The shocks did no damage in the County, beyond demolishing a number of chimneys. It is amusing to hear the experiences of individuals on the first night of the quake. Many persons contend that the earthquake is a visitation of the Almighty, while others do not take that view of it. The former are in the large majority, however, and the 'quake may be a benefit after all. Already several old din's premises was destroyed by fire on Wednesday night of last week. The alarm was given just a few minutes before 10 o'clock. The firemen responded promptly, but before they reached the scene the house was completely enveloped with the fiames. The Hook and Ladder Company arrived on the ground first, and at once began pulling down the frame. The Pioneer steamer was stationed at Maxwell's cistern, but its hose was too short to reach the flames. The Rough and Ready was stationed at the cistern near the burning house, and did good work. Everything in the house was consumed. The occupants of the house were at Church when the alarm was given, and Dispatches received from all over the country indicate that the earthquake was felt throughout the American continent. Charleston, however, seems to have been the centre of disturbance. That city has had many misfortunes, but none have ever equalled the damage done by the 'quake. The state of affairs there is deplorable.
