TEACHERS' COLUMN.

All communications intended for this Column should be addressed to D. H. RUSSELL, School Commissioner, Anderson, S. C.

At Beaverdam things have taken on new life, and the people have put up a new and comfortable school building, and have a competent teacher in the person of Miss Lillie Bigby.

Our next call was upon Mr. J. V. Vermillion, at Central, where we found a goodly array of pupils of all ages, and evidently of bright minds.

We were told there was a colored school at Rock Creek, but we drove there at nine o'clock in the morning and found no teacher, and only two or three boys playing ball.

We made a short but pleasant call on Miss Laura Ellis, who is in charge of the primary department at the Williamson Female College.

F. J. Washington has charge of the Williamson Colored School, and is doing efficient work, of which he gave us proof in some classes put up at the blackboard.

It is always pleasant for us to go to Shiloh by reason of past associations. We made a visit there last week, and found Miss Lou Wyatt at the helm guiding things with a firm and steady hand.

At Mt. Pleasant, near Beaverdam Church, we found a colored school being taught by A. I. Parker. We are inclined to think this man has mistaken his calling in trying to teach.

A dog on exhibition at the New York bench show is valued at $5,000, and belongs jointly to two gentlemen of that city. When dogs get to be so valuable that it takes two men to own one, it is about time to propound Socrates' celebrated conundrum, "Whither are we drifting?"

The State of Georgia has sold the Okefenokee swamp. It takes in part of Christian, Ware and Clinch counties and contains about 250,000 acres.

BILL ARP'S PHILOSOPHY.

Atlanta Constitution. A few days ago the Jews celebrated the feast of Purim—a feast to commemorate the deliverance of their forefathers from destruction at the hands of Haman.

The Jews were called in the olden times a peculiar people and they are peculiar now. Was there ever a race so true to the traditions of their fathers? Was there ever a people so zealous, so constant, so steadfast in their religion and yet so tolerant, so considerate and so unwilling to proselytize those of another faith?

Now, every town has got some musical talent, and so has young people who are restless for something to do in the way of pleasant entertainments. Let them gather the amateurs and train them in this beautiful cantata. It will take a month of hard work—earnest work—but it will pay at last.

Long live our beautiful queen, Long live our noble king, God is the refuge of his people.

A Child Comits Suicide.

FLEMINGBURG, Ky., March 23.—Little Mamie Markwell was one of the prettiest and brightest girls in the school about a mile from this place. She was a lovely and unusually precocious child, gentle in disposition and a favorite in the countryside for miles around.

Mamie, who had always been a model scholar, felt the disgrace keenly and returned to her seat in tears. She was depressed during the rest of the session, and when the school was finally dismissed, with her face burning with shame and downcast eyes, she hurried home.

Upon the father's return in the evening she was called and, receiving no answer, Mrs. Markwell ascended to the room. The child was lying on the bed, evidently asleep. The mother endeavored to arouse her, but discovered that the little one was a corpse.

How's This!

We offer One Hundred Dollars reward for any case of Oatarrh that cannot be cured by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure.

great reverence for his memory. What a comfort it must be to a man in his old age to realize that his life's work has been a comfort to his fellow men, and will live after him and continue to be a comfort.

Our young people have recently had this cantata on the boards, and have twice delighted the public with its performance. It took about a month of practice and rehearsal to make it a success, but it was a success, and has done more to elevate anything that has transpired in this community.

Such pleid indifference was depressing. It was impossible to talk freely under such conditions, and in a few minutes I rose to go. My hosts did not ask me to remain longer, and I felt that my visit was unavailing.

All this was so unlike country people that I began to suspect some mystery. Half an hour's ride brought me to the house of my old friend, Colonel Jones, where I was to spend the night.

"Colonel," I said suddenly, as we smoked our pipes after supper, "do you know anything about the people at the next house, where I stopped on my way here this afternoon?"

Justice for a Negro Armorer.

NEW ORLEANS, March 23.—A negro received justice last night from an organization composed exclusively of Southern men that he had intended to do to a colored man for holding him while he was being whipped for stealing the $30.

When he returned from drilling he found his watch and money gone, and had Gilbert Jones and the porter of the armory arrested, locked up and kept in jail all night.

"I hate to tell about it," he said, "but I must go on. Hunter learned from his cousin that Mary had been seen holding clandestine meetings with a union officer in a secluded spot not far from her home. The husband watched and waited for his wife. He waited and waited. Mary wondered why Jack had suddenly grown so cross and silent, but she made the best of it, thinking that he had some trouble on his mind.

"Just about twilight one day Jack came home from the field where he had been at work and found Mary missing. He instantly left the house and ran to the top of a neighboring hill. He saw below her he saw his wife and a handsome union officer parting from each other in the most affectionate fashion. They embraced and kissed after the manner of lovers.

A MOUNTAIN TRAGEDY.

WALLACE P. REED.

It was late one summer afternoon when I rode up to a little farmhouse in the Tennessee mountains, and paused for a brief rest and a drink of water.

Two persons were sitting on the piazza—a man and a woman—plain country people, past middle age—just such a pair as one would expect to find in a quiet little mountain cottage.

The farmer and his wife offered me a comfortable rocking chair, and a negro woman brought me a gourd of cold spring water.

I took it for granted that they were shy in the presence of a stranger, and so I proceeded to make myself agreeable by praising the scenery and complimenting the place and its surroundings.

When he was released he told Joe Allen that if he had to wait a hundred years he would get even with him.

He Was an Atlanta Drummer.

Last Monday night, says the West Point, Ga., Press, some of our fun-loving boys took a fresh drummer from Atlanta out for a walk.

"I know you think that he is a drummer, but he is no drummer," said the man who was with me when I saw the fellow. "He is a drummer, all right, but he is a drummer in a different sense from what you mean."

"He is a drummer, all right, but he is a drummer in a different sense from what you mean," said the man who was with me when I saw the fellow. "He is a drummer, all right, but he is a drummer in a different sense from what you mean."

"He is a drummer, all right, but he is a drummer in a different sense from what you mean," said the man who was with me when I saw the fellow. "He is a drummer, all right, but he is a drummer in a different sense from what you mean."

"God forgive you!" she cried.

"You have killed my brother, and broken my heart!"

"It was only too true. Mary knowing how strong Jack was for the southern cause had never told him about her union brother, but when the young officer was in the neighborhood the two had secretly met several times.

"Mary looked at the man's haggard face, and noticed his trembling limbs. "Jack," she said, "you are as good a man as ever lived, but you have blighted my life by your mistake or crime. I can never love you again, but my heart is full of pity. Let us live here until God calls us away. I will try to do my duty, but do not speak to me, for I cannot answer you. Here is one kiss for our old love, and now let us bear our sorrow in silence until the spell is broken."

"The colonel threw himself into a chair and sighed. "There is nothing more to tell," he said.

"Those two unfortunates have not spoken to each other in twenty-five years. They are kind and patient, but I am afraid they will never come together. Jack was paralyzed just after his great trouble, and his wife has been very good to him in her day. Sad story, isn't it?"

Cost of a Canning Factory.

Interesting Figures for Farmers and Fruit Growers.

To the Editor of the News and Courier: As my article on the canning industry has awakened such interest and you solicit further information for your readers, I shall endeavor to be more explicit and give figures.

I herewith submit estimates of cost of plant and the necessary articles of machinery for canning 2,000 three-pound or 2,750 two-pound cans per day. Can be used in connection with steam or set in brick.

One scalding kettle. One exhaust kettle. One process kettle. Two scalding baskets. Two exhaust crates. Two process crates. One crane.

Three furnace doors. Three grate bars. Two gasing frepots. Two soldering machines. Two three-pound soldering cappers. Two capping irons. One forging stake. One forging handle. Two pair can tongs. Vice, hammer, etc.

This outfit can be purchased in Baltimore for $150 f. o. b., and the freight from Baltimore to Charleston by rail will be $2 per ton of 2,000 pounds. The purchaser can, by instructions sent with outfit, put up and operate it without the aid of skilled help.

It will require fifteen hands to successfully operate it, as follows: One processor, one capper, one tipper, twelve peelers and packers. The latter could be done by women, boys, or girls. In Maryland processors, cappers and tippers receive $2.50 per day, peelers and packers $1 per day, but often farmers do their own processing, which could be done in this case. Thus the farmer doing his own processing could supervise the capper and tipper. This labor being simple it could be had for $1 per day.

Thus the labor necessary for packing the above number of cans would consist of: One processor (farmer himself) $2.50. One capper and tipper, $1 each. 12.00. Twelve hands (peelers and packers) 6.00. Total $45.00.

—Mr. Edison has a new novelty on which he is working—a clock to talk the time. Instead of a blank sound, it will say "One," "Two," etc., at the proper hours. For an alarm it will say, in so many words, "Get up," in a stentorian and commanding voice.

—In Siam you can get good board for 45 cents a week, and this includes washing, the use of two servants to run errands, tickets to shows, three slaves, and all the cigars you can smoke. This sounds delightful until you learn that it is almost impossible to earn 45 cents a week in Siam.

—"What would you do," asked a pompous man, of a little fellow who had been bold enough to dispute his word in an argument, "if you had as much sense as I've got?" "I'd go at once and look for more," was the startling reply, "before what little I had died for want of society."

—From the wallet of a murderer, robber and burglar recently captured in New York was taken a slip of paper, on which was written: "Keep good company or none." "Honestly is the best policy." "Drink leads to ruin." "Honor thy father and thy mother." "Civilty costs nothing." "Do not mock at sacred things."

—It was shown in a lawsuit at New England town the other day that one Ebenezer Skinner made affidavit that a certain remedy had cured him of rheumatism of twenty years' standing, and all he charged for this swearing was fifty cents. He had never had the rheumatism in his life.—Detroit Free Press.

—A printer's error has been detected in the last issue of the Bible from the Cambridge Press. In Isaiah xlviii, 13, the word "foundation" is begun with an "n" instead of an "f." The mistake was discovered by a young son of Rev. Dr. H. Adler, who has received the standing reward of a guinea offered for the detection of such an error.

—A little girl died of diphtheria in Chicago, and her remains were transported to Zaniesville, Ohio, where the casket was opened in a relative's house. Forty-five cases of diphtheria in Zaniesville, within sixteen deaths, are already the result of that careless step, and there is no saying when the ravages of the fell disease will stop.

—An exchange says "one third of the fools of the country think they can beat the lawyer in expounding law, one-half think they can beat the doctor healing the sick, two-thirds of them think they can beat the minister preaching the gospel, and all of them know they can beat the editor in running the newspaper."—Florida Facts.

—London has no Sabbath mail. At ten o'clock Saturday night the postoffice is closed, and no letters are received or delivered, and no one is worse for this suspension of business. The employees of the office have an unbroken day of rest. Business men are far better off, and it pays. If no letters were mailed, delivered, or carried in the United States on Sabbath, no branch of industry would suffer, nor important institution would be harmed, and busy men and women everywhere would be profited by the change.

—The month of February, 1886, was in one respect the most remarkable in the world's history. It had no full moon. January had two full moons, so had March, but February had none. Do you realize what a rare thing this was? It had not occurred since the time of Washington, nor since the discovery of America, nor since the beginning of the world. And it will not occur again, according to the computation of astronomers, for—how long do you think?—5,000,000 years. Was not that a truly wonderful month?

Confirmed.

The favorable impression produced on the first appearance of the agreeable liquid fruit remedy Syrup of Figs a few years ago has been more and more confirmed by the pleasant experience of all who have used it, and the success of the proprietors and manufacturers of the California Fig Syrup Company.
