The day Mr. Smith's train ran to Tallulah Falls Mr. Johnson and Mr. Crawford came up to Belton to ride home on the excursion train that night. Their home was three miles above Belton. Near the stopping place Mr. Johnson jumped off. He struck his head against a cross-tie. The train ran a hundred yards and stopped. Crawford went back to see if he was hurt. He found him unconscious, He was taken home and everything done for him that could be done, but he never revived.
