and their remarks evidenced the fact that they were delighted to find themselves surrounded by so many of the beautiful works of nature and of art. Arriving at Portman, the lunch, so thoughtfully and suitably prepared by the ladies, was spread on a table prepared in the power house, and there, amid the hum of busy machinery, turbines, generators, transmitters and the like and the roar of falling waters as it sped in great sheets over the waste- weir, the demands of the appetite were fully satisfied while pleasantly flashed like sparks from the mighty power being generated around them. Sir Thomas Emery and Mr. Crosshaw, being civil engineers, more fully appreciated perhaps the development of Portman shows than others, and critically examined the entire plant and expressed themselves as greatly pleased.

The business men of Anderson, when they once enter upon the accomplishment of a desired end, never do things by halves, nor do they allow details to be neglected. They have determined to secure the Black Diamond Railroad. They now believe it is within the grasp of our people, and not only have they been showing Sir Thomas Emery and his party the development and resources of our country, but they have at the same time wisely concluded to show them the social and hospitable qualities of our people. With this in view a magnificent banquet was given Sir Thomas and his party last night at the Hotel Chiquola, where there were present fully one hundred of the prominent citizens of this city. The spread was indeed sumptuous. The tables were waited down with their laden and delicious viands while busy waiters, neatly attired in white jackets, never allowed a plate to be empty and kept the glasses constantly replenished with delightful juices of the vine.

A list of the committee should be a satisfactory guarantee to our people that the spread and every detail of the banquet was exactly as it should have been and in perfect keeping with the hospitable natures of our people. The committee was: F. G. Brown, R. S. Ligon, W. R. Hubbard, M. S. Dicken, J. D. Maxwell.

The usual formalities of a program were dispensed with. There was no toast master and studied responses. The occasion was open to remarks from any one present, an arrangement which set aside cold formalities and rendered the occasion more enjoyable to all present. There were, however, a number of capital speeches made. Mayor J. K. Hood welcomed Sir Thomas and his party in a well framed, well delivered address. He was followed by J. L. Tribble, Esq., who, in being called for, was invested with the new title, "Black Diamond Jim." His remarks were forceful and showed a knowledge of the progress of the projectors of the Black Diamond considerably in advance of those now interested with him in securing this great line through Anderson. It is only just to J. L. Tribble, we think, to say that

Mr. W. R. Carter, has six acres that he is sure he will get ten (five hundred pound) bales off of.

Mr. McAdams, a worthy gentleman of Abbeville, has secured the school at this place. He brings with him a splendid reputation, and we hope he will make a successful teacher.

The patrons have employed Mr. John Kay, of Whitefield, to repair the school house. We think they would have saved time and money to have built a new one, for many a time have we seen the boys hang their overcoats over the windows to keep out the cold winds. Then, when it rained, you would see the boys and girls all huddle up in one corner with their books under their arms to try to keep them dry. And on cold days you will notice all the larger boys out trying to get wood to keep the girls warm, while our teacher stood shivering the whole day long. Such a school house is a shame to the County and a disgrace to the community, and especially when it is at a place where they pay fifty dollars per month for a teacher. Patrons, you must not expect your children to learn in a cold school room, for they cannot. We have tried it. So we say, when a school house becomes old and nearly falls down, build a new one and give the boys the fun of seeing the old burnt in the stove.

Mrs. Lizzie Harris, with her two children, came very near losing her life one morning last week. She was on her way to town, driving a thought-to-be gentle horse, and when crossing the Harris bridge the horse became scared, backing the buggy off the barnment at a place ten feet high, throwing them on and falling the buggy over them. The buggy was torn all to pieces and the horse scratched up a little. No other damage resulted, but the mystery is how the lady and children kept from being killed.

Miss Josie Jolly has been behind the counter of our successful merchant, Mr. E. H. Jolly, for the past two months. Miss Josie is a charming young girl, and we think some of the boys have an occasion to go to the store quite often.

It was the pleasure of your humble correspondent, in company with Mr. Sumpter Finley, to give Corner Creek a flying visit last Saturday and Sunday. We left home at 1 o'clock and went by way of Anderson. From Anderson to Honea Path we noticed much cotton in the field. All along the road we noticed nice houses and improvements of the farm. So we are lead to believe that Anderson County is ahead of her sisters on the line of farm interests. But, oh! our pleasure had not begun, for when we arrived at the residence of our friend, Mr. B. F. Cassaway, we found the girls all diked out in their Sunday best, waiting our arrival. With pleasure we entered the parlor to find a warm fire, which was very agreeable, as we were rather cold. After a pleasant chat we visited the dining room to find an excellent supper prepared. Eating heartily, we again went into the parlor and talked and laughed until 11, when we retired to awake in

Rev. M. J. Dowell, of Betton, who has recently joined the Baptist Church from the Methodist, supplied Dr. Sanders' pulpit Sunday morning and preached one of the best sermons your correspondent ever listened to. He says he has but one church to supply. I hope he will get another church soon, as he wishes.

The long-looked-for convicts are here, and doing some very nice work on the roads near here. One of them, one night last week, in attempting to walk across the railroad bridge over Seneca river, missed the bridge and fell and killed himself.

Denver Items.

These lovely moonlight nights "the horn of the hunter is heard on the hills," and the "possum in the sumpion tree" calling his supper gets down and out in a hurry.

The fields are indeed "white unto the harvest," but the cotton pickers are scarce and hard to find.

Strange that peoples should try to find a better country when they can make more here than they can gather.

The champion cotton pickers in our neighborhood are the children of Mr. Jim Wooten, five in number, ranging from six to thirteen years old. They have picked out already fifteen heavy bales of cotton, with the help of their father. His two little girls, aged six and eight years, pick over a hundred pounds per day.

Miss Mattie Eskew is visiting in Pendleton this week. Miss Dillard, of Pendleton, is visiting in Denver.

Mr. Waddie Bowden has returned to his post of duty in Washington.

Mr. Joe Bowden has got home from his California fruit farm. He brought two car loads of his fine fruit to Texas and sold them there.

Mrs. G. M. Harper and daughter, Alice, visited in Denver last week. We were glad to see Rev. A. T. Dufflap well enough to be visiting his members in our community.

Dr. Arthur Bowen and wife visited relatives in our community last Sunday; also Mr. Alonzo McLees and wife.

Some frost and cold weather, just enough to make fires and blankets feel comfortable. "FROG."

Several gentlemen in Sumter are working to organize a party to visit Cuba as soon as cold weather sets in.
