been expected of him since he entered the Senate, and he will, therefore, ask the people of South Carolina to give him another term after 1897, when his present term expires.

The friends of Senator-elect Tillman say that he does not want Irby to have a second term and he will do nothing to assist him in that direction. Who Tillman has selected as his favorite to succeed Senator Irby will appear later, but just now very little is being said on the subject. It is claimed that Irby was but an accident in the first instance, and, therefore, he should be satisfied with six years in the Senate as the immediate successor of Wade Hampton. That may sound all very well for those who have not tasted of the Senatorial sweets. Senator Irby may not have been an active participant in the great debates that have taken place in the Senate during the last two or three years, but he has put in four years of comparative luxury,

- It is related that a certain man was recently very sad because his wife had gone on a visit, which she would not shorten in spite of his appeals to come home. He finally hit upon a plan to induce her to return. He sent her a copy of each of the local papers with one item clipped out, and when she wrote to find out what it was he had clipped from the papers he refused to tell her. The scheme worked admirably. In less than a week she was home to find out what it was that had been going on that her husband
