

Gov. John B. Gordon, of Georgia, was elected to the United States Senate on last Tuesday by the Legislature of that State, to succeed Hon. Joseph E. Brown, who declined re-election.

The great question now is who will be Speaker of the 52nd Congress. Among those more prominently mentioned for the position are Crisp, of Georgia, Byrum, of Indiana, Mills, of Texas, Flower, of New York, and Breckinridge, of Kentucky. We would like to see Crisp, of Georgia, in the speaker's chair, but but think it would be better for the party to elect a Western man to that position, and that man should be Byrum, of Indiana.

It has been decided that the inaugural ceremonies of Gov. Tillman and the other State officers will be held in Columbia about December 4. Col. Irby has made arrangements with the railroads to pass those wishing to be present, at State fair rates. A platform, large enough to hold the members of the General Assembly, will be built in front of the capitol, and the ceremony will be held there all can see and hear. Col. Irby expects that there will be some 10,000 persons present. Capt. Tillman will remain in Columbia from the convening of the General Assembly.

The merchants of Anderson are doing all in their power to draw trade to this place, and thereby build up our city. They have large stocks of goods, and sell them at reasonable prices. No one need leave Anderson with the complaint that they cannot get the worth of their money in goods of any kind. Competition is very sharp, and that brings prices down to the lowest possible price. But there are some who grumble and complain at the very idea of buying goods at any price. Still there are others who always seem willing to give a fair price for what they want to buy. Even the most complaining can find what they want here at reasonable prices. The merchants also are paying the very top of the market for cotton, and are not in any way connected with the low price of cotton just now. They can only pay for it according to what they can get for it. Others may say and think as they please, but we shall stand up for our merchants as honest, fair business men.

All the reports from Berlin are true, Professor Koch has discovered a preventive and a cure for consumption. Naturally people will have their doubts, for the news is apparently too good to be true, but the fact that the German emperor has personally given the professor $250,000, and has recommended the appropriation of a large sum of money to enable him to prosecute his experiments, would seem to make it tolerably certain that the new discovery is all that is claimed for it. There is reason to hope that the remedy really destroys the bacillus of consumption. The effect will be practically to abolish the disease, and save millions of human lives every year. It is hard to have complete faith in the professor until further developments, but the progress of medical science has accomplished so much that it would take a very bold man to fix its limits, and set bounds to its advancement. Then the fact that the German emperor gave Koch a quarter of a million dollars means something. He is not in the habit of throwing away his cash. Money talks.

The Atlanta Constitution says there is still some talk about the force bill in certain quarters. At the December session it will be possible for the Republican majority in Congress to pass the Lodge bill, and perhaps even make appropriations to secure its enforcement. All this is possible, but it is hardly probable. The Republican Congressmen generally well satisfied that the people of the country do not demand such a measure, and in fact are opposed to it. With the masses clamoring for peace, it is not likely that their representatives will vote for a bayonet election law. But, under the circumstances, the placing of this bill on the statute books would amount to nothing. It would be a dead letter. With public opinion solidly against it, and every prospect of the election of a Democratic President in 1892, the attempt to enforce bayonet control of the ballot box would be a failure. The Lodge bill is dead. It may be galvanized into spasmodic action in December, but it will only stagger about for a while and then collapse. To all intents and purposes the thing is dead.

This year completes a century since Dr. Franklin signed the first petition that was presented to Congress for the abolition of slavery, and two years hence will end the century since Eli Whitney invented the cotton gin. The machine enabled the grower to clean for market a thousand pounds of cotton daily instead of five or six. In 1791 the export of cotton was 189,500 pounds. In 1890, by means of Whitney's gin, it had risen to more than 41,000,000. The machine was the great ally of slavery, and the Yankee King Cotton. No industrial revolution ever wrought so much wrong and did so much mischief. It was the chief of the causes that arrested the antislavery movement that followed the Revolution, and was more persuasive than the efforts of Dr. Franklin and his society. Whitney's gin cleaned the cotton. A new invention will pick it. The other day, at the Memphis Cotton Exchange, a bale of cotton was placed on exhibition which was the first ever picked by machinery. The inventor asserts that it will do the work of fifty men. And if he is correct, the Memphis Avantech says that "the negro question is solved, and he will have to seek for employment elsewhere." The popular valid objection against the colonizing of the negro has been that he was essential to the gathering of the cotton crop. It would be a remarkable fact if the century that began with "an invention which doomed the negro to slavery" should end with another that makes his labor valueless. The conclusion of the Avantech, however, is so sweeping a generalization. Laborers will still be wanted in the cotton States, even if cotton picking should be done by machinery, and there is the other fact that the attachment to the soil on the part of this particular laborer is very slow and clinging. The deportation of a great and unwilling free population is not a reasonable proposition. Since the war there has been no objection to the exodus of the negro from his home if he desired to go. But there has been no such exodus, and no sign of a general disposition to go. Poverty has, of course, detained him, but not against his will. Nevertheless, the fact recorded by the Avantech is very interesting and suggestive.

As an exchange truly says, there are some who never seem to believe themselves capable of anything; they see others press forward to attempt and achieve and shrink back into a deplorable inactivity. Having no faith in themselves they undertake nothing and effect nothing. If they are convicted of some fault or bad habit they have so little hope of being able to cure it that they scarcely make an effort. If some avenue of usefulness and honor opens up before them they draw back, almost sure that they should not succeed, and decline to enter. If some duty presses urgently upon their conscience they try to quit its promptings by pleading inability. Thus their lives pass away in uselessness, their faculties do not develop or their characters improve, their abilities are wasted, they dwindle into insignificance, and all this, not for lack of power, but for the want of a confidence and courage that would set that power into good practical working power.

The Washington Post says the industrial development of the South during the last ten or fifteen years has been the most interesting feature of our national growth. It may be doubted if, in any age or country, its parallel has been witnessed. The authentic statements of the industrial growth of that section, as they have been published from year to year, have attracted world-wide attention and excited a profound interest, an interest not confined to business circles, but extending to all intelligent observers of public events. Recognizing the universality of this feeling, the management of Public Opinion has decided to offer prizes of $50, $30 and $20 for the best three essays on "The Industrial Future of the South." It is a great theme—so great that only a broad mind can comprehend it; but, inasmuch as it has been frequently and ably discussed in the press of all sections, and in many commercial conventions, it is reasonable to suppose that the invitation of Public Opinion will call out a large number of valuable papers, throwing new light on a topic that is becoming more and more attractive to all citizens whose patriotism is not limited to any one part of our common country.

WHO SHALL BE OUR SENATOR? MR. EDITOR: One of the most important acts which the Legislature about to assemble will be called upon to perform, is the selection of a United States Senator to succeed Governor Hampton. It is important, with the view of obtaining a competent representative—one who will not only reflect credit on the State, but one who will be some real service to the people of the State and of the South.

A wise selection is important at this time, because by that act the new Legislature will demonstrate to the people that to select for their officers, real representatives of the interest of the people, or mere party hacks or beat-out politicians. They should select a man of character, firmness and ability—a man who knows and will maintain the rights of the people—a conservative man, who will satisfy all classes. Anderson County suggests for that position James L. Orr, and many beyond her borders believe that he fills the bill, and that his selection will give more general satisfaction than the selection of any other man in South Carolina.

In 1874, when our County had been in the hands of the Republicans for six years, he, only 22 years old, did gallant service for both the County and State, and when the Mackey House had to be captured by force, if necessary, he was selected as chairman, and, at the head of the column, with his own hands, forced open the door, which was guarded by twenty-five of the State constables, and held it open until the whole Wallace House went in. In the memorable service of 1876-77, he was conspicuous for his energy and ability in setting the State on her feet again. In the discharge of his duty as Solicitor he gave universal satisfaction, being firm, zealous, courteous and able.

Though it was believed by many that he could have made the strongest race against Capt. Tillman, he refused to oppose the movement, and when the anti-Tillman conference was held in August, it was his eloquence and influence that contributed largely to the result. He is not a politician or office seeker, but if selected will serve the people more faithfully than any man in the State.

TILLMAN MAN. —It is said that more tobacco and alcoholic liquors were used during the last three months than ever before in this country. Such, at least, is the report of the Internal Revenue Department, which shows, according to an estimate made by the New York News, an increase in revenue from these articles for the months of July and August of over one million and three quarters of dollars compared with the same period last year. In reference to alcohol, it may be remarked that there has been greater activity than usual in the manufacture of articles of which it is an ingredient.

—There are as many as 556 light houses round the coast of the United States. —There are seven or eight negroes in Texas, most of them ex-slaves, who are worth about ten thousand dollars each. —During the past seventy-three years the American Bible Society has distributed over 62,786,000 copies of the Scripture. —It is said that for more than fifty years $355, which was originally intended to be applied to the education of slaves in Georgia, has been lying in the Bank of Scotland.

—The bed of the Feather River in California, which is being laid bare, will yield from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 of gold if the ground proves rich as that which has been worked.

—If a woman were as careful selecting a husband to match her disposition as she is in selecting a dress to match her complexion, there would be fewer unhappy marriages than there are. —A Connecticut boy is famous just now, because he has a tin whistle one and a half inches in diameter and several inches in length. He swallowed it down the top while playing on it.

—The death rate among the Indians who aim to live like white people is three times that of those who continue to live a semi-wild life. The Pawnee Tribe lost more men by lung troubles in the last ten years than they lost in battle during the previous thirty. —Mrs. Elizabeth Bell of Spartanburg County is 82 years old. Not wishing to be idle this fall she went to the cotton field and picked 400 pounds. Meantime she knit five pairs of socks. If there is another woman over fourscore years who can beat her, we would like to hear from her.

—Africa has now at work within her borders 10 American, 12 British and 12 Continental missionary societies. There are more than 700 ordained missionaries and more than 7,000 native preachers. It is estimated that there are, both white and native, about 175,000 communicants and 800,000 adherents. —Mr. R. J. Willis, of Trapp County, Ga., boasts a prolific sow. She is a large Guinea and Berkshire cross. On May 14, 1889, she gave Mr. Willis eleven pigs; on February 7, 1890, she gave him fourteen pigs, and on October 27, 1890, she gave him twelve more, making thirty-seven pigs in seventeen months.

—"Prince" Russell Harrison told a St. Paul Globe man the other day that nobody could rightfully lay blame for the Republican defeat upon "pa's Administration." He said that the "poor, deluded farmers of the West" did not understand the McKinley bill, but would come to it in another two years. —A man owned a five-foot strip of land in New York city and quarreled with the owner of the adjoining property over the price of it. He then built two houses on the strip, which was a block long. The houses are four stories high, and but three feet wide inside, but have deep bow windows which are utilized for rooms.

—Wyoming has the only female company of regular State militia in the United States. The company was organized to celebrate the date of Wyoming's Statehood, and met with such success that it has decided to make the organization permanent; and the young ladies were mustered into the regular service of the State. —Recently, at the close of the celebration of a Buddhist festival in the province of Sze-Chuen, China, a number of organized mobs attacked several Christian villages, burning the buildings and looting their contents. Twenty native converts to Christianity were killed during the disturbance and their bodies thrown into the Yang-tse King River.

—A terrible conflagration occurred at Winslow, a town of Pike County, Indiana, last Friday morning. The whole town had been burned out of existence. The houses were all frame structures, and the fire spread with such rapidity that all the efforts of the people to extinguish it, proved unavailing. Not a house is left standing and 400 people are left without homes. —Mrs. L. A. Norman, of Decatur, Ill., while in Terre Haute, was informed that a letter awaited her at the postoffice, and upon opening it she was informed that the massive had been delivered to a lady of similar name residing in that city. Curiosity prompted her to call upon this Mrs. Norman, and the ladies made the unwelcome discovery that each had married Milton A. Norman. He was arrested.

—Col. A. K. McClure, of the Philadelphia Times, in a speech at the Southern Exposition in Montgomery, Ala., declared that the recent election by which a majority of the Northern and Southern members of Congress were of the same political faith, meant national peace. He said the verdict for peace could not be set aside unless the dominant party by excesses gave excuse therefor.

The Last Call Without More Money. If you owe me for Guano or otherwise you can consider this my last call through the newspapers. Please come and pay up for Guano, Mules, Buggies, Wagons and Harness, and save me the trouble and yourself the cost of collection by law. I will return you any further notice. Hoping to see you soon with money, I am yours, &c. J. S. FOWLER.

The public will be glad to learn that no house ever established in Anderson has been so successful in its business as the one on the public mind in such a short time as Flynn. His store is so jammed with eager buyers that the fourteen salesmen and ladies are not sufficient to wait on his more first-class men. He beats any man in the city for his buying and that is the great secret of his success. He claims to sell at five per cent, and no doubt he sells to persons who regard him as a man who is overjoyed to find that they can buy goods at 10 per cent. on New York Cost. This is a coming new for Anderson, and the public appreciate it. D. C. FLYNN.
