THE ASSESSMENT OF PROPERTY.

Section 219 of the General Statutes of this State provides that "all property shall be valued for taxation at its true value in money," &c., and the person making the return is required to swear that the value at which his property is returned is its true market value "in money." We are not going to say anything hard against anybody, but we shall endeavor to show the folly of the present mode of returning property in this State. For instance, the property in Anderson County, both real and personal, is really worth, and would bring at public sale for cash, more than double the amount for which it is returned. That is, its actual value is more than twice as great as the value fixed on it by our people on their ocths. We do not, by this assertion, mean to charge our people with anything wrong, but they have gradually fallen into this mode, aided by our County Auditors, who usually are willing to take it just as low as the people will allow.

This way of returning property for less State, and to return all property at its true value would have only one pecuniary effect, and that would be to lower the number of mills to be levied. If the property was returned at twice its present assessed value, the levy would be about 51 to 51 mills, instead of 101 to 11 mills. It would also set forth to the world the true value of our property, and thus make us to appear not to be so in South Carolina, and should be wiped out. It will not cost our people a single cent, and will give us a financial showing that will be of benefit to us as a State. Of course, it would not be just for one County to make returns at true value while the other Counties in the State continue the present system of returning the property at less than half its real value. There should be an understanding among our Auditors all over the State, and all property should be returned at its true value. Some men dislike to swear their property is worth a certain amount when they know it is actually worth more than double that sum. We desire to see such steps taken as will put us all right on this subject.

There is a certain tract of land not far from this city that appears on the tax books to be worth $300, that was sold only a few days since for $2,400. This is an illustration that illustrates the necessity of getting right. South Carolina is not so poor, if her citizens would return their property as they should.

Let the law be enforced and all property be valued for taxation at its true value

The cotton-picker recently tried near Rolling Fork, says a Mississippi paper, not only captured the cotton, but gathered in limbs, stalks, real estate and all, and then scattered the mass all over the field. It took ten darkies to pick up after it, and the machine was declared a failure. A good, spry descendant of Ham is the best cotton picking machine yet introduced in this country by our enterprising Yankee friends. If they succeed in making a better one we will buy that as we did the ones introduced here

Through the Greenville News we learn that Colonel James A. Hoyt, editor of the Bapiist Courier and President of the State Baptist Convention, has been invited to deliver an address at the anniversary meeting of the American Baptist Education Society, in Chicago, on the 27th of May. The invitation was forwarded through Dr. Justin A. Smith, editor of the Chicago Standard, and has been accepted by Colonel Hoyt. The Education Society is one of the largest and most influential Baptist organizations in the country, and Colonel Hoyt's selection to address its anniversary meeting as a representative of the denomination in South Carolina is a compliment of a high order, and one which the Colonel's constituents will pronounce worthily

They hammered each other until the engine struck them. One was killed, the other is still alive, but his skull is crushed. The engineer was unable to stop the train in time to save them.

Louisville, April 7 .- It is just learned here that Harper's Ferry, in Henry County, was almost completely destroyed by the tornado. The houses were not far apart and every one of them was directly in the have done 'Ben's' heart good to have course of the tornado. Men, women and children were buried beneath the ruins. Not a house remained standing, and the whole surrounding country was covered with wreckage. Mrs. Laura Thomas, wife of a farmer, was found dead by the side of a large tree about one hundred yards from her home. An infant child of a farmer named Fletcher was found beneath the ruins of its father's residence smothered. Seven or eight others were injured badly, but not fatally. Murrell let fall his pistol and surrendered. It was thought the other murderer, William Carpenter, was also hiding in his father's house. It was surrounded and his mother said he was in the loft and the man who entered would have his head blown off. Elbert Timmerman daringly went up but found no one there, the old woman probably having hood winked the men to allow her son to escape. On receipt of Intendant Denny's telegram this morning asking if he should burn the house to capture Carpenter the Governor sent State Constable Richburg and Adjutant General Bonham on a special train with in-structions to the effect to capture Carpenter and bring both men to Columbia. They arrived here to night with Murrell, who is now in Richland jail where he before the Supreme Court is decided.—

In 1860 there were two millionaires and no the disease would not necessarily have been fatal had Price not been addicted of the former and 3 millions of the latter. of the former and 3 millions of the latter. The National Banking system is largely responsible for this state of affairs, a few men having it in their power to control the volume of money in circulation.

Here is an object lesson, given by the Knights of Labor Journal, that you will do well to study ;

Does the national bank system tend to the concentration of wealth in the hands of the bankers? Let us look at this a moment. The best known bank in the United States is probably the Chemical National Bank of New York. Its original capital stock was $300,000, and the par value of its shares was $100. A little while ago ten shares of this bank were sold at auction and brought $45,000. Now, just figure this out. If ten shares are worth $45,000, how much are 3,000 shares worth? $13,680,000, is it not? No wealth concentrated in the hands of the national bankers, eh! Where do you suppose the $13,380,000, which represen the difference between the original in came from? Have you an idea that they planted the money in their backyard and dug it up again after the crop had ripen. Another little fact which it may not be months and has been doing so for years.
