AND so are thousands of others who are using CHAMPION MACHINES.
They have no equal for durability and simplicity in construction.
The Champion Draw Cut Mower meets every requirement for grass cutting. If the cutter bar meets a fixed obstacle the wheels will not lift from the ground. On all other front cut mowers the wheels will lift from the stound, thus reducing the cutting ability and putting the driver in danger of eing thrown off and injured. Should the cutter bar get out of line, by simply giving the coupling bar a quarter turn, the outer end will be set forward an increase line with the pitman. On no other machine can this be done, and it We are still selling HALL GINS. They are the fastest, lightest runbing, most durable Gin on the market, and will give complete satisfaction. CONGRESSMAN LATIMER'S RECORD.

Mit. EDITOR: Now that the campaign is upon us it is the fashion among some people who are opposed to Hon. A. C. Latimer to ask the question, "What has Latimer done?"

To meet and answer that question and put his friends by way of remembrance in fresh possession of his re-cord, it is proposed here to give a short resume of his work, not in any spirit or words of fulsome adulation, but to give a simple recital of the facts in simple justice to the man and his re-cord. What has he done? And first and foremost let it be said that he went opponent, who put the stigma of populism upon him and upon the Demo-cratic voters of the Third District who cratic voters of the Third District who had sent him there and who set himself up as the self-constituted representative of the Third District so far as the patronage at the disposal of the Cleveland administration was concerned. He has outlived this and come to see himself recognized as the only Congressman from the Third District who has brought tangible results to his constituents that can be counted in land cash and practical benefits. Others in an extended for the timer to secure the money, the actual cash, and this he did by hard and persistent work with the individual members and with the committees of Congress. It will be remembered by everybody that the South Carolina Railroad had been for years in the hands of a Receiver appointed by a Federal Judge and than provinted by a Federal Judge and the provinted by a Federal Judge and fined by Judge Simonton. Thereupon Latiuser introduced and succeeded in getting passed through Congress a bill for relief requiring corporations in the hands of Receivers to pay their taxes to the State just the same as the farmer or the business man does. The result of this act was that $208,000 of past due taxes were paid into the State Treasury by the S. C. Railroad. As Treasury by the section of the country, bringing to the denizens of the came of the section of the country, bringing to the denizens of the divide the fusion forces and thus persistent work of the State last year he secured from $300,000 and the promise of a complete service in Pressed from $300,000 last year to $4,000 in the promise of a complete service in Pickens and Oconee counties south of the Southern Railray and in Anderson County. This means about had sent him there and who set himself up as the self-constituted repre-

carriers of $500 each, or $35,000, with the ten already secured. These are actual, tangible results in dollars and cents. It is the intention to increase this service in the next five years to one hundred and fifty carriers, bringing into the district $175,000 besides the benefit of the free delivery of mail to the farmers almost at their doors.

He has secured an increase of the Agricultural appropriation bill for farm bulletins and for seeds for the farmers against the unamimons report of the committee, and he made a fight on the floor of the House for it and secured it by adding $65,000 to the bill. He has succeeded in passing the bill through the House, moving the Dry Dock from Port Royal to Charleston, and has championed the bill to build a Soldier's Home at or near Charleston, and the editor of the News and Courier openly complimented him in Washington by stating that if Latimer's aid could be secured for the Dry Dock, the Soldier's Home and the Exposition these bills could be passed through the House, thus showing the estimate in which his influence is held in Congress.

Among many other practical measures which he now has on the calendar

House, thus showing the estimate in which his influence is held in Congress. Among many other practical measures which he now has on the calendar of the House is one requiring that the money now used in buying seeds be given direct to the experimental stations to be used in growing and testing seeds for distribution among the farmers, thus acclimating them and testing their value before they are sent out.

He also found that the thirteen original States, the States which founded the Union, had never secured any of the public lands for public school purposes while all the new States had two sections in each township (1280 acres) set apart for this purpose, and he has now pending a bill to equalize the older States in this matter. This would give South Carolina public lands worth $1,-500,000 to be invested in Government bonds for the benefit of her school fund. It is true this bill has not yet passed, but it is greatly to Latimer's credit that he alone of all the Congressmen we have had there in the last century thought of such a thing.

Butthe most stupendous undertaking he has before Congress is the one to reduce letter postage to one cent, establish free rural delivery all over the United States to the people, to wipe out the deficit of $6,000,000 and leave a surplus in the Treasury. He has this measure well in hand and has one hundred and fifty members pledged to vote for it.

This is but a small epitome of what hundred and fifty members pledged to vote for it.

This is but a small epitome of what he has done and is trying to do, and any man who visits Washington will be both surprised and gratified to find the reputation this Congressman has there for had, principletty, and industrious work and work in the interest of his constituents. It is not the man who makes fine forensic displays on the floor of the House that counts for something, but the man who gets practical results in benefits to his people, and such a man is A. C. Latimer.

FROM THE NATION'S CAPITAL.

From Our Own Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 16, 1900. President McKinley has gone through his Cincinnatus-like performance of being notified of his nomination while dressed in rough homespun on his front porch at Canton, and will return to Washington and take up the neglected management of Chinese affairs. It is high time. The chiefs of all the European governments are working overtime attending to the tremendous issues that arise out of the eastern situation and only McKinley has found time to leave the capital for a vacation. to Congress blackiisted by his defeated Besides important matters of detail, the impression is growing that an extra session of Congress will have to be called, or that the President must take the responsibility of foregoing all vengeance for our murdered citizens—the people. But as a matter of practice, they are chosen on one ticket or another and always vote for the candidate of the party electing them. There is, however, nothing to prevent their doing otherwise. A man elected as a Bryan elector could vote for McKinley and the act would be entirely legal. If then, when the electors are chosen this fall, it should be found that Stevenson and Towne together had, a majority, one would simply instruct his electors to vote for the other, who would be chosen. Many western men think that the party is more likely to succeed in choosing the majority of the electors if these are divided between the Populists and the Democrats. For instance, Nebraska Populists might resent being turned over to the Democrats, and might vote the State to the Republicans. But if a fusion ficket were arranged with, say five Towne and three Stevenson electors, it would stand a better chance of winning. And the votes, though cast for different electors, would really be counted for one man, the other probably being consoled by a Cabinet post.

Representative Richardson, of Tennessee, minority leader of the House, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, and permanent chairman of the Kansas City Convention, has returned to Washington to take up it is work of the campaign. He warmly approves the platform and the nominees and thinks that they will commend themselves to the platform. The controlling reason for using it, was that some thought that, while free silver was not the issue of this year, yet, were it omitted, the very fact of the omission would give it more prominence and possibly cause it to be discussed more than if it were simply repeated in the platform. The carpument was that if it were put into the platform it would be superised by the great issue of imperialism. This is the important point. The chief issue of a campaign is made, not by the country at large, and when the platform declared that imperialism was the paramount issue, it was only declaring the fact as it exists
