It's a very old saying that "comparisons are odious." They may bethey are to some people. With us they are most welcome. We like to have our Goods and Prices made the object of comparison. As a matter of common sense, is it reasonable to suppose that we are going to let any one undersell us? Is it reasonable that we would let our interest suffer to the extent of Mrs. C. S. Sullivan and children spent letting any one sell the same thing one cent cheaper than we would-here in last week at Westminstervisiting their the city or anywhere else-if we were aware of it? We have as good buying facilities as any one, as good selling facilities as any one, and, as a matter of common sense, sell as cheaply as any one. Compare qualities, widths and weights, and you will always find us correct.
