A correspondent of the Augusta, Ga. Chronicle relates the following as to how the Savannah River got its name: "During the years '48, '49 and '50 I was a pupil in the well known institute of Rev. Wm. J. Hard, of your city. While talking to Mr. S. Bleckley and Mr. John E. Peoples. our class one day about the early settlement of Augusta, he told us that the name 'Savannah' had its origin in a very affecting Indian legend. One of the white settlers who lived above Augusta had occasion to cross the river one day, and in company with his little daughter was carried by an Indian in his canoe. This little girl's name was 'Anna.' - When they reached the middle of the stream, there came up a sudden squall of wind, and by some means the frail bark was capsized and all three thrown into the water. The father, in his anxiety about his daughter, cried out to the Indian, 'Saye Anna! Oh, save Anna!' The Indian grasped the child and reached the shore in safety with her, and in memory of that incident called the river its present name, 'Savannah.' I have never heard this disputed, but would be glad to know if it was really a

An Interesting Occasion

The schools of Broadaway Township had a most enjoyable exhibition and pic nic at Carpenter & Geer's Mill, five miles east of the city, last Saturday, which, notwithstanding the busy season with our country friends, was largely attended.

In company with our young friend, Dr. S. G. Bruce, who was kind enough to give ton, passed up the road last Friday on us a seat in his buggy, we left the city his way to Alabama and Tennessee, where about 11 o'clook, and when we arrived on the grounds the exercises for the day had erected and a large number of seats arranged in the grove below the mill, and everybody seemed to be deeply interested in the exercises. The stand was tastefully decorated, and on one end of it stood Capt. J. A. Wren is now in charge of an organ, which was used in the rendition

A Great Discovery.

Mr. Wm. Thomas, of Newton, Ia., says: "My wife has been seriously affected with cough for twenty-five years, and this spring more severely than ever before. She had used many remedies without relief, and being urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery, did so, with most gratify-ing results. The first bottle relieved her very much, and the second bottle has absolutely cured her. She has not had so good health for thirty years." Trial Bottles Free at Hill Bros. Drug Store.
