BARELY MISSED IT. The most Exciting Meeting of the Cum-

Special to Greenville News. EDGEFIELD, S. C., July 19—Nobody knows exactly what prevented the killing and wounding of many men here to-day. For ten minutes men stood with hands on pistols and with knives tightly clutched ready to use those deadly weapons on each other. A hundred ladies were present, but they did not run and after the row was over, listened with commendacomposure to the end of Senator But-The trouble occurred during Senator Butler's speech, and was caused by the lenunciation by Butler of a man who had nsulted him by saying that he had denied is participation in the Hamburg riot at Washington. The story of the event is Tillman was brusque in his speech, and concluded by challenging Butler to produce the proof that he (Tillman) could not be found during the Hamburg riot. The facts about this are also below.

Tillman had a majority of the crowd and was wildly greeted by his adherents. Butler was given plenty of applause, too. After talking on different subjects some time, General Butler said that he endorsed the noble sentiments of Mr. Tindal. He endorsed every word and believed that Tindal's advice could be accepted by every man of either faction. Tillman, General Butler said, accused him of riding two horses, if he (Butler) was any judge, Tillman was riding four. The facts about this are also below.

dge, Tillman was riding four. "But keeping in the middle of the road, nyhow," remarked Tillman.
Butle: "Yes, but allow yourself plenty of margin on each side." "How much sugar has he put in your ourd?" asked Butler, of the audience. Voice: "How much have you put in there during eighteen years in the Sen-ate?" (Cheers and counter cheers and applause.) Butler: "Just keep quiet now. I know I am hitting you in a soft place, but you must take it?" Butler jumped on Tillman harder than he has for days, and acman harder than he has for days, and accused him of being stingy and penurious. He charged Tillman with not paying his subscription to a reform paper. The yells and applause for Tillman partially drowned Butler's voice, and the noise was terrific. When it was over Butler said that every time he hit Tillman the Governor's approrters winced and tried to nor's supporters winced and tried to drown out his voice by cheering.

Butler said that he had been riding only one horse since 1876, and that horse was the deliverance of the hope of the people. He told what he did in 1876, and of his continuous title what he did in 1876, and of his continuous title article with the Hamman and the White participation in the Hamburg riot. While he was speaking of the Hamburg riot H. H. Townes asked Butler if his house had not been burned by negroes because he took part in the riot.

"Yes," answered Butler. Joe Atkinres, answered Butler. Joe Atkinson, a Tillmanite, who was standing on the stand, to the right of Butler, said, "yes, but you denied it in Washington."

Butler turned like a panther, and quick as lightning said: "That is a lie—an infernal lie."

If he had stopped at this there might not have been any trouble at that time, but he repeated what he had said two or three times. Men began to surge toward the stand while Butler continued his denunciation. In an instant Charles Hammond immed up on the stand followed. nunciation. In an instant Charles Hammond jumped up on the stand, followed by H. H. Townes, each with his hand on the butt of a pistol in his hip pocket. It was then that the desperate men of both sides jumped upon the stand and those of less courage moved off. Hammond and Townes got behind Butler and Williamsn's friends growded around him. Tillman's friends crowded around him.
The antagonists began to glare at each other and to talk in strong language to each other. Pistols were changed from one pocket to another to be convenient for quick use. It was a squally time. The excitement was beyond description. Atkinson did not move an inch from where he had been standing. He was surrounded by excited men.

General Butler quickly recovered his wits and worked masterfully to check the riot which seemed imminent. Tillman did likewise. Each appealed to the men of both sides to stop jowering. They begged those trying to get on the stand to stay off, and those who were already on to get off. Among some of the men to be to get off. Among some of the men to be ready with their pistols were several and noted for coolness and recklessness. The uproar continued for what appeared to be ten minutes. During this time the hundreds of men who had remained on hundreds of men who had remained on the stand had gotter ready for action. I know it to be a fact that almost every man had singled out a target for his pistol and merely awaited the signal to turn loose. The excitement gradually subsided, but was really never suppressed.

Butler resumed his speech to try to get the audience back in its former disposition. He gradually grew salty again, and there was another outbreak of cheering for Tillman. Butler got mad again, and said there was an attempt to drown his for Tillman. Butley got mad again, and said there was an attempt to drown his voice with their braying. "Any common jackass," said he, vehemenently, "may bray, but I do not propose to be stopped in free speech by a lot of blatant jackasses. I cannot be frightened. I have seen too much of real danger to be intimidated. I cannot be frightened. I have seen too much of real danger to be intimidated. Governor Tillman says I am not in this race. He says he will beat me. I say if he will leave out his rings and give a separate box I will beat him three to one. I will beat him three to one in Meriwether township, where both of us live,"

Butler charged Tillman with being a ring and caucus nominee. He said it was charged that there is a ring controlling the gubernatorial race. Tillman, he said, has not denied this charge. Turning to Tillman Butler exclaimed: "I dare you—I dare you to give me a primary. You will never do it because you are afraid. Even rings won't save you."

Butler attacked Tillman for his denunciation of Cleyeland. He took from his pocket the certificate relating to Tillman at Hamburg. He said that he had not considered it a matter of much importance and had not intended to refer to it again, but as Tillman demanded it he would give it. The certificate is as follows:

1-This is to certify that at Hamburg, July, 1876, we, the undersigned, were present, and that B. R. Tillman was not there we would have seen him, and cerhere we would have seen him, and certhere we would have seen him, and certainly did not, after the firing began.

(Signed.) "W. H. Hammond, T. H. Hammond, E. F. Strom, H. D. Strom, Jno. M. Hightower, G. W. Walker, Jas. B. McRie, Jno. A. Butler."

The reading of the certificate finished, Bulter sat down. The governor waited a few seconds and walked to the front. His eye was flashing and he read the following certificate, refuting the charges of the other:

Mr. Tindal said that there is a matter of personal independence confronting the reformers of the State, and it was proper that this subject should be brought up in this county, a county renowned for independence in thought and action. The question was how to get a fair expression of the reformors of the State for Governor. He proceeded to say that under the plan adopted by the reform executive committee the people will not get an opportunity of expressing a fair, square opinion. To illustrate, he said that he supposed there are 4,000 reformers voting in Edgefield County. If three of the candidates for governor should get 2,700 votes the last man would get the delegation to the State reform convention. EDITORS INTELLIGENCER: Another Sunday at Chautauqua defines more dis-tinctly the religious and moral tone of he place. T e quiet lake is undisturbed, ither by the whistle of engines or landing of boats, or the streets by the wheels of ve-hicles. It is, indeed, a religious and edu-cational community, blessed with the best theologians and scholars. Dr. W. R. Harper, of Chicago University, gave us a cial preparation of viands, which is the fine lecture on the first twelve chapters of usual custom on such occasions, Robt. Genesis, and by his own invitation was A. Monroe and Miss Mallie Ster swered them all readily and acceptably except the last, "Do you believe in a personal Devil?" He answered that, "It is a hard question." This reminded me that in my childhood the theology of the colored people impressed me that his Sa-anic Majesty had great horns and other terrible appendages, with a great pitch-fork to toss the worst of the wicked where the fires burned hottest. Yesterday (Sunday) Bishop Hendrix, of Kansas City, Mo., preached an able ser-mon on "Work." The congregation mon on "Work." The congregation numbered about three thousand. The amphitheater will seat about five thousand. Bishop John H. Viucent, the rule and the hare is a native of Tuscaloosa, and. Bishep John H. Governor Tillman promised in his campaign speeches a few days ago to reopen the dispensaries the first day of August. He has issued the following pro-

STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA, EXECUTIVE CHAMBER. Whereas, under the provisions of an Act "to probibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage within the State except as herein provided," approved December 24th, 1892, the State assumed control of the legal liquor testing the Scatt Caroline commencing raffic in South Carolina, commencing

And whereas, the said policy and pur-pose of the State to permit the sale of liquor by and through the State's officers only was reaffirmed by an act approved December 23rd, 1893, entitled "an act to decirae the law in reference to and further regulate the use, sale, consumption, transportation and disposition of alcoholic liquids or liquors within the State of South Carolina and to police the same."

And whereas, the Supreme Court of the State of South Carolina by a decision rendered the 19th of April, 1894, declared rendered the left of April, 1894, declared the first act above mentioned unconstitutional except one section; the executive, in obedience to what he conceived to be the will of the Court, closed the dispensaries and discharged the constab-niary. In a subsequent decision the court still ignored the Act of 1893 above mentioned and construed the decision to mean "there can be no legal sale of li-quor by license," but has, seemingly on purpose, omitted to mention or construe the Act of '98-'94.

purpose, omitted to mention or construe the Act of '93-'94.

And whereas, the State of South Carolina, acting in good faith through the executive branch of the government and relying upon the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Hoover vs. the town council of Chester, in which it was declared that the Act of 1892 "was in effect an Act to regulate the sale of spirituous liquors, the power to do which is universally recognized," has invested large sums of money in liquors for sale under the provisions of the two Acts mentioned.

And whereas, this liquor is now being held at heavy expense while the State is flooded with contraband whiskey sold without authority of law.

Now, therefore, I, B. R. Tillman, Governor of the State of South Carolina, in exercise of my discretion as executive, do issue this my proclamation and declare that the said Supreme Court, having adjourned without in anywise giving expression in regard to the Act of 1893, that the said Act is of full force and effect, and will be enforced in accordance with my oath of office until the Court shall have passed upon the same, or until the Levislature shall have repealed it. The Successful Advertizer Is the man who writes something the people will read, and reading, believe. In this age of education and enlightenment, when men read and think for themselves, all that stuff about "selling goods cheaper than your competitors buy them," being the "only competent dealers in the line," handling better stuff than anybody else," &c., is mere clap trap, and subjects the writer and the firm back of it to the contempt of all right-thinking people. The man who has something to offer, and then tells the folks about in a plain, business way, is the man who "gets there," and getting there, stands.

Lots of people handle Paint. Some handle one kind, some another, but they all reslize, if they have any business sens Thursday, August 16, 1894, at 3 o'clock p. m., the building of a Bridge over Rocky River near Lee Shoals. sary to give the people the very best material. This we have tried to do, and at a price that puts it in the reach of all. In this connection we call attention t the fact that crops are about laid by, time is plentiful, and a little paint not only freshens and beautifies, but improves wonderfully the sanitary condition of the premises. If your house is all right maybe the fence needs a coat. A little Paint would keep that old buggy from falling down, and the wagon might last a year or or a dollar in Paint on it. . Remember this, the longer you put it off the more it takes and the less good it does. Remember another thing, it costs just as much, and takes just as much time, to have cheap paint put on as it does good Paint. Always buy the best, even if you pay more for it. HILL BROS., Druggists, ANDERSON, S. C.
