Several of our exchanges have mentioned the large sweet potatoes that have been produced in their respective counties, ranging in weight from 6 to 8 1/2 pounds. One of Anderson County's energetic and progressive farmers, Capt. J. C. Stribling, of Pendleton, can excel any we have seen mentioned. As usual he has produced a fine crop of potatoes this season. Gathering a barrel of his largest ones he weighed each one of them. The smallest of this lot weighed 6 1/2 pounds and the largest 10 1/2 pounds. Who can beat this?

Ligon, on Orr street, for a family visit, which must have been a source of enjoyment to all as the qualities of sociality and geniality are possessed for every member of the family in so marked a degree. Genial James D. Hammett, manager and treasurer of the Orr mill of Anderson, and John Lyons, master weaver, were making glad hearts by their presence with us for a short time yesterday. They report everything as working very smoothly at the new mill. It has been our privilege to visit the Orr mill settlement, and we were surprised to see so pleasant a mill and village. Everything in and out of the mill bore evidence of a regard for utility and convenience as well as for the comfort and welfare of the operatives, with the tenements all of a better order than is usually found in our mill towns; good streets and sidewalks, and an especial attention paid to the sanitary conditions and to the Church and school needs of all. With Superintendent Loftin as executive and our friends Manager Hammett and Secretary Calhoun Harris in the office, we feel sure that the Orr will prove to be a favorite mill for the workers.—Piedmont correspondent Greenville News.
