C. C. LANGSTON, LOCAL EDITOR.

One of the most strocious murders it has ever been our duty to chronicle occurred in this County last Saturday morning. The scene of the tragedy is in Brushy Creek Township, about one mile south of Pisgah Church, and about fifteen miles from this city. The murderer's name is Jasper Davis, a white man about 45 years of age, and his victim was his wife, who was about 40 years of age.

As soon as Coroner Nance heard of the tragedy he started to the place to hold the inquest, but when he reached the scene Trial Justice Sitton had taken the matter in hand and was just concluding the inquest. Mr. Sitton had not filed the pap 's in the case with the Clerk of Court up to Tuesday night, and we are unable to give our readers the testimony taken by him. We have conversed with several gentlemen, however, who were present at the inquest, and have learned the following facts in reference to the terrible crime:

The murderer is familiarly known as Jap. Davis. About three years ago his mind became slightly deranged, and he was sent to the State Lunatic Asylum, where be remained a short time and was returned home, having been pronounced by the Suntendent sound and well. Since that time he has frequently mistreated his wife and family, and several times threatened to kill his wife. -Mrs. Davis was naturally afraid of her husband, and for severa months past has had very little to do with him. Davis, being a lazy, worthless fellow. would not support his family, and Mrs. Davis, with her five children, had to earher own livelihood on the farm. This she did with considerable energy and perseverance, and this year had a very good crop growing. Davis would occasionally come around the premises. About twelve days ding the murder he was seen there, but addenly disappeared and was not seen any more until the night before the crime

About one-quarter of a mile from where Mrs. Davis resided lives one of her brothers, a Mr. Ben. Moore. For some time past, fearing that her brutal husband would Injura her in some way during the night ime Mrs Davis, with her children, has been alsoping at her brother's house, where she would be protected. As usual she went there last Friday night, and after she had retired and was asleep, Davis came to the house and was admitted. He talked with Mr. Moore for some time, and finally sked for his wife and children. During ation he asked Moore to try and induce Mrs. Davis to forgive him for his past conduct towards her, so that they might live peaceably together again. He got up and went to the bed where his wife nd youngest child were sleeping, and called he child by name. No response was had, and he came back to Mcore, who invited him to go to bed, at the same time telling him that he could have a talk with Mrs.

Davis on the morrow. Davis then lay down in an adjoining room, but before daylight got up and went out of the house. children, at once started for her home. Near Moore's house is a thick oak grove, and through this Mrs. Davis had to go. One of her children was walking in front of her, and the other following in the rear. When about midway of the woods the loud eport of a gun was heard, followed by a now running as messenger for the Southturned around and was running back to her | nah Valley Railroad. brother's house, Mrs. Moore also heard the ahot and the scream, and ran out of the house towards the sound of the report. She ran on and met Mrs. Davis, who was in the act of falling over. The fiend had fired the fatal shot from ambush, without a moment's warning, the whole load of shot enturing the left side of the face of the victim, several shot penetrating the eye-ball, causing death in a few minutes. Mrs. Davis never spoke a word after being shot. The weapon used was a double barrel shot-gun, which the murderer had stolen from his brother in law, Mr. Owens. It was loaded with squirrel-shot and one or two slugs. As soon as the gun was fired, the murderer was been retreating through the woods. No one law him

No one saw him.

The news of the terrible tragedy spread through the surrounding country rapidly, and it as not long before a large crowd had gathered at the scene of the murder. Search was at once instituted for Davis, but he could not be found, though he had been seen entering a swamp.

As the day passed away the people bemized to go and search for Davis in every direction. Threats of lynching were made, and had the murderer been found near the scene, he would no doubt have been fied up to the first limb. These pared to hunt for Davis through Sunday, but without success. On Monday morning, about daylight,

Davis came to the house of his nephew, ton Acker, all of Anderson County. Mr. Days Owens, near Piercetown, and asked Mr. Owens to protect him from the enraged citizens. Mr. Owens sent for Mr. M. B. Williams, jr., and together they brought Davis to the city and turned him over to the Sheriff. Rumors reached the city Tuesday that the prisoner would be taken from the Jail and lynched. Sheriff Bolt was determined to protect the prisoner, other officials, he sent him away to a place of safety for a few days. Messrs. Prince & Vandiver have been employed as counsel

There is no doubt as to the guilt of the crime, but refuses to talk about it:

Death of an Excellent Lady. On Friday, the 24th inst., Mrs. Sallie T. Gaillard died at the residence of her husband, W. H. D. Gaillard, Esq., in Pendleton, after a painful illness of several weeks. Mrs. Gaillard was a daughter of the late Col. Benjamin F. Sloan, of this County, and was over sixty-two years of age at the time of her death, having been born on the 7th day of September, 1824. She was liberally educated, and was an elegant and accomplished lady. After her marriage with W. H. D. Gaillard, Esq., they resided in Pendleton, and Mrs. Gaillard was ever a leader in the various and benevoient interests of the town Liberal in her beneficence she leaves behind her a memory filled with deeds of kindness and acts of charity. A devoted member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church she was ever zealous in her efforts to contribute to its prosperity and welfare. Mrs. Gaillard leaves behind her husband and eight children, all of whom are grown and useful and accomplished members of society. She was an affectionate wife, a devoted mother, and a most estimable lady, and her circle of friends was wide conducted from St. Paul's Church on Saturday morning, the Rector, Rev. T. F.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit says: "Having received so much benone from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica
