RIGLISH AS SHE IS SPOKEN.

Suppose that a young man or a young woman, or a boy or a girl, should become thoroughly in earnest in the effort to Jearn how to speak the English language correctly, what must such an one do? is good advice. Next to having a father marked success. The pointing of the loyalty which tingles through the elostant use of the dictionary may be made the best means of acquiring correct speech. But to talk according to the skimming, stamping, eyeing, tempering, dictionary and the grammar is not necessarily to talk good English. We have all known persons who, not having inherited good speech, yet got a marvelous degree of correctness in the use of the introduced during the last twenty years mother tongue from the dictionary and the grammar; but their conversation smacked always of the dictionary and is not only cheaper but better. the grammar, and was, if not offensive to people of real culture, at least not pleasant to them. It was very apt to partake of the inflated, the turgid, the needles, the old stamping process being pompous. The best means left to most of us for learning what is best in pronunciation, in the choice of words, in general style, is to observe carefully the language of correct speakers. By this means one might best correct inherited defects, might even be saved from any undue influence of dictionary and grammar. But where can these correct speakers be found? That is a hard question, and, without attempting to answer it, we shall have a few words to say tons weight of pins of all sorts are made with regard especially to what those in Redditch weekly. No one in the store knew her even by name. All the clerks but one avoided her, and gave their attention to those who were better dressed and more pretentious. The exception was a young man who had a conscientious regard for duty and system. He never left another customer to wait on the lady, but when at liberty, he waited on her with as much attention as if she had been a princess. This continued a year or two, till the young man came of age. One morning the lady approached the young man.

No one can be ignorant of the close union that exists between the physical, the mental and the moral constitution. No one can be ignorant of the degrading influence of intoxicants upon the physical and moral man.

The effect of beer and liquor is to produce disease of the nerve centres. If these become impaired they convey false and wrong impressions to the brain as well as paralyze the motor or moving agents of the body. In short, they tell lics. The truth is not in them. They convey false intelligence and destroy reason. The drunkard believes his devoted wife his enemy and beats her to death. The love he bears his child is turned to hate, and he turns her naked into the winter storm.

Intoxicants gradually undermine the moral integrity and leave the victim open to every temptation. Once the barrier is weakened that guards the path place. The servant girl who was with of truth and rectitude the man falls an easy prey to vice.
