On Saturday evening a lot of about forty bales of cotton on the Savannah Valley platform caught fire, and in response to the alarm the fire companies ran to the scene with their usual promptness. In a few minutes four streams of water were playing on the fire, and it was quickly aubdued. It is supposed a spark from an engine started the fire, as the wind was favorable to such an accident. The cotton was damaged considerably, but the prompt action of the fire companies and citizens prevented what promised to be the destruction of both the cotton and the depot. Mr. Sylvester Bleckley had placed the cotton there, but as he had received way bills for it the loss does not fall upon him. Anderson's firemen, white and colored, fight fire bravely, with an eye single to the saving of burning property, fear-less of danger and regardless of the ruin-ing of their clothes, which frequently happens, and the loss falls on him whose suit s ruined. There is not a better volunteer fire department anywhere.

McGowan's brigade took a conspicuous part in it. The brigade was ordered in to retake the line which had been captured from Gen. Edward Johnson's division. The line was recaptured and held for eighteen hours, the stuggle being across the breast-works and the opposing lines not more than twenty steps apart. Gen. McGowan was wounded early in the battle and Col. J. N. Brown, of Anderson, took command. At times the rain fell in torrents, but the firing was kept up in one continuous roll. Last week just before going to press w learned of the unnatural and shocking homicide which had occurred near Pied mont, in Brushy Creek Township, the day before, and the facts we could then gather were meagre and our space was limited. We stated that Coroner Nance held the in-quest over the dead body, but find that was a mistake. Trial Justice J. D. Sitton, f that neighborhood, performed that duty. The citizens here were startled on learning of the dreadful tragedy, and every one was eager to hear the details of the affair. Soon after the news reached here on Vednesday the Sheriff received a telegram asking him to go to the scene and take charge of the prisoner, Wilson. In re-sponse to this Messrs. Bolt and Green secured a comfortable vehicle and went to the place, and putting the prisoner on a bed in the vehicle, brought him to this place; the trip apparently doing him no harm, though he was quite exhausted from loss of blood. The removal of Wilson was a precantionary measure, as there seems to be little doubt that he would have had instituted. have had justice hastily meted out to him by the citizens of the community had he remained there long. Feeling ran high, and the people were intensely excited and aroused.

On Friday afternoon we visited the prisoner in Jail. He was lying on a pallet and said he was comfortable. He is a fairly good looking man, a little under the average height and size, has dark hair and a reddish sandy moustache, and seemed to be intelligent and is a very good talker, though he is a man of little education. He extended his hand for a "shake" when we met him, and talked freely on all subjects except the cause why he killed his wife and the particulars of the killing. He said he might give statements concerning those things later. He said he was 34 years of age and his wife was five years his junior. They had been married about eight years, had three little children, the eldest about six years of age and the youngest not yet six months. He said he was a sober man and has been for the last eight or nine and has been for the last eight or nine years. He had made money at farming up to the last year or two and had loaned money. He said he was satisfied to die and wanted to be hung in public. He didn't wan't a lawyer, lest he would only be sent to the penitentiary. He wanted the Judge to give him four hours in which to speak, and he would tell the history of his life inst as it was. He supposed. The annual convention of the stock-holders of the Port Royal & Western Carolina Railroad was held in Augusta on the 10th inst. In the absence of President Alayander. Hon. W. L. His information was gathered from statements made by Wilson's sister and the oldest child, who were the only witnesses of the awful crime, and from neighbors who arrived at the house soon thereafter. The following is Mr. Garrett's statement, and is doubtless as nearly a correct account as can well be gotten of the murder: "One of the most horrible tragedies oc-curred last Tuesday morning in Brushy Creek Township that has ever occurred in the history of this County. W. H. Wil-son, better known as 'Bad' Wilson, coolly and deliberately attacked his innocent and unsuspecting wife with an open razor and om nitted one of the most cowardly and brutal murders that has ever been committed in this country.

"Wilson's father, a noble-hearted man was killed during the late war, after which Wilson's home surroundings were not favorable to the growth of a moral and elevated disposition, and he grew to manhood with the idea implanted in his mind that no creation of the Master's was as freely and fethbles as women hind. so frail and faithless as woman kind. McCully, and on the morning of May 13th This being the case, he was as a matter of the died. This being the case, he was as a matter of course jealous of his wife from the day of their marriage, and began at once to brutally mistreat her, accusing her of criminal intimacy with some of the best men in the community—men whose characters have ever been above suspicion—all without the shadow of reason. Among all those who knew her from her childhood to the deux of her ernel death, and he organized the following jury to inquire into the cause of the decease:

"Beginning at their marriage, for if re-ports be true he whipped her in less than a week, he never ceased his outrageous abuse until last Tuesday morning, when enough to last them perhaps the remainder of the summer. She was to leave the next day. Wilson's sister had come to stay awhile with them in order, if possible, to prevent his mistreating his wife. His brother John and wife spent Monday night with them. After breakfast they night with them. After breakfast they started for home a mile away. Mrs. Wilson went to a trunk and took out a piece of goods, and spreading it on the bed began to cut a little dress for one of the children. About that time Wilson come in and said he believed he would get ready and go to Greenville to see his mother. He asked his sister to put on a kettle of water, as he needed shaving, then turning to his wife he asked her to hand him the razor, which was lying on a shelf near her. This she did, and turned again to her work, perfectly innocent of the treachery of the foul fiend, whom she had long since ter, but had never suspected his intention of taking her life in such a cowardly way. His own sister states that she herself had stepped into the kitchen, which is only about eight feet away, a floor extending from one to other, for some object, leaving her brother whetting his razor. On entering the door on her return she saw him coolly and deliberately, without a word, walk up behind his wife, seize her by the hair, pull back her head and make a rake at her throat. His sister seized him, flung him out at the front door talling his wife. him out at the front door, telling his wife to make her escape. His wife snatched the baby from the cradle and fied to the kitchen, dropping it on the walk-way be-tween the houses, falling herself face fore-most in the kitchen door. Her little six year old daughter followed, screaming at the top of her voice. Wilson ran around the house, and the little girl states, jumped head up by the hair, run his hand under, cutting her throat from ear to ear, almos severing her head from her body. The little girl was asked if her mother said anything. With quivering lips she re-plied, 'When pa jumped on ma, she said

Marshall Jones Dead-Andrew Palmer

On April 30th Marshall Jones was struck on the head with a hoe by Andrew Palmer, in the backyard of Mr. N. A.

S. J. McCully was sworn, and stated that the negroes were quarreling and cursed each other and then Marshall started towards Andrew, who, the witness thought, gave back a step or two, but he did not know whether it was to get out of the way or to get room to make a lick. He didn't think Marshall attempted to hit Andrew. Andrew hit only one blow Dr. Nardin, sworn, said he was called been carrying her through a special course of brutality, violently beating her for eight nights in succession, and at the same time telling her it had come to where somebody had to die. Seeing she could driven into the brain. The hole in the somebody had to die. Seeing she could driven into the brain. The hole in the stand it no longer, she resolved to leave skull was about 1½ inches by 2 inches. An him and go to her father's, to which he consented, agreeing to give her the children, a good mileh cow, all the household and kitchen furniture, and provision the skull was the remote cause, and the skull was the remote cause, and the inflammation causing the abscess was the immediate cause of death.

In view of the evidence the jury pronounced this verdict:
"Marshall Jones came to his death May 13th, 1892, from a blow on the head inflicted with a hoe in the hands of Andrew Palmer, on the 30th day of April, A. D., 1892, at the home of N. A. McCully, in the city of Anderson, S. C., against the peace and dignity of the same State aforesaid."

There were only two witnesses to the homicide, it seems, one of whom was S. J. McCully, whose testimony is given above, and the other was the wife of Androw Palmer.

Mrs. Lucy Dean, the beloved wife of Mr. Samuel A. Dean, died at her home near Starr Station on Wednesday, 11th inst., after a long and painfull illness, being confined to her bed six or seven months. Mrs. Dean was fifty-nine years months. Mrs. Dean was fifty-nine years of age, and a daughter of Moses Dean, deceased. She was born and reared and had always resided in the section where she died, and greatly beloved by a wide circle of friends and relatives, all of whom will long cherish her memory. In early life she joined the Cross Roads Baptist Church, and throughout her life was a zealous and consistent. and throughout her life was a zealous and consistent member. She was a devoted consistent member. She was a devoted wife and an affectionate mother, and the bereaved husband and eight children who are left to mourn her death have the consolation of knowing that she is now at rest with the blessed Saviour. On the day following her death the remains were interred in the Cross Roads Churchyard, the funeral services being conducted by her nephew, Roy. I. R. Dean, of Texas, who was visiting the family.

On Friday afternoon, just forty-eight houes after the mother had been laid to rest. death again visited the household rest, death again visited the household and this time bore away a daughter and sister, Miss Rosa Dean, who had been in feeble health for several months with that ever fatal disease, consumption. Miss Dean was twenty-three years of age, and was highly esteemed by her friends and acquaintances. She, too, was prepared for the summons of death, and is now at rest with her devoted mother. Her re-mains were buried on Saturday at Cross Roads by the side of her mother
