1st. A word as to its origin. It was established in Pennsylvania by J. J. Upchild, who was born in North Carolina lived awhile in this State, Georgia and Alabama; then before the war moved to Meadville, Penn., where in 1838 he organized the first lodge of A. O. U. W. The year following the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania was organized. Being himself a mechanic it was at first an effort to organized and the property of the pr ize working men into a society for mutual improvement, and at the same time to provide a fund for the widows and orphans of deceased members. In this respect, at least, its origin was like that of Masonry and Odd Fellowship, and other charitable or-ganizations—and as for that matter, the Church itself—born among the poor and toiling masses. It soon outgrew the expec-tation of its friends, and received into its fellowship men of all ranks and spread over the whole country from Maine to California, until now it is the largest co-operative nia, until now it is the largest co-operative insurance society in the world, having in force over 215,000 policies and carrying 430 hundreds of millions of dollars of insurance. By way of comparison, let me say nearly as much as is carried by the N. Y. Mutual, 3 times as much as is carried by Mutual Benefit, 2½ times as much as is carried by the Northwestern, 5 times as much as the Pannaylyania Mutual—all large as the Pennsylvania Mutual—all large companies. At the same time it is about twice as much as the Knights of Honor, about 3 times the Royal Arcanium. So you see we are no baby. But not only are we the largest co-operative insurance com-pany in the world, we are also the cheapest. having the lowest death rate. While as I have stated, the average of human life is essentially uniform, there is, of course, a varying proportion, according to care and skill with which a company selects its risks, so that by taking only good risks, the probabilities of life are lengthened or rather the death rate is diminished, and in co-operations of the company of the co-operations portion, according to care an ment. And, we have this lower death rate, notwithstanding we are the oldest co-operative company of any importance.

During last year our death rate was 9.72 to 1,000, Knights of Pythias (organized in 1877), 13.9 to 1,000, Knights of Honor (organized in 1874), 13.9 to 1,000, while other years showed correspondingly to our advantage. So that to those to whom cheapness, as well as security is an item, I know of no place where insurance could be better carried than in the A. O. U. W.
