frank Mauldin, in this city, on Sunday afternoon, the 4th day of July inst., after an illness of two weeks. Mr. Mauldin had been in feeble health for several months past, but did not give up his work as agent of the Columbia & Greenville Railroad Company at Williamston until two weeks before his death. One week after his health precluded him from discharging his usual duties, he came to Anderson in the hope that a change would be beneficial, but grew rapidly worse, despite the attention of devoted relatives and skilled physicians, until his death. Mr. Mauldin was born in Pickens Coun-y on June 3rd. 1814, and was therefore unwards of seventy-two years old. At the age, of 16 while attending school in Greenville, he joined the Baptist Church there, and was baptized by the Rev. Sandford Vandiver. He was ever afterwards a conistent, faithful and working christian, whose pure life commanded the admiration and love of all who knew him. On leaving school he clerked in the store of his brother, Samuel Mauldin, in Greenville, and afterwards obtained a situation in Hamburg, where he remained until he was 19 years old, at which time his services were engaged by the old house of G. L. Penn in Edgefield. He remained there until twenty-one years old, at which time two partnerships were offered him in business. One with Mr. Penn, and the other with his brother in Greenville. He accepted the latter and lived in Greenville until 1838, when he moved to Anderson and established a business, into which he took his brother, Lawrence Mauldin, as a partner. Upon the death of his partner he sold his Anderson business to his clerk and nephew. Hon. B. F. Crayton, and removed in 1841 to Calhoun in this County, where he farmed and merchandised. In 1845 he entered the ministry, and supplied several churches in the surrounding country. Mr. Mauldin was one of the first Missionary Baptists in the Saluda Association, and contributed liberally of his means and his labors to the missionary work in the missionary society which was formed in connection with the Association, but finally carried the whole Association with it. In 1854 he left Calhoun and removed to Williamston to educate his children. He merchandised here, now of Hampton, principally in charge of the business. He was chiefly instrumental the Saluda Association for many years. Mr. Mauldin was elected one of the delegates from this County to the Secession Convention in 1860, and voted for the ordinance of Secession. He was never a politician, and held no other public office

At the beginning of the war Mr. Mauldin had accumulated by his financial skill a handsome property, but the bulk of it was swept away by the results of the war, and at its close he found it necessary to give up the active work of the ministry in order to maintain and educate his family, which was large and dependent upon his income for a support. He accepted the position of pay-master and inspector of timber upon the C & G R R and served there until his health failed, after which he accepted the agency of the road at Williamston. He never, however, lowered the standard of his religious life, and on one occasion when ordered to do some work on Sunday, declined to obey, saying he would rather resign his office than violate the Sabbath. He had no trouble, however, with the road about it.

Mr. Mauldin was a kind, affable and intelligent gentleman, whose life was a striking example of Christian purity and worth. His remains were interred in the Presbyterian Cemetery in Anderson on Monday afternoon, the Rev. T. P. Bell conducting a beautiful and solemn funeral service, which was attended by a large crowd of the friends and acquaintances of the deceased.

Dr. Witherspoon has under his super vision a "Home" providing comfortable accommodations for seamen at cheap rates of board, which is self-supporting; a Bethel where they enjoy regular preaching, a Hospital for their sick and a large reading room for their entertainment and information, and is travelling for the purpose of bringing this whole subject more fully to the attention of our Christian people.

His address was full of new, varied and deeply interesting information, and delivered with the eloquence and impressive force of one long accustomed to wield the power of the influential speaker. Whoreas, the Democracy of Anderson County favors the recognition of faithful public services and deems it good policy to distribute the honors of the party as far as consistent with the selection of efficient public officers, to the end that the various sections of South Carolina may feel that the party appreciates the devot lie duty which all parts of the State have shown; and, whereas, the County of Anderson, which has always been one of the most effective elements in the Democratic party since its organization, has not re-ceived the slightest recognition of these services from the State. Fine Oats. MR. EDITOR : I send you a statement of a portion of my oat crop threshed to-day by W. J. Robbins & Co. On four acres of old land which has been in cultivation forty years I sowed five bushels in August at last plowing of cotton. 87 dozen were harvested, 82 threshed, making 91 bushels. These were the white or Egyptian seed. On same amount of land, same quality, about same number of bushels were sown. making 60 dozen, 55 threshed, making 68 bushels. These were the winter grazing seed. I also sowed fifteen bushels Texas red oats on eight acres second bottom land, and made 168 bushels. About 75 bushels of cotton seed were sown on the land and plowed in with the red oats in November. The others were unmanured. I have about 10 acres sowed in February to cut, which are good, but not quite so good as the Summer and Fall sowing. JAS. G. DOUTHIT.
