

Appeal of the Mayors for the Amendments.

To the voters of South Carolina: At the last Session of our General Assembly, through the efforts of our respective Senators and Representatives, the following Amendment to the Constitution of our State was passed by the requisite majority of both the Senate and the House of Representatives, and will be submitted to you at the General Election on the 6th of November next:

"A joint resolution proposing to Amend Section 7, Article VIII, of the Constitution, Relating to Municipal Bonded Indebtedness.

SECTION I. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of South Carolina, That the following Amendment to Section 7, of Article VIII, of the Constitution, be agreed to: Add at the end thereof the following words: Provided, That the limitation imposed by this Section and by Section 5, Article IV, of this Constitution, shall not apply to bonded indebtedness incurred by the cities of Columbia, Rock Hill, Charleston, Florence, where the proceeds of said bonds are applied solely for the purchase, establishment, maintenance or increase of water works plant, sewerage system, gas and electric light plants, where the entire revenue arising from the operation of such plants or systems shall be devoted solely and exclusively to the maintenance and operation of the same, and where the question of incurring such indebtedness is submitted to the freeholders and qualified voters of such municipality, as provided in the Constitution, upon the question of other bonded indebtedness."

Approved the 19th February, A. D. 1900.

We believe if the vital importance of this Amendment to our cities was understood by you, there would be no doubt of its being adopted by an overwhelming majority.

Fearing that you may not appreciate the imperative necessity of giving our municipalities the opportunity of deciding, each one for itself, whether we should increase our respective debts for the sole purposes above named, we appeal to you to give us this right of choice.

All must realize that without an abundant supply of water, suitable for all purposes, and without a proper system of sewerage, which cannot be made efficient without this water supply, the growth and the health of any municipality must be seriously impaired.

We believe there is no other measure or project possible, for the advancement of our cities, that can compare in importance with an abundant water supply and a proper system of sewerage, and without these, in our opinion, they cannot advance in prosperity or population as they should do.

Section 13, of Article 2, of the Constitution of South Carolina, adopted December 3, 1895, provides:

SECTION 13. In authorizing a special election in any incorporated city or town in this State for the purpose of bonding the same, the General Assembly shall prescribe as a condition precedent to the holding of said election a petition from a majority of the freeholders of said city or town as shown by its tax books, and at such elections all electors of such city or town who are duly qualified for voting under Section 12 of this Article, and who have paid all taxes, State, County and Municipal, for the previous year, shall be allowed to vote; and a vote of a majority of those voting in said election shall be necessary to authorize the issue of said bonds.

And Sections V and VII of Article VIII of the Constitution confirm and reiterate the same provisions.

You will see therefore that the adoption of this Amendment will not commit any of our communities to an issuance of bonds, or to municipal ownership, but will only confer upon us a power in these respects that we do not now possess.

And the conferring of this authority, in the event that other plans prove impracticable or undesirable for procuring for us these vital essentials to our very life and growth, will be under these most ample safeguards provided by the Constitution of the State.

The Constitution as quoted above now wisely surrounds this question of increasing the debt of any municipality with such provisions and limitations, as require the consent of a majority of both the real estate owners and of the qualified voters in each place to any issuance of additional municipal bonds.

The amendment submitted to your votes recognizes and repeats that Constitutional provision.

less and until in each city, first, "a majority of the freeholders" petition those authorities to order a special election, and at that special election a "majority of the qualified electors" vote to issue these bonds for the special purposes named in the Amendment, and for no other purpose whatsoever.

Unless this Constitutional Amendment is adopted, "the freeholders and the qualified voters" in neither of our cities can have the privilege or option of issuing bonds for the purpose of acquiring these necessities, so essential to health, life and prosperity, even if all "the freeholders and all the qualified voters" were unanimous in their desire to do so.

We therefore appeal to you, our fellow-citizens, to help us secure by your votes for the adoption of this Amendment, the right to decide for ourselves, subject to the limitations of the Constitution of South Carolina, above set forth, these blessings so essential to our growth and prosperity, which our own people are praying for, and a prayer, which, we feel sure, our fellow South Carolinians will not suffer to pass unheeded.

Yours respectfully, F. S. EARLE, Mayor of Columbia. J. J. WATERS, Mayor of Rock Hill. W. D. MORGAN, Mayor of Georgetown. W. H. MALLOY, Mayor of Florence. J. ADGER SMYTH, Mayor of Charleston.

Dead, But Stood Like Alive.

There is on exhibition at a general store in Marlinton, W. V., a curious and unusual tableau group. It is nothing less than a setter dog and a dozen quail, all frozen, and in the attitude usually assumed by birds and dogs when brought into close quarters in the woods.

The exhibition occupies the entire shop window and has attracted much attention though the warmer weather may spoil it soon. The dog belonged to Judge William Green.

During the very cold weather just after the beginning of February Green took a young setter out to the woods to give him an outing, thinking he might see a few birds and further the work of training the setter. He took no gun. It was the closed season for birds.

While going up a valley between Peterson's mountain and a short ridge, where it was extremely cold on account of the sharp wind, Judge Green missed the dog. He hunted for half an hour, but could find no trace of the animal. He returned home, thinking the animal had preceded him, but the animal was not there. Nothing was seen of the dog until Thursday, when the judge went back into the mountains to make another search.

In the thicket where the dog had last been seen, but securely hidden by the evergreens, the judge discovered the animal, standing, with his nose pointed fairly ahead and as natural as if alive. Half a dozen yards away was about a dozen quail, all of them frozen. The setter had scented the birds and stood waiting for his master to come.

The dog, in his instinctive effort to locate the game for his master, and the quail, in their fear to move in the dog's presence, had all frozen to death. There had been no thawing weather under the lowering brow of the mountain since the day the animal met the quail. The judge gathered up the frozen dog and quail, brought them to town and placed them on exhibition. - N. Y. Herald.

Language Taught by Machinery.

The phonograph is now used to teach foreign languages. With each phonograph the pupil receives a text-book and twenty loaded cylinders. Each lesson in the book is arranged in the form of questions and answers. The pupil, ready to begin, puts the cylinder of the first lesson in the machine, the tubes in his ears, and starts the phonograph. Keeping his eye on the book, he hears the words and phrases repeated, with their proper accent, just as if the professor stood at his side.

There is the additional advantage that the lesson can be repeated twenty or a hundred times if necessary, until every sound is familiar to the pupil.

A Georgian's Tale of Woe.

WASHINGTON, October 25.—Secretary Long to-day received a remarkable letter from a Georgia man named F. R. Brown. It begins by saying that the Secretary will probably not remember the writer, never having seen him, but the writer remembers the Secretary well, having often seen him when Mr. Long was Governor of Massachusetts. In view of this acquaintance the writer hopes that Mr. Long will grant the slight favor he asks.

Mr. Brown then relates that he left Massachusetts six years ago and settled in Georgia, where he married a Southern woman. "This," says Mr. Brown, referring to his marital adventure, "is the cause of my complaint." He says his wife, desiring to pleasantly surprise him by adding to the household treasury, entered into correspondence with one of the New York concerns which advertises "Pleasant employment for ladies at home." This concern offered to pay large sums for having names copied. Mrs. Brown communicated with them and was told that she must pay $2.95 for an outfit. She sent the money, got the "outfit," copied the names, and asked for her pay. She was told that the names were copied wrong and that, anyway, the company had an agent in her County, and did not need two. "Then why did they not tell her so before?" argues Mr. Brown. "The thing is a fraud. I could have told her so if she had asked me before, but you know how women are, Mr. Secretary; they always want to surprise their husbands."

He concludes by asking Mr. Long to make a personal matter of it and force the concern to give up the $2.95. He explains that Mr. Long is the only Cabinet officer of other high official he has ever seen, and he feels that this gives him a certain claim on him. Besides, he says, he originally came from Massachusetts.

"I am afraid that the lady's well-meant effort to surprise her husband," said Mr. Long, "has resulted in some painful domestic scenes."

New York, Oct. 18.—The Herald has the following Berkeley Springs, Va., special:

James Adams has returned from the Klondike. He has also created a sensation by his spectacular arrival. When he left here three years ago he went with nothing, and on a freight train. He returned yesterday in a private car, drawn by a leased locomotive, and brought with him $150,000 in gold and paper representing mining possessions valued by him at $5,000,000.

When he returned from the North two years ago he had some gold and good prospects, but after he had gone back to the Klondike he did not write home. No one was prepared for his present return. In Detroit he became weary of traveling in ordinary trains and took the finest car he could get. He returned leisurely and stopped at Niagara Falls and New York.

When he reached Brunswick he leased a locomotive to come over the branch line to Berkeley Springs. When he arrived at the station there was much surprise. His ten big trunks were hauled to his father's house and $150,000 in gold was taken to the bank. A year ago he bought for his parents a fine farm, and yesterday he gave his father $20,000 to build a house upon it.

James Adams is about twenty-two years old. He has appointed two young friends, who went to the Klondike with him, but could not endure the climate, his agents here at high salaries. He will not return to the Klondike until spring, and says he will devote the winter to realizing how it feels to be a millionaire. He tells stories of hardships, and says that generally speaking big success in the Klondike is comparatively rare.

If you suffer from any of these symptoms—if you feel tired and languid in the morning and wish you could lie in bed another hour or two—if there is a bad taste in the mouth, and no appetite—if there is pain in the side, back or abdomen—BRADFIELD'S FEMALE REGULATOR will bring about a sure cure. "As Others See Us."

A drunkard in New Orleans was recently saved in a peculiar manner from continuing his career of dissipation. The young man in question, says an exchange, was of a fine family and had splendid gifts, but was going down as fast as it was possible for a man to go through strong drink. His friends had pleaded with him, but he had taken their warnings as an insult.

One day one of them, who was a shorthand writer, determined to try a new tack with him. He was sitting at a restaurant one evening, when the young man in question came in with a companion and took the table next to him, sitting down with his back to him, and not seeing him. He was just drunk enough to be talkative about his private affairs, and on the impulse of the moment the stenographer pulled out his notebook and took a full shorthand report of every word he said. It was the usual maudlin folly of a young man with his brain muddled by drink, and included a number of highly candid details of his daily life—things that when he was sober he would as soon have thought of putting his hand in the fire as of speaking about to a casual acquaintance.

The next morning the stenographer copied the whole thing neatly and sent it round to the young man's office. In less than ten minutes he came tearing in with his eyes fairly starting out of their sockets.

"Charley," he gasped, "what is this, anyhow?" "It is a stenographic report of your monologue at the restaurant last evening," his friend replied, and gave him a brief explanation.

"Did I really talk like that?" he asked, faintly. "I assure you it is an absolute verbatim report," was the reply. The young man turned pale and walked out. He never drank another drop. There are many men who would cease not only the sin of drunkenness, but other sins as well, if they could see themselves as other people see them.

Two Irishmen while crossing a bridge saw a sign announcing that any one saving a life would receive $5, or $2 for recovering a dead body. "Begob," here's a chance to make some money," said Pat. "Throw yourself in and I'll save ye'll whack the pot, Mike." Mike fell off the bridge, and despite the efforts of Pat came near drowning. While struggling in the water Mike exclaimed: "Whist, ould man, if ye don't hurry we'll hav but the $2 to whack."
