Those, too, who are looking out for the interest in the State campaign about the cause of good government say that they are surprised that the people are not being given any opportunity to hear from candidates for the other State offices in accordance with the constitution of the Democratic party. The concensus of political opinion here shows that the first week's work has really amounted to nothing from a practical standpoint. It has shown, however, that the liquor question is to be kept out of the campaign as much as possible; that the Prohibitionists are not in it; that Tillman and Butler are sparring with each other for personal political advantage; that John Gary Evans is apparently the most popular candidate for Governor, and, more taking but very little interest in the camnothing to compare with what it was two years ago. William Gran', the Revolutionary Sol-

MESSRe. EDITORS: The notice in the NTELLIGENCER two weeks ago concernng William Grant induced me to give some scraps from the personal history of the old soldier. A Universalist in his religious notions, blunt of speech and manners, he was nevertheless a man of sterling honor and integrity, and in politics an uncompromising Unionist. During the storm of Nullification he remained faithful to the Union he had helped to establish through seven years of war.

One day during the Nullification era, One day during the Nullification era, Colonel Kilpatrick and a party of gentlemen, some of the Harrises, of Harrisburg, on the Seneca, were surveying some land near Mr. Grant's house, and at noon they called on the old man to rest and discuss a bottle of brandy. The conversation ran into politics and the surveying party being ardent nullifiers soon struck a stump in the old Bayolutioner. struck a stump in the old Revolutioner. I do not suppose any one had ever doubt-ed that he had been a staunch Whig ed that he had been a staunch whig throughout the war, but one of the party, josularly, I suppose, twitted the old man with having been a Tory. This fired him to a white heat and he swore with a great round oath that he would prove the falsity of the charge by claiming a pension from the government.

Up to this time he had steadily refused to ask for a rension on the ground that his country was welcome to his services, and that he was fully able to live without its help. He was a man of affairs, and had prospered, but his patriotism was of the disinterested sort, and it is doubtful if he had ever applied for a pension but for this incident.

The man by whom Mr. Grant proved his claim was Maj. Joseph McJunkin, of Union, who that day had called on his old comrade while on his way to visit his sister, Mrs. McClure, who, well-to-do, resided not far from Earles' Mills on land now owned by John N. Grant, a grandson of the subject of this sketch.

That afternoon Mr. Grant accompanied Major McJunkin to Mrs. McClure's where the following morning before Esquire Myers the pension papers were duly proven, Mr. S. S. McJunkin, of this now living at 81, being a subscrib-

Doctor Pope Makes a Proposition,

The perpetuation of the reform movement depends upon the manner of conducting the ensuing primary. Under the rules of the State primary, candidates are required to get a majority of the vote cast, and if more than one are running for the same office and none get a major ity in the first primary then a second primary settles it, the two highest in the tirst primary being the candidates in the second. There is therefore no danger of a conservative getting a majority, except in those counties controlled by them, which are few in number. In other counties a conservative and a reformer would run it over and the reformers would concentrate on the reform candidate at the second primary.

The reform executive committee have ordered an intervening primary between the reform candidates for governor and lieutenant governor to take place on the — day of August which will be in advance of the county meetings; in some of the counties it is proposed to substitute mass meetings for a primary; the candi-dates for governor have already been ning for the general assembly which is to elect a United States Senator, are alning for the general assembly which is to elect a United States Senator, are allowed to submit their claims to the general primary, why not the candidates for governor and lieutenant governor?

The conservatives say that they will not run a candidate for governor and lieutenant governor if they are allowed to choose one from those running, but if not allowed to do so that they may not be bound by the action of the reform primary. We are for peace and fair dealnot allowed to do so that they may not be bound by the action of the reform primary. We are for peace and fair dealing. We are opposed to rings and cliques. Then let us give them an equal chance with us. All white men are allowed to participate in the general primary who will take the oath prescribed by the general assembly. This is a step forward in the interest of peace and harmony. Then let all have a fair showing. The reform executive committee can be called together and they can resoind their call for a primary, and the State democratic executive committee can make the necessary arrangements for a box at each those who get the majority in the respective counties shall receive the vote of the delegates from those counties to the State convention. All of the candidates are pronounced reformers; no advantage can accrue to any one of them over the others. I am willing to take my chances in the primary and I believe that the other candidates will be willing also. Respectfully.

ASSASSINATED !

To the Reform Voters of the Democratic Fresident Carnot, of France, Stabbed to Death at Lyons. and intense excitement has been caused in France by the assassination of President Carnet. To describe the intense excitement will be almost impossible.
The president was visiting Lyons in connection with the international exhibition.
Upon his arrival here he was tendered a reception at the prefecture, after which he visited the exhibition. After spending some time at the exhibition he pro-ceeded to the Palais de Commerce, where a banquet was given in his honor.
At 9:45 o'clock to-night Fresident Carnot started for the theatre, where a gala performance was to be given because of his presence in the city. Several carriages were in the procession, the first one being occupied by President Carnot. The carriage was driven slowly along in front of the palace of commerce and then turned into Rue de la Republicue, still following the facade of the palace. When half-way down the street, which mass meetings for a primary; the candidates for governor have already been forestalled in some of the counties by reform clubs endorsing certain candidates. Blows were aimed at his face and head over the shoulders of the police, who had by this time arrived, and many of the blows landed fairly. At last the police succeeded in driving the howling mob back a foot or so from their prisoner; but to get the captive was a physical impossibility.

In the meantime the news of the attempted murder had spread with lightning-like rapidity, and mounted guards were sent to the aid of the policemen, came here and spent the day with friends in the city. Governor Tillman and John Gary Evans came in also and spent a quiet day at the executive mansion, resting and collecting more rocks to be pitched. The only other candidate to come into Columbia was G. Walt Whitman, who spent the day at the Hotel Jerome.

The most intense excitement followed this abrupt announcement. In the midst of it Prefect Rivaud appeared in the President's box and amid profound silence said, in a voice broken with sobs, "The President has just been assassinated."

This announcement was received with a terrible explosion of fury, as the audience, when the first report of the assassination was received, had, though greatly excited, generally discredited it. Their speeches have little relation to the public questions. The main object of each of the contestants seems to be to say as many mean things about each other as possible and to arouse the passions of the crowds that waste their time by going to hear them. When these joint discussions between Butler and Tillman are over probably not one man in South Carolina will be one whit better informed on any issue of the day than he was before and if the people believe what the speakers say about each other they must conclude that neither of them is fit to be a senator. There seems to be very little difference between Butler and Till-man, judging them by their records and uttersness on political issues. Butler has gone almost as far as Tillman in the propagation of financial heresies and at the special session of the Senate appeared control of South Carolina politics, an element that is nearer to Populism than to true Democracy.

A young gent went to see a girl having two other grown sisters recently, and one night at church walked up to the elder of the three and says "can I see you home?" She says, "guess you are mistaken in the one." Then going to the youngest does likewise. She told him "surely not me." "Well, confound it, then where is my gal? It is the deuced trick ever played on me." But he got there.

The wedding bells have been ringing merrily the past week. On the 19th inst. Rev. G. M. Rogers officiated for two youthful couples. He was summoned to the residence of the bride, where he found Dr. W. A. Elrod and Mrs. Alice Hammond waiting to be wedded together. He performed the operation to the satisfaction of all parties. On his return home he found Col. W. S. Pickens and Mrs. Louisa Phillips waiting to be joined together. We extend our congratulations to the happy ones, and while the curtain falls we say come next couple. The wedding bells have been ringing

We spent Sunday in the city, and went out to Rocky River on an exploring tour, and had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. O osby and her charming daughter, Mis We think it is time that some effort was peing made to get a teacher at Tuckerville, and we suggest that Miss Crosby be selected to fill the chair. She has a large experience and knows just how to manage bad boys, like ourself. Now, brethren, I hope you will give this matter your careful attention, and ere the 15th of July rolls round you will have the school made up and Miss Lottle running the machine. You can't afford to let these golden days pass by and your children grow up in ignorance, and, maybe, turn out to be drunkards, gamblers and a disgrace to society and yourselves.

We are having a fine rain now, and it is badly needed. It has arrived in time to save the remnant of the blackberry crop. SAM DEWBERRY.

We have had a good s on. We had a hower of rain yesterday and one to-day. shower of rain yesterday and one to-day. Cotton is looking better than most of us thought it would. The cold weather did not injure it very much—it only made it a little late. Corn is looking very well up to the present, and those who have been waiting for rain to plow their corn can now do so, and then be done with it until to lorte an opening to looking the procession. People are beginning to rouse up on politics again. There will evidently be a very bitter fight between Butler and Tillman. The people seem to be taking more interest in the Congressional candidates han in the candidates for State offices. This should not be so, for we ought to pro-vide for those nearer home first and then those more remote. Well, I reckon the those more remote. COLUMBIA, June 20 .- I notice that aside from the State campaign the Reformers in the various counties of the State are doing a little more real wo :, The Reform executive committees have already begun work to thoroughly organize every county. Circulars are being sent out by the several chairmen calling upon all Reform clubs to meet during this exhibition at Tokeena in August. Will give an account anon.

Mr. Walter E. King has been obliged to use crutches all last week. Mr. Editor, he said not to tell the girls how it happened, but I dident promise not to. know what he can expect in the election of members to the Legislature. It is stated about this city that arrangements are being made for the holding of a preliminary primary election in every county, to be held strictly within the Reform ranks, for the specific object of having the Reformers agree upon some one candidate for each office upon whom they can consolidate their force in the general primary. It is thus seen that every-thing from a Reform standpoint is not merely depending upon the cam-paign work which is now being publicly done.

There are a great many features of the campaign work of this year which are not appearing on the surface at the pub-lic meetings, and most of the work which is to tell when the counting of the ballots begins is being done in each county before the campaigners arrive and on the quiet. So far the liquor fight has taken but a small part in the campaign fighting, and the paper are still as much in the dark in regard to it as ever. But one thing is certain, the Reformers are not worrying themselves much about the dispensary law just now. The time is not ripe yet for action along that line. I can be stated, however, that the dispensary law has not yet passed into history. It may drop out of sight temporarily, but before many more months roll around it is going to be on the statute books again.
In talking to a friend the other day Governor Tillman said that the law was not dead and it was not likely to die. He not dead and it was not likely to die. He said the law is stronger now than ever before. The people when the Constitutional Convention comes along, he contends, are going to give the State the direct power to go into the business. He stated positively that the law was constitutional and was a fixture as far as South Carolina is concerned. Very shortly, however, some very interesting information as to some very interesting information as to the future of the dispensary law will be available. Just at present it is not the desire of those interested to push the liquor question to the front in the campaign .- Special to News and Courier.

Negro Press Association of Georgia and editor of the Augusta Sentinel, asked in editor of the Augusta Scatinet, asked in a recent address before the Phil Kappa Society of Atlanta University: "What are our educated young men doing?" Here is his answer: "Of 1,243 graduates of seventeen institutions for negroes in the South 720, more than one-half, became school teachers; 117 became preachers; 116 lawyers, and 163 doctors, while ers; 116 lawyers, and 163 doctors, while 12 only became farmers, only 1 a carpenter and 2 mechanics. Of the remainder
5 became editors, 36 Government employees, and so forth." Mr. Floyd reaches the sensible conclusion that "the main point to observe is that where they have sought employment above that of menial service they have sought it in the refersions. The end of education, then. professions. The end of education, then, if we may safely judge from the way the educated act, is to fit one for those posi-tions in life which do not require more than the smallest amount of physical exertion. — A New Englander, who had sought in vain for notoriety, if not fame, for more than half a century, took strange precautions to insure a large attendance at his funeral. He had no near relatives, and when convinced that death was approaching he turned over to a trusted friend the few hundred dollars he had saved with instructions that it should be spent on his funeral. No carriages or conveyances were to be used, and the coffin was to be carried to the somewhat distant burial ground by relays of men, to be changed every 100 yards. Each carrier was to receive a liberal douceur, and in addition a small sum of money was to be handed to every person who entered the grave yard while the ceremony was being performed. There was no need to advertise the funeral, for before the coffin had been made the singular arrangements were the subject of general comment. Three times as many bearers as could be employed applied for procession. Every one present received a cash present, as stipulated, but the good minister who read the service made the

THE PAINT BUSINESS!

WE have been in it some time, and whilst, as we predicted in the beginning, we havn't done it all, or even nearly all, we have done enough to learn a good deal about it, and have our Paint scattered on a good many houses in the Town and County. Our effort has been to furnish the best material at the minimum price. In this we confidently believe we have succeeded. That we sell the best material can be easily established by reference to those who have used our stuff-not better than any body else sells, but as good as anybody sells at any price.

On our Ready Mixed Paint we give our personal guarantee, not only that it will give perfect satisfaction in every particular, but also that it is as good and pure as any sold in this or any other market at any price. To a man who believes our guarantee good we shall be pleased to sell; otherwise we don't want his business. On Lead and Oil of course we can only guarantee that they are strictly pure, and satisfaction or not depends on whether they are properly mixed and applied. We shouldn't like our friends to think that because we have been giving especial attention to the Paint business lately our interest in other lines has diminished. We still manufacture "Choleracide," and our Patent Medicine shelves are always full. We still have a little Millet Seed, a few
