An Expert's Opinion of Exercise. Take the heart-itself a very bundle of muscular fibers. We know that as long that wonderful organ keeps up its regu-lar contractions and expansions. But, when we use our muscles, their contractile force upon the blood-vessels helps the -blood along its channels, and thus takes a little labor from the propelling heart. It beats faster but with less effort. While helping the heart, muscular excrcise helps the lungs also. More exercise means for the lungs more breath; that is, more air inspired and more carbonic-acid gas expired. By deeper breathings the involuntary muscles are strengthened.

While the lungs and heart are doing better work under the stimulus of muscular exercise, the heart pumping the blood more certainly to the farthermost blood more certainly to the larthermost tissue of the body and the lungs more rapidly purifying the blood, other organs are benefited.
