Some Queer Old Laws. "Uncle Joe" Brown, of the County Clerk's office, is one of the queerest men in the Court House, and also one of the best informed. Whenever any questions of an especially puzzling nature comes up for settlement, and no one else can answer it, the seeker for information goes back to the room where "Uncle Joe" is working and he explains to their satisfaction. This sort of procedure is a matter of daily occurrence, and the old gentleman's encyclopedical knowledge is

The other day after a delegation of information-seekers had learned what they outfit as were guarding Fillmore. Generwere in search of they hung around "Uncle Joe's" desk to hear some of his reniniscenses which their questions called up fresh to his memory.

the statute books," he said meditatively. 'In the Eastern States many of the strict colonial laws stand unrepealed on the books. Of course, where they conflict with the most advanced ideas of to-day they have become dead letters. I was the victim of an attempt to revive one of the old statutes myself when I lived in Wash. ington City a good many years ago. I was the manager of the Washington Gas Works, and some religious enthusiasts brought a prosecution against me for violating the Sabbath by operating the works on Sunday. I knew that unless the works ran on Sunday there would be no gas on Monday night, and on the ground of public necessity felt sure I would be sustained in the suit.

"To my surprise I found the law not only against me, but learned that it was supplemented with severe penalties. For the first offence the penalty was a heavy fine, and for each succeeding offence a term of imprisonment. I finally had to settle the case out of Court by the payment of a considerable sum of money and the granting of some concessions. That law still stands on the books, but I have heard of no attempt to enforce it since my unhappy experience. "Tobacco is legal tender in Washington at the present time, thanks to another of the old colonial laws. In the days when Virginia had plenty of tobacco and very little money a law was passed which made the weed a legal tender for debt. If I were in Washington to-day and had a debt to pay, I could trundle a lot of tobacco down to my creditor's place of businees and pay the debt, and he would have no right to refuse the offer. It would be a surprise to the members of Congress ome day if they should find their salaries paid in tobacco. When this law was made what is now the District of Columbia was part of Virginia, and when it was ceded to the General Government it retained the old statutes.

"The queerest of the ancient laws which has been allowed to remain unrepealed in the District of Columbia is one which makes it a crime to deny unbelief in the Holy Trinity, and fixes the punishment at imprisonment. If that law was suddenly put into force to-day it would cause a lively agitation. It was on the books when John Quincy Adams was President of the United States, and he was a pronounced Unitarian. Every Sunday he would go to the little Unitarian Church down on 6th street, and lead in the singing. There was a strange spectacle during all that Administration of the President of the United States living in open violation of the law."-Indianapolis News.

Nine times a Bride.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 11 .- The divorce court records here will soon receive a very peculiar petition from Mrs. Sadie Crandall, the wife of the Rev. Walter Crandall, a Michigan minister, who will contest the separation. Mrs. Crandall took the initial steps this morning to secure an absolute divorce. She is thirty-two years old and a prepossessing woman. She has been married nine times within eight years, the preacher being her first and also her ninth hus band. He is also her second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth husband. According to the statement of the pe titioner Mr. Crandall is a marriage maniac. That is, he is ever seeking to be married, never insisting on a new bride but being perfectly content with Mrs. Crandall in that role. Owing to this matrimonial mania, Mrs. Crandall says her life has been a long and harrowing honeymoon. This remarkable couple were first married in Lansing, Mich., according to the forms of the Methodist Church. The Old World was selected for their honeymoon tour, and while in Dublin the clergyman told his bride he thought their marriage was not ecclesiastically perfect, because the parson who united them had not been ordained by the apostolic imposition of hands. He held that this was absolutely necessary and he made arrangements for another marriage in St. Patrick's cathedral in Dublin. Mrs. Crandall considered her husband very scrupulous, but she assented to the second ceremony, and there was another marriage. Mr. Crandall then learned that St. Patrick's had once been a Catholic cathedral, that the mass had been sung there, and that the cathedral had not been dedicated since it ceased to be used for Roman Catholic worship. This omission the preacher held to be fatal, and another marriage was ordered. Then he forced her to be married on board ship by a Presbyterian preacher, the Rev. Giles Knight. Attendance at one of Colonel Ingersoll's lectures convinced him that this was illegal, for there he heard John Calvin denounced. Marriages by Unitarians, Baptists, Spiritualists, and Swedenborgians followed, and then the wife, weary of the long record of marriages to the same man, left him and removed to this city, where she is now looking for a divorce. She has recently had letters from her husband telling her that he has ascertained that a Congregational marriage is the only one that has the indorsement of heaven, and that if she will only consent to a marriage in the congregational church he will forgive the flight

"Ever hear how General Baylor, of Confederate fame, with 160 men captured the entire United States Army in New Mexico ?" inquired Col. Arthur Burgeois, of New Orleans, at the Southern. "It was a very funny affair. I was one of Baylor's 160. And a more ragged and dilapidated set of fellows never followed Don Cesar de Baxan than we were when we struck New Mexico from Texas. Colonel Lyne, of the United States Army, was in command of Fort Fillmore, with 700 men splendidly equipped and accoutered. His commissary was full to overflowing, and we knew it. We were almost starved to death, but it looked a little too risky even for us dare devils to tackle such an al Baylor's masterful strategy asserted itself, though, just at the critical moment, and we marched out of New Mexico with full stomachs and wearing good clothes. We darted about with lightning rapidity, shouting, yelling and making more noise generally than bloodthirsty Comanches. Well, the tactics accomplished the purpose, for soon after daylight Colonel Lyne ent out an aide to treat with General Baylor. The only terms our stern commander would consent to was unconditional surrender of the fort, with all its tores or extermination. It is useless to say that the affrightened blue coats surrendered all they had and threw themselves upon our mercy. After we had disarmed them and searched their stores they found out what a weak and ragged lot we were and then they were mad enough to commit suicide. But it was too late then, and they made their way East as best they could, while we marched back to Texas with banners flying and

Ways of Washing.

According to the World of Fashion the hardest worked washerwomen in the world are the Koreans. They have to wash about a dozen dresses for their husbands, and, inasmuch as every man wears pantaloons or drawers so baggy that they would come up to his neck, like those of a clown, they have plenty to do. The washing is usually done in cold water, and often in running streams. The clothes are pounded with paddles until they shine like a shirt bosom fresh from a Chinese laundry. The Japanese rip their clothes apart for every washing, and they iron their clothes by spreading them on a flat board and leaning this up against the house to dry. The sun takes the wrinkles out of the clothes, and some of them have quite a lustre. The Japanese woman does her washing out of doors. Her wash tub is not more than six inches high, and is about as big around as the average dishpan. She gets the dirt out of the clothes by rubbing them between her hands. She sometimes uses Japanese soap, which is full of gresse, and she works away in her bare feet. The Chinese girls do their washing in much the same way. The pretty, short-haired beauties of Siam wear their gowns on them into the big river, and wash them while taking their bath,

When they get through, they trot up the steps of their floating houses, and, wrapping a clean sheet around their bodies, they slip off the wet clothes from under it and wring them out to dry. The washing in Egypt is usually done by the men. The Egyptian washerman stands on the banks of the Nile, and slaps the wet clothes, with a noise like the shot of a pistol, on the smooth stones at the edge of the running water, and such fellah women as wash pound the dirt out of their clothes in the same way. French women pound the dirt out with paddles. often slapping the clothes upon stones as

Frontier highwaymen would have had ard time wrestling with a bit of gold hat arrived here by Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express a few days ago. It came from the celebrated Harqua Hala mine, and was consigned to J. W. Hubbard and J. B. Bowers, the owners of that property, for coining at the United States mint. When the employees of the mint took look at it they were astounded. The reason was that it was the biggest lump of gold they had had the unhappiness to come in contact with, seeing that it was in one respect like many others, being not their own. It was of a somewhat conical shape, and seemed to have been emptied out of a gigantic slag pot. It did not belie its looks, for that was the way it had been shaped. It was the product of fortylive days' run at the Harqua Hala, and the tremendous bulk weighed 357 pound avoirdupois, and was stated to be of the

The thoughtful representatives of the owners of the big nugget telegraphed from point to 1 at at they progressed with it to the mint, sixty miles Southwest of Phœnix, and announced when it would arrive at the next station. This was n order to forestall any ambitious men with guns, for though aspiring highway-men were thus kept exactly posted as to when the gold might be expected, it also

The nugget was too big for any party of pandits to carry it off intact and secrete, and had they stopped the caravan on the way to the railroad they would have only had time to chisel off a thousand dollars or so till the pack of bloodhounds, which the have been on their trail. ### · A New Use for Monkeys.

GOSHEN, N. Y., July 6 .- There is an ancient saying, current among sailors, that monkeys can speak, but refrain from doing so lest they should be compelled to work. Aaron Howels, who owns a cherry farm near Goshen, N. Y., remembered this when, a year ago, he began to teach a couple of layer monkeys to nick his a couple of large monkeys to pick his fruit. The influx of California fruit to the Eastern markets has gradually so se-riously reduced the profits of the growers on the Atlantic seaboard that it would eat it nearly all up. Incidentally, Farmer Howells mention ed this to his cousin, who is the captain of an East India trader sailing from Boston. Capt. Howells replied that, on some of the islands near Siam, he had seen monkeys that had been trained to pick fruit, and did their work well. He saw no reason why the creatures should not is similarly utilized in Orange County. Farmer Howells' was very skeptical, but when, on his cousin's return from his next voyage, he brought home with him two very big Siamese apes, he began to train them at once. They learned very rapidly, and now the owner thinks they save him at least 50 cents a day each They climb better, pick more and eat less than the boys. Each monkey has a bag that contains about five pounds of fruit slung around his waist.

"They go up the tree like a rocket, said Mr. Howells, and, when their bags are full, they come down like the stick." A heap of empty sacks on the grassis ready for them, and they help themselves and return to their work. Moreover, with their toil, the farmer thinks, they cannot yet understand what they say, he conversations with each other. there is a spirit of rivalry between them is evident. When one plucks more cherries than the other he is somewhat offensively triumphant and his compan on is proportionately dejected.

Mr. Howells encourages competition by giving the more successful monkey me thing extra for his supper.

Lighting Trains by Electricity.

LANSING, MICH., July 4.—Professor J. McElroy, of this city, has solved the problem of lighting a train by electricity n a successful and economical manner The machine devised by Professor McElroy is a cylindrical dynamo in itself hich is attached to the forward axle of the locomotive. It will run for weeks without any attention whatever, and all it requires is a little oil occasionally. The wires run under the engine and are consimilar to the steam couplers now in use. The lights are incandescent and each car can be illuminated to whatever extent is

In each car a strong but powerful storage battery is placed. While the train is in motion the batteries become charged. er from the dynamo ceases, but automat cally the storage batteries come into play and light the train. ### Held to Strict Account.

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 8 .- Ex-Governor John Peter Richardson has left the quiet of his farm in the low-country, and to-day he appeared in the streets of Columbia for the first time in some months. He comes to investigate and repel the at-tack made upon the honesty of his adfund by Governor Tillman, through the columns of his organ. Governor Richardson brought Mrs. Richardson with him and they are quartered at the Hote. Jerome, where the latter is quite sick Owing to this the Ex-Governor has been unable to do anything to-day and says that he will remain here for several days to come. The Ex-Governor was gladly welcomed by his many friends in the tive of the News and Courier and asked about the cloud that has been raised over ais disbursement of the contingent fund he spoke very freely and displayed con-siderable feeling that the charge should rest upon him. He said he had not yet seen a copy of the paper in which the matter had appeared, but had seen references to it in other papers. Consequent y until he could carefully go over the gures quoted he could not say anything definite. He did say, however, that he knew those vouchers had been put up regularly, and believed that a proper search would reveal them. If there was anything wrong about the matter he was going to see it. He said he, as all other Gayagners had done had margin labely Governors had done, had merely looked over the bills when presented and when finding them correct signed them. It was the duty of the secretary to keep the youchers, and the comptroller had to issue the warrants. It may be necessary for him to locate Mr. Chazal, his former secretary, but he certainly intended to matter. This was the main thing that brought him to Columbia.

When the Ex-Governor has had time to ook fully into the matter he intimates hat he will give a complete statement t Carried off by a Panther.

St. MARY's, Mo., July 6.—The low-lands of Bois Brule bottoms, lying between the range of hills on which the town rests, and the Mississippi River, has been so covered with water during the recent overflow that it has not only become uninhabitable for man but all the many wild beasts of the forest have been driven to seek homes among the rocks. The broad bottom with its swamp and brush patches has long been known as the resort of wildcats and an occasional panther has been seen or heard by those The territory flooded was the portion of the country where the greatest food sup-ply for these animals was to be found, and when they were driven to the hills they were compelled to seek other means of living. The farms are so thick that it became a frequent occurrence for the barn yards to be raided. To cap the climax, however, a panther has done more than raid the barn yard and has carried off a aby.

She laid the infant down, and while she was going about her work she heard a noise behind her and turned just in time to see a huge brute leap into the yard, seize the baby, jump back over the fence and make for the woods. Her screams brought a neighbor who lived about a hundred yards away, and who, with Mrs. Williamson, started after the beart. The cheer was continued for about with Mrs. Williamson, started after the beast. The chase was continued for about a half a mile, when the animal was seen crouching in some bushes with the child between its paws. A short from a gun drove the animal away a short distance and Mrs. Williamson ran to the spot to find that her baby had been killed by the animal's teeth, which had been driven into the neck of the infant, causing probably instant death. The whole vicinity was aroused over the occurrence and squads of men started after the animal, killing it the same afternoon about two miles from the place where it had killed

It is entirely free from the maddening effect, the nauseating of the stomach, and the immediate intoxication that is always the result of the use of an inferior article. It is pleasant to the palate, has not that burning effect so common in other goods. It is strengthening, invigorating and mild, giving the bouyancy of youth to old age. It is stimulating to the overworked and feeble; in cases of consumption, heavy colds, weak lungs, debility and loss of appetite it is quickly recommended by the leading doctors and hospital physicians in the United States, and no sick room should be without it. All enfeebled, weak, old and infirm should take it daily as directed, and thereby regain that bouancy and strength that countless thousands stand so much in need of. This Celebrated Whiskey is sold as cheap as a very common article, and can be found for sale at

A cable dispatch from Berlin state

Dr. William H. Crim, when his attention was called to the cablegram, said kissing was a prolific cause of the spread of infectious and contagious diseases. particularly such as diphtheria, measles, whooping cough, scarlet and typhoid fevers and consumption. He produced several ponderous volumes in which the subject was treated, and in which some cold-blooded statistician had figured out that 32.10 per centum of certain diseases were transmitted by the apparently harmless kiss. Dr. Crim said that he did not expect any amount of argument would check this dangerous habit that has been going on since the foundation of the world, but he suggested that it would be well for those who are much given to the exercise to obtain certificates of health.

certificate should be ruled out of the Dr. Fannie E. Hooper, who has just returned from abroad, agreed with the Berlin physician. She said that the habit was a very dangerous one indeed, causing the spread of infectious diseases through entire families, and often through whole NOTICE. DO you know that Anderson has got the BEST LAUNDRY in the State. Not the largest, but she is doing the finest work of any, which is given up by the Traveling men, who are competent to judge. One said the other day: "I travel everywhere, I patronize all the Laundries, but you give me better work, take better care of my clothes than any Laundry I have patronized" So now, young man, if you never have given your work to the Laundry send it along. Summer is here, and you will appreciate it.
