Wherever the circus has been this season, the press has cordially praised the performances and lauded the menageric. For that reason, the Chronicle has not hesitated to speak well of this circus, placing faith in its contemporaries. Last night the circus arrived in Charlotte from Coucord, where a performance had been given in the afternoon. It took thirty six baggage and six passenger cars to bring the circus here. Along with the circus came the inimita-ble and world famous clown, John Low-low. John is a native of Georgia, and the funny fellow has a true sectional pride. His wit and humor has the flavor of his early surroundings. His wit is kindly more than sarcastic. A tender heart spreads its smiles through his agreeable countenance. On Wednesday afternoon, the 9th inst. about nine miles south of the city, in Mar-tin Township, a difficulty occurred between Messrs. James Keaton and R-uben Martin, which has resulted in the death of the lat-ter. Mr. Keaton is a middle aged man, while Mr. Martin had passed his 70th year. Mr. Martin was never married, and for a leng number of years had resided on the place where the difficulty which cost him his life occurred. He lived with his brother, Mr. Roddy Martin, who died a few years ago, and who was Mrs. Keaton's first husband. Testimony of Dr. W. H. Nardin. I am a regular practicing physician, and live at Anderson C. H. I have examined the body of Reuben M. Martin, and find an abrasion on the scalp on a level with the ear on the left side of the head, about four inches belind the ear, such a bruise as would be made with a stick or rock; directly opposite, on the right side of the head, where the eyebrow joins the temple, an abrasion and some bruised blood under the skin. That was all I saw on the external view of the body. I then opened the head and found an effusion of blood two or two and one half teaspoonful of surviceagulated blood in the anterior lobe of the right side of the brain. The brain matter was broken down with pressure from the clot, in extent, two inches in length by one in width. There was a general effusion in the front lobe of the brain on the surface. The clot of blood came from a rupture of the artery of the brain. We found all the arteries of the brain of survio-sification, which condition increased the hazard of rupture. This ossification of the arteries render them more brittle, more easily broken, viz., a less blow would cause rupture more easily than in a healthy condition of arteries The rupture taking place on the opposite side from the blow is quite a common accident. The injuries found were sufficient to produce death. I have examined Mr. Jimmie Keaton's head, and find a cut that was evidently cut with a knife of sharp instrument. A rock or brick would not have made such a cut. I found two bruises on Mr. Keaton-one on the hip and one some four inches higher. The abrasion on Mr. Martin in the front or forehead was, in my opinion, caused by the fall from
