Mr. T. T. Lucas, recently of the firm of Moore & Lucas, of this city, has gone to Lynchburg, Va., and probably make that city his home. Mr. Lucas is a son of Dr. Lucas, a prominent physician of Chesterfield. During his twelve months stay in this city, his manly bearing, affable manners and cleverness drew around him many warm admirers, who deeply regret being forced to give him up.

A barn of Mr. S. A. Hutchinson, in Elberton, Ga., was destroyed by fire on the night of the 20th inst., together with a fine horse, a mule, cow, buggy, cart, wagon and a lot of grain and forage. It was evidently the work of an incendiary. Not very long since Mr. Hutchinson lost his dwelling house and contents by fire. Mr. Hutchinson was formerly a citizen of Anderson County, and his friends here will regret to hear of his misfortune.

Everybody is cordially invited to attend the services.

In the INTELLIGENCER last week we mentioned the fact that the residence of Hon. H. H. Edwards, in Varennes Township, had been destroyed by fire. The house was a very large and substantial one, and recently had been furnished with new furniture, nearly all of which was burned. It is not known how the fire originated, but is supposed to have been accidental. Mr. Edwards estimates his loss at more than $4,000, on which there was insurance to the amount of $2,500.

At 4 o'clock last Friday morning the residence of Capt. B. C. Martin, near Williamston, was totally destroyed by fire, the origin of which is supposed to have been a defective flue from the stove room. Very few things of any consequence were saved, and all the furniture and contents of the family was totally destroyed, leaving his two grandsons in their bare feet. The barn and other outbuildings near were saved only by the heroic efforts of his neighbors who came in. It is said that all of the $200 insurance on the dwelling and $200 on his furniture were paid by the Farmers Mutual Insurance Company of this County.

Attention is directed to the card of the committee in reference to enclosing the Old Stone Churchyard with a neat and substantial iron fence, which is published in another column. This committee is ready and anxious to receive contributions for the purpose, and it is a subject that should appeal to the pride of the people of upper South Carolina. Gen. Pickens and many of the patriots identified with the early history of South Carolina, and especially of the Piedmont section, are buried in this cemetery. Show your patriotism and the respect due the memory of these patriots by forwarding at once a liberal contribution to the committee.

The laws of mortality are relentless. Death is in our midst at all times and at all hours of the day and night. This life furnishes no relief from it. A few brief years of struggle, then sleep we side by side. Captain James T. Barnes is dead. After a short illness from pneumonia he passed away last Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock, in the 87th year of his age. He possessed those qualities which lifted him above the common average, made him many staunch friends and gave him a wide influence. He was a member of the Methodist Church and a faithful member, his wife and five children, all grown up, are buried in this cemetery. The remains were interred at South Church. To the bereaved family we beg to extend our sympathy.

The Clemson College football team, accompanied by about seventy-five of their supporters, recently defeated Hartree and several members of the faculty, and a number of citizens from Pendleton and Anderson, went down to Augusta last Thursday to meet the Georgia Technological Institute team of football players, and quickly the score stood 6-0 in their favor. The game was witnessed by a large crowd, nearly all of whom were, of course, in sympathy with the Georgia boys.

From the first bout it was plainly evident that the Georgia team could withstand the powerful rush and skillful plays of the Clemson team. Clemson has a fine team, and have won every game they have played this season. They are the champions of South Carolina.

The Washington correspondent of the Columbia Register, under date of the 25th inst., says: "It is reported that Adjutant J. H. Grant, First South Carolina Volunteers, has been offered the collectorship of customs at San Juan, Porto Rico, and that he has been given until January 1 to decide whether or not he will care to accept the position. At the White House and War Department in this city nothing could be learned in regard to the rumor. At the White House it is said that at present there is no arrangement for such an office collector of customs, but that Congress will have to provide for it by legislation. As nothing is expected to be done at this session of Congress relative to the government of our new possessions, there is much doubt as to the authenticity of the statement concerning Adjutant Grant."

"Bibi" or the "Comedy of Toys," presented in the Opera House last week under the management of Mrs. M. L. Bonham and Miss Warburton, was a complete success. On Thursday night the audience was crowded and on Friday night and at the matinee Saturday afternoon, the delightful little comedy continued to be well patronized. The proceeds of the three entertainments amounted to $205, which, after paying expenses, will add considerably to the fund of the Ladies' Memorial Society, under the auspices of which the play was presented. The young ladies and gentlemen and children taking part in the comedy deserve great credit for sustaining their parts so admirably, and Miss Warburton and Mrs. Bonham, together with other ladies of the Society, should come in for no small share of praise for making the presentation so complete a success.

A few days ago Mr. W. A. Fant received the following letter from Mrs. L. J. Halsey, of 201 Belmont Ave., Chicago, Ill.: "The last summer my niece, Mrs. David Bellotte, of Florida, sent me a slip from a paper stating that you had found among some old papers one in which my grandfather, Gen. Robert Anderson, had signed his name as security for some one. Now, I will consider it an especial favor if you can get that paper and send it to me. My son, John J. Halsey, who is a Professor in Lake Forest University, is trying to get all matters connected with my grandfather, and I would like to know if there are any other papers there that mention Gen. Anderson. He and Gen. Pickens organized the first Presbyterian Church in upper South Carolina, which is the Old Stone Church, near Pendleton. I am a sister of Mrs. Joseph Harris, who died near Townville."

President McKinley has appointed Mr. John R. Cochran, Jr., Postmaster for Anderson. This announcement came through the daily papers of last Thursday, and was quite a surprise to our people. Col. M. P. Tribble, our present Postmaster, was appointed in January, 1896, and his commission gives him four years from that date, which would make his term expire in January, 1900. Heretofore, precedent has always allowed all Postmasters appointed by the President to serve their full term, unless some charges of incompetency, neglect of duty, etc., could be made and proven against the official. In this instance nothing of the sort has been done, or at least Postmaster Tribble has never been notified of any charges being preferred against him, and he has a right to demand the reason for his removal. He has made an efficient Postmaster, and our people want to see him serve his time out. At the end of his term a change, of course, was expected, and Mr. Cochran was expected to be his successor.

Mr. John T. Wilson died at his home near Williamston on Thursday morning, 24th inst. He has been critically ill for several days but it was hoped that the disease would be checked by the skillful treatment of his brother, Dr. W. W. Wilson, who was with him day and night, assisted by Dr. B. F. Brown, but nothing seemed to arrest his fever but death itself. And thus cut down in the strength of young manhood at 29 years of age, his lonely home in his father's home was forever severed between wife and two children, the oldest 5 years of age. The remains were interred in the Big Creek Churchyard on Friday, Rev. R. W. Barts conducting the funeral services. Besides Dr. W. W. Wilson he had two other brothers, Dr. James F. Wilson, of Indianapolis, Ind., and Leighton Wilson, of Williamston. Mrs. T. J. Clatworthy, of Honca Path, is his sister. He was happily married to Miss Nina Cymes a few years ago, and the deepest sympathy is felt for the young grief-stricken wife, and the children who will never know a father's love.
