Harris Moore died last Sunday at his home in Baltimore, aged eighty-two years.

The Governor has appointed the Hon. James A. Hoy, of Greenville, to represent South Carolina at the centennial celebration of the inauguration of George Washington as President of the United States to be held in New York city on the 30th of April, 1889.

According to the election returns the Democratic party, which retires on the 30th of March next, represents about ninety thousand more American citizens than the Republican party, which enters the White House on that date.

Having the trial Justices of Abbeville County will receive salaries. Those of Abbeville will receive $150 per annum, and those of Ninety Six $100 each, those in other incorporated towns or villages $50 each and the others $25 each. Payment is to be made quarterly by the County Commissioners.

The Legislature of Alabama has passed an act looking to an amendment of the State Constitution so as to provide for a local tax, not exceeding 1 per cent, on real property, to be levied for school purposes.

A dispatch from Washington, dated December 21, says it is stated that Southern protection Democrats will hold a convention soon, at Richmond or Louisville, to issue an ultimatum to the free trade wing of the party that unless they return to the platform of protection they will leave the party.

Governor Richardson failed to approve of the bill passed by the Legislature for the purpose of establishing an Agricultural College, and a consequence the matter rests in its present condition until the next session of the Legislature, when the Governor says he will give his decision on the bill.

In New York on Christmas eve a man and his wife walked the streets carrying their dying infant. They were honest people out of work, with not a friend and not a dollar. They had applied to the various church and charitable societies for relief, without success.

The State Legislature adjourned sine die on Monday morning, December 24th, after a session of twenty-three days. Among the important measures that were passed were the following: An act amending the railroad law so as to restore to the State Railroad Commission the power to regulate rates of freight and passenger transportation; an act reducing the moderate pensions from fifty to thirty dollars per annum; an act providing for the redemption of township bonds aggregating about one million dollars.

The tax levied for the State for the current year was fixed at five and one-fourth mills. Last year it was five. Among the more important measures pending which failed to pass were the following: A bill to prohibit the consolidation of railroads without the consent of the Legislature; a bill to amend the constitution by imposing an educational qualification for suffrage; a bill to reduce the salaries of Circuit Judges, State officers and members of the Legislature. The general election laws were untouched.

The Detroit Free Press remarks that the greatest of free Press is to keep healthy. There are no notable exceptions. Alexander H. Stephens and many others never enjoyed good health, and yet they lived long.

THE CLEMONS BEQUEST.

Gov. Richardson will not sign the Act of Acceptance. Correspondence of the News and Courier. COLUMBIA, Dec. 25.—The sunshine was reminiscent of the first glorious week of May as I snatched through my relaxing warmth up to the Executive Mansion at noon this Christmas Day to interview Governor Richardson in regard to the fate of the Clemons College bill, passed by the Legislature several days ago. The Governor had, by constitutional right three days in which to sign the bill and make it a law. Those three days had expired at midnight last night, and as I had seen yesterday afternoon the bill put away carefully by itself in a big safe in the Executive office, while not yet bearing the Governor's autograph, I had a suspicion that some interesting facts could be brought out by a Christmas interview. So the interview was sought and obtained. "Governor," I asked, have you signed the Clemons bill?"

"I have not signed it," replied the Governor laconically, but positively, as he watched the blue smoke curling up from the cigar which he held between his fingers.

"You have not vetoed it, of course, since a veto message would have had to be sent to the Legislature before its adjournment?" I suggested.

"No, I have not vetoed it," he said, "but I have taken a course in regard to the bill which is constitutional, and to my mind appears both proper and expedient."

Here the Governor took up a copy of the State Constitution, newly bound, and referring to Section 22, of Article 3, read as follows: "If a bill or joint resolution shall not be returned by the Governor within three days after it shall have been presented to him, Sundays excepted, it shall have the same force and effect as if he had signed it, unless the General Assembly, by their adjournment, prevents its return in which case it shall not have such force and effect unless returned within two days after their next meeting."

"Now," added Governor Richardson, "the Legislature, by an adjournment before the expiration of three days from the time at which the Clemons College bill was presented to me, gives this clause importance. Under it the Governor has the right to withhold his approval or disapproval of a bill until the second day of the next meeting of the General Assembly. I intend to use my constitutional right and withhold action on the Clemons bill until the Legislature meets again, and then I shall announce my final decision in regard to it."

"You consider, then, that that clause was intended to meet cases like the present?"

"Yes," said Governor Richardson, "it was evidently designed to afford the Governor the amplest time for the consideration of grave matters of property and expediency in legislation. It is now going to avail myself of this right which has been declared by the Constitution for the reason that the decision which has been reached on the subject has been hasty and without that full discussion and consideration of all aspects of the case which an important question of this kind demands both from the people and their representatives."

"You are in favor of an agricultural college, properly established and controlled, are you not, Governor?"

"So far as that is concerned," he replied, "my position ought to be well known as I have announced it not only in the hustings, but in my last annual message. I have unequivocally advocated such an institution if the agriculturists of the State deliberately desired it, but only on such a basis as would make it effectual and useful to those whose interests are concerned and conform it to the dignity and rights of the State."

A FRIEND OF ALL EDUCATION. "You may say," he added, "that I am an advocate of all the education possible, and especially of the education of the whites. We have a great burden to bear in reducing the illiteracy of a race foreign to our own. All extraneous aid is directed to the benefit of that race, for whose enlightenment we already tax ourselves heavily. Consequently any increase in the facilities for educating the white youth of the State, addresses itself to my warmest approval and support, and it would be the height of unwisdom on our part to limit the facilities for educating our own race."

requirement that the devise should be accepted immediately since it has become a practical impossibility to act under the restraining order of the Court. The order renders it impracticable for the executor of Mr. Clemons to transfer the real estate in litigation to the State; and the title to the real estate being in litigation, he could not utilize the personality in the erection of buildings or making improvements on land to which there is no title. The only effect of the insignificant appropriation proposed by the bill towards the establishment of an institution such as has been designed would be to make South Carolina a party to the suit and thus interpose her sovereignty against Miss Lee.

SOME ADDITIONAL REASONS. "Again, it is a serious question whether or not the bill accepting this bequest does not change the conditions of the devise to such a degree as to prevent its standing the test of the Court. Mr. Clemons having specifically and perpetually a ratio of seven to six the number of trustees representing respectively himself and the State, this bill has provided that a two-thirds vote shall be required for the exercise of the most important functions of the board. That is a very material change from the plan which Mr. Clemons's will designated.

"Then there is another objection, which the people of the State should have the opportunity gravely to consider. It is the propriety of establishing an institution of this kind under conditions which, if sustained by the Courts, would prevent its ever being genuinely and thoroughly a State college, as it would be given over to an irresponsible board of control. Then the hasty acceptance of the bequest would make the State of South Carolina a collector of bonds, notes and accounts for the Clemons estate. It would be the duty, in the event of the executor himself to collect the assets of his estate, and this being done, and the finances of the estate settled, proffer its resources to the State.

"FREEDOM FROM OBJECTIONS WHICH I HAVE STATED TO YOU, would have made the acceptance of the bequest a matter of course. It would have been gladly received by the whole people. But the objections are gret, and holding these views, and on the considerations which I have stated to you, I have determined to hold myself of a constitutional right and avail myself of it until the next session, giving the people of South Carolina and myself ample time for the mature consideration of the proprieties and expediencies of the case. Haste, under the present circumstances, is the most unwise course to adopt. We will know when the Legislature next meets much more about the probable duration and result of the litigation; and as, I have stated, the interests of neither party to the suit can be injured by the delay."

THE GOVERNOR CONSISTENT. My interview ended here, and now that the notes are all transcribed it is in order to say that Governor Richardson has acted just as he might have been expected to act by all those who heard his speeches in the preliminary canvass last summer and read his annual message. He did not disguise, on the platform, and in the face of the strongest opposition, his objections to such a measure as that which the House and Senate have passed, and the litigation since has not, of course, commended the bill to his higher approval. He bore the brunt of the fight, and although opposed in the September convention by every influence which he had antagonized during the campaign, he was nominated for a second term.

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES. GREENWOOD, S. C., Dec. 26.—The sad news has just reached us of the sudden and violent death of Mr. John W. Foshee, who lived near Coronas. Last night about 10 o'clock he heard some disturbance among his horses. He and his son Robert went out to see what was the matter. Mr. Foshee opened the stable door and the horses rushed out knocking him down and killing him instantly. Mr. Foshee was about 70 years old, and was one of the most substantial citizens of the county.

WALHALLA, S. C., Dec. 30.—Yesterday afternoon Robert J. Campbell, formerly of Newberry county, but recently of Mississippi, fell in the street with an epileptic fit. He was slightly bruised, but was soon able to walk across the street to his home. He was accompanied by George W. Freeman, a white man, and Larken Webb, colored. About 8 o'clock Freeman reported that he believed Campbell was dying. Upon examination Campbell was found lying on his face with blood running out of his mouth and ears. His neck was broken and his shoulder dislocated and badly bruised. The doctors testified that a fall from a chair, where Freeman and Webb seemed to have left him, could not have broken his neck or dislocated his shoulder. A jury of witnesses, after examining a number of witnesses, brought in the following verdict: "That the said Robert J. Campbell came to his death in the house of Mr. Gury, between the hours of 5 and 8 o'clock on Saturday, December 29, by the hands of George W. Freeman and Larken Webb. Both men were committed to jail.

BRUNSWICK, GA., Dec. 21.—The morning News prints a curious story from Alabama: As a southbound freight pulled up at Alapaha, on the Brunswick and Western road, the engineer and fireman were suddenly startled by the sound of a voice close to the engine, calling them to get off. The voice was one of command, and as they peered over the side of the cab it was to look down the barrel of a Winchester rifle, firmly held to the shoulder of a man who evidently meant business. The men on the engine may have thought him drunk or crazy, but they felt satisfied it was no time to parley. They were told to get up, and they did it. The man with the rifle stepped between the engine and first car, pulled out the coupling pin, and jumped into the cab, holding the rifle in one hand, while with the other he pulled down the lever, and quick as lightning, sprang to the ground. The engine, freed from the train with a full head of steam, flew down the track towards Brunswick like a cannon ball shot down hill. Fortunately, the telegraph operator was in the office, and flashed the news over the wire, to see that the track was clear. On the wild horse of the rail sped its way, hissing and seething without the hand of its master, until with stepped exertion for want of fuel, it stopped every eight or nine miles. The man who did this is named L. O. Smith. He was arrested, and has been "sent to the jail at Nashville. Further details as to whether or not he was a runaway could not be obtained as to why Smith did this.

WICHITA, KAN., Dec. 19.—A school teacher of Andale, Thomas McConnelly, was terribly beaten and probably fatally injured to day in a fight with some of his pupils. The Board of Education engaged McConnelly temporarily, they say, for four months, but he claims that it was for eight. He was notified this morning that his four months would be up this week, and that he might consider himself at liberty. On opening school he was referred to the dismissal before his pupils and bitterly denounced the school board. One of the pupils then called the teacher a liar, and upon the latter attempting to chastise him he was assailed on all sides by boys armed with pieces of furniture. A pitched battle ensued, both sides hurling all the furniture within reach. Finally McConnelly was felled by a blow on the head from a chair and was then pounced upon by his enemies, who beat him unmercifully. When rescued his skull was found to be fractured and one arm was broken. The neighborhood is worked up over the matter and further trouble may ensue.

LANCASTER, PA., Dec. 29.—Burglars last night entered the residence of Jacob F. Warfel, Millersville, carried a safe weighing over a thousand pounds to the rear yard and blew it open with dynamite, securing over six hundred dollars. Four persons and two dogs were in the house at the time the burglars were at work.

FRYLANDER, W. T., Dec. 29.—The explosion of giant powder yesterday blew a cabin on the outskirts of the town to pieces. James Biggs was killed and Leroy Gow was badly injured. The men were engaged in clearing land and had the powder stored in the cabin. How it was exploded is a mystery, as Gow was too badly hurt to talk.

GENEVILLE, ILL., Dec. 25.—John M. Stillwell was badly burned while impersonating Santa Claus in the Methodist church last night. As he was passing the tree his cotton costume caught fire from a candle on the tree. Quite a panic ensued, women men and children running, screaming and jumping over the seats. Mr. Stillwell is reported this morning to be out of danger.

Death of Rev. Dr. Boyce. LOUISVILLE, KY., Dec. 25.—A cablegram received this morning announces the death, at Pau, France, of the Rev. James Pettigrew Boyce, LL.D., D. D., President of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in this city. He was 60 years old, and left here last August for a two years' trip to recruit his shattered health. He was the founder of the seminary and one of the greatest leaders of American Baptist Convention, a trustee of the Slater Fund, and held many important private and public trusts. He was born at Greenville, S. C., and his wife and three daughters accompanied him on his travels. The remains will be brought here for interment.

Governor Gordon, of Georgia, says the Macon Telegraph, sold his plantation near Butler, a few days ago to the Flint River Bank and Life Stock Company. The company is composed of Northern capitalists, and they paid him $240,000. A Western statistician figures out that the people of the United States spend more than $1,500,000 every year for chewing gum.

James Bladon, a carpenter of Augusta, while drunk, and attempting to load a rifle, allowed the weapon to fire. The bullet struck and killed his eldest child, a girl twelve years old.
