THE PARMERS' MOVEMENT VS. THE

The address of the Farmers' Association, issued by their Executive Committee, prblished in another column, deserves some consideration. If the barges made in this address against the State of South Caroling be true, then sorely a change is necessary. But how will a change help things, for the power has always been in the people, and it they have misused that power from the foundation of this government, what hope have we that they will do better in the nture If "South Carolina has never had a republican form of government," whose fault is it? Before the war South Jarolina's State government was regarded verywhere as one of the ablest and best managed in the Union. This is the first e we have ever heard it charged that South Carolina's government "has never n lepublican." This is a serious arge, and one that will detract greatly om the good name we have enjoyed uneculiar force just at this time, when we are about to refund our State debt. th charges lower our State's credit, and thereby make it harder to borrow noney or float bonds. Our State bonds re now offering for less than they did a irt time ago. However, let it come, as have a change, for we are not in favor ach a form of government since 1729when our State government was estabished we shall be very glad to have lished we shall be very glad to have the scales fall from our eyes, even at this te day. We are in for anything that Il give us a better government, more ciently administered, but we do sot leve in changing at every man's re-Stability is one of the requisite atures of a good government, and one hat is constantly changing thereby adnits that it is inefficient and weak; this e are unwilling to do unless we are first wn sufficient reasons for the change. Our last Legislature was composed almost entirely of farmers, and if they did not give us some relief, what hope have we > ame ranks in the same way? We are for a "government of the people by the people, and for the people." We are also in favor of a full investigaion of the charges made in this address and we hope to see the issues raised in this indictment settled, and when once settled settled forever. Let us never again have our dear mother State charged exists their greatest weakness. Those who seek reform should study carefully ad single out the changes necessary, and ight for them. It is a hard enough battle to fight for the reforms most necessa ry, without taking in the wholesale line of another set of men chosen from the

Such charges are calculated to prove puits detrimental to the future growth and development of our State. They will tend to drive off those who are seeking fields of investment, for no shrewd business man would care to settle under an "aristocratic oligarchy." Consequently, it is the duty of every good citizen to repel such charges if they are not true. If all these charges are true, they prove that we have a very pusillaninous people. We are ready to admit that we have not a perfect governmentsome changes are essentiai; but we do not believe it is as bad as represented in this address. We know it is not. In other words, we would plead "not guilty." Let the trial proceed.

A cruel bit of sarcasm is credited to a Republican wit of Washington. He says that bout the only prominent feature about Harrison's administration is that it is making the administration of Hayes appear quite respectable.

Judge J. J. Maher, of Barnwell, has been commissioned as codifier of the statute laws of South Carolina, to perform which duty he was selected by the Legislature at its recent session, at which an Act was passed providing for the revision, digest and arrangement of the statute laws, and the formation of a penal code for this State. The Board of Directors of the Clemson College held their first meeting in Columbis last week. An organization was effected by the election of Col. R. W. Simpson, of Pendleton, as Chairman, or President, and of J. E. Wanamaker, of St. Matthews, as Secretary and Treasurer. An Executive Committee was elected, consisting of the following named gentlemen: R. W. Simpson, J. L. Orr, R. E. Bowen, D. K. Norris and Allan Johnstone. This committee was charged with the duty of obtaining plans and specifications for the erection of necessary buildings. A committee of five was appointed to secure all information as to the best plans of study now in vogue throughout the various agricultural colleges of the country, and to plan a curriculum therefrom. Mr. B. W. Edwards was appointed a committee of one to frame by laws for the government of the board of trustees. After much discussion on various subjects, looking to the securing of all information which will leave the board in readiness to aclaimmediately upon the termination of of the suit now pending in Washington, the meeting adjourned subject to the call of the President.

For four years the Democratic party in the State has been deeply agitated, and efforts have been made at the primaries and conventions to secure retrenchment and reform, and a recognition of the needs and rights of the masses. The first farmers' convention met in April, 1886. Another in November of the same year perfected a permanent organization under the name of the "Farmers' Association of South Carolina." This association, representing the reform element in the party, has held two annual sessions since, and at each of these four conventions, largely attended by representative farmers from nearly all the Counties, the demands of the people for greater economy in the government greater efficiency in its officials and a fuller recognition of the necessity for cheaper and more practical education

In each of the two last Democratic State conventions the "farmers' movement" has had a large following, and we only failed of controlling the convention of 1888 by a small vote-less than twenty-five—and that, too, in the face of the active opposition of nearly every trained politician in the State.
