From Our Own Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 17, 1900. Washington is looking forward with years of Congress. Washington depends on the Government for existence. A Republican Congress always brings, not only vastly larger and more wasteful appropriations than does a Democratic one, but it attracts a coterie of wealthy men, trust magnates, lcbbyists and the like, who come to solicit favors that they would never dare to ask from the Democrats. These men spend their money freely and I roduce "prosperity" here. Then again, the result of the election insures the retention of most of the present clerks in their positions and frees them from fear of the "rotation of office" advocatedby the Democrats. Of course, the other side of this appeals to those who are outside and want to have their turn at the public table, but these latter are not in Washington to any great extent while the former are. Last session, although the appropriations were the largest in the history of the country whether in peace or war, still there was some curb on them in view of the approaching elections. Now there will be none, and a riot of jobs may be exprobably be the largest in history, the public building bills will cost millions. the ship subsidy and army and navy limit, and a goodly portion of all of these will find their way into Washington pockets. Hence, Washington is happy.

Representative J. H. Bankhead, of Alabama, who is the ranking Democratic member of the Committee on Public Building and Grounds and also a member of the River and Harbor Committee, was in Washington yesterday to escort some of his colleagues to an inspection of the Coosa River, and in an interview on the results of the elections said: "I do not look for any immediate reorganization of the Demo-cratic party. The defeat at the recent election was by no means a death blow. The party has survived much worse defeats before. It is not time yet to talk of reorganization or candidates. Some man will come forward for the emergency when the time is at hand." At the same time, most Democratic leaders agree that it will be necessary to reorganize before the next election in order to meet changed conditions. In the past the South has had a certain number of votes which is always cast for the Democratic candidata and which, with New York and Inciana gave it a splendid chance to win, sort, even if it wins back the border States which it lost in the last two elections, and even if it retains its present voting strength. There is no reasonable doubt, however, that it will not retain this. The Republicans intend to cut it down in proportion to the disfranchised illiterate negro vote. If only twenty votes are taken away from the South by this means (and it is more probable that the number will be forty) the commanding position of the South will be gone, and issues will have to resign itself to continued defeat. One of the schemes which will undoubtedly be pushed to fruition in Congress this winter is the ship sublidy bill, which grants enormous bounties to American built ships. The bill provides that a man who builds a great and speedy ocean steamer shall be paid bounties in twenty years amounting to twice the whole cost of the ship. The bounty to be earned even by a slow freight steamer, with a speed of less than 14 knots, will amount every year to more than 8 per cent. of her cost when new. On the faster steamers, like the best belonging to the International Navigation Company, the bounty will be rather more than 10 per cent. of their cost when new. It is admitted by the advocates of the bill that the bounties will be large enough to pay all the salaries and wages of the officers and crews who man the ships. The right under this bill to contract for twenty-year bounty will expire at the end of ten years. During ten years ship owners will have the privilege of contracting to receive bounties for twenty years from the date of the contract; but ships built after the ten years have expired will receive no bounty. The result will be that in ten years every American ship will be under a bounty contract for the full expectancy of its years of usefulness. New ships without bounty can not compete with the subsidized ships, and therefore no new ships for foreign trade will be contracted for after 1910. The difficulty above referred to is inhement in the bounty scheme and can not be avoided, making it almost inpossible to discontinue the system once it has been begun. This is one reason why the Republicans are so anxious to have it inaugurated.

The country is likely to have another ease of "plain duty" that comes to only to per cent. of its promise. Refere the election, the country was promised that the war tariff would be reduced this winter by cutting off the vexatious stamp taxes and reducing the revenues of the government by at least half of the bundred millions collected under the law. Now, it is announced that not more than $15,000,000 of reduction can be hoped for, and that this will Alabama, is seriously ill.

FROM THE NATION'S CAPITAL. | probably be almost wholly in a cut'on the tax on beer, as a reward to the brewers for their support in the electior. There is absolutely no hope of reducing the Dingley rates so as to deprive the trusts of the tariff that enables them to sell to foreigners great pleasure to the coming three cheaper than they sell to Americans. The invasion of fereign markets by American manufacturers, which began long before McKinley was elected, and which has been the most startling economic event of this decade, is no mere clash in the pan. Conditions are not going to change for the worse and compel American manufacturers to withdraw from those markets. It is evident that the concern which is able to compete successfully with English and German rivals in European, Asiatic, or African markets, has no just claim to further protection which enables it to extort larger prices at home than abroad. But there is no hope of relief from this situation for a long time to come.

Many people believe that all the constitutional questions arising out of the colonies are to be decided by the Supreme Court in the cases that are to be heard on December 17th. Such. however, is not the case, these cases running only to the right of the President to impose the Dingley rates of duty on the Philippines and on Porto Rico before Congress legislated for the pected. The river and harbor bill will latter. The question of the right of Congress to impose duties differing from those obtaining in the rest of the country on Porto Rican goods, after it has established a form of government for that island, is not involved at all in the cases and cannot be decided in connection with thein.

The Orphans' Day,

Thursday, Nov. 2)th is, the orphans day! Give, brother, with all your heart, because the Lord has blessed you. There are plenty of orphanages to remember; help your own, and then remember that there are two hundred orphans at the Thornwell Orphanage, Cinton, South Carolina, drawn from every Southern State and some Northern, and even from "the isles of the sea." They are from many denominations of Christians as well as from non-Christian parentage. Bereft of parents they are alone in the wicked world, forgotten, perhaps in the localities from which they came, but loved and cared for and trained for future usefulness by faithful teachers and matrons. Taught a trade, and given mental training as well, they leave their orphan hone to care for themselves. Send your spare gifts to the Thornwell Orphanage, Clinton, Seath Carolina.
