Isaac M. Bryan, Esq., of Greenville, has announced himself a candidate for the United States Senate to succeed Senator McLaurin.

The roller mill at Duncan, Spartanburg county, belonging to W. A. Moore was burned by an incendiary fire. The loss is $4,500, the insurance $3,500.

Bub Burnett, a well-known citizen of Spartanburg county living near Fairmont, was shot and killed by his own gun while hunting the day before Christmas.

To-morrow will be "Liberty Bell Day" at the Charleston Exposition. The bell will reach Charleston at 10 o'clock a. m. and will be given a glorious reception.

Prof Barnes, of Clemson College, has finished a gasoline engine for an automobile which he intends to make. It will be the first machine of its kind manufactured in South Carolina.

State Treasurer Jennings when asked what portion of the State taxes for the year had been paid in said that so far only $100,000 in round figures has been received at state treasury.

A street fight took place at Waterloo, in Laurens county, a few nights ago. About a dozen shots were exchanged. One negro was killed and one wounded by a white man named Pitts.

The postoffice at Blackburg was robbed Thursday night. The burglars blew open the safe and secured about $15 in cash and about $50 worth of stamps. There is no clue to the guilty parties.

The Southeastern Mutual Life and Savings Insurance Company of Greenville has been chartered. The capital stock is $50,000. Those at the head of the company are B. A. Morgan, J. I. Westervelt and T. P. Cothran.

The heirs of David Orr, an aged white man who was killed by a freight train in Spartanburg a few months ago, have entered suit against the Southern railway through Hon. Stanyarne Wilson, attorney, for $15,000 damages.

The Floren, branch of the American Tobacco Company sent out from that city last Friday night a solid train load of leaf tobacco. The train was made up of twenty-five cars and was destined to the company's plant at Durham, N. C.

A man by the name of Murray, at the Orangeburg Manufacturing Company's factory quarters, committed suicide a day or two ago by shooting himself. It is said that he had been drinking, and no other reason for his killing himself has developed. He was a newcomer in Orangeburg and leaves a wife and several small children.

The Columbia papers state that that city is flooded with counterfeit silver coins. It is said the bogus stuff is hard to detect as they are standard in weight and looks and lacks only the ring which good money has. It is thought that fakirs on their way to the Charleston exposition are responsible for the appearance of so much of the queer in the city.

A horse belonging to Mr. A. M. Blackmon at Lancaster, bit off part of the tongues of two of his cows recently. The cows were thrusting their tongues through the cracks of the stables in which the offending horse was standing trying to get a taste of the food placed at the disposal of the horse, which was unwilling to divide with the cows in that way. So he bit the offending member.

Thursday about 2 o'clock, Clifton James, a colored youth, 18 years old, was run over by an Atlantic Coast line yard engine at Sumter and instantly killed. The accident was due to the carelessness of the dead boy. He had no right in the yard as he was not an employe of the company. He boarded the yard engine and losing his balance fell beneath the wheels and his head was mashed off, causing instant death.

Miss Susan B. Anthony, the famous female suffragist, has written to the Attorney General asking him about the laws of South Carolina in so far as women's rights are concerned. She asks as to their legal status as to property rights and as to suffrage, adding that she wanted the information for a book about the rights of women she is to publish. The Attorney General will answer that women have all the rights of men in this State except that of voting.

GENERAL NEWS.

Peace was made on Christmas between Argentina and Chilli.

The town of Forceman, Ark., has been nearly wiped out by fire.

Three men were scalded to death by a boiler explosion at Parkersburg, W. Va.

In New Jersey there are two match factories with a capacity together of 90,000,000 matches a day.

The medical experts who held the autopsy report that Czolgosz was sane when he murdered President McKinley.

Rev. J. H. McClinton was called to his door at Deport, Texas, on Christmas morning by a crowd of men and shot to death.

There is an advantage, after all, in not being elected president. For instance, Mr. Bryan can send messages to congress every week.

General Grant's telegram to Secretary Stanton announcing Lee's surrender was sold at auction in New York to George H. Richmond for $700.

An elopement in Birmingham has just been prevented by the father of the girl shooting the groom and his friend when they came for the bride elect.

In Richmond, Va., a serious freshet menaced the city. To add to the people's alarm, a fire broke out, the firemen fighting it waist deep in water.

Last year Missouri produced more manufactured tobacco than any other state in the Union, over 78,000,000 lbs. passing through its factories.

Frank Pevey, the man who carried over a million dollars in life insurance, is dead. The loss falls on a company with over three hundred millions capital.

The coal famine has ended so far as the Jellico and Kentucky fields are concerned. The Southern railway has handled 1,000 car loads of coal in the past three days.

The State Entomologist of New Jersey predicts that the State will be overrun with locusts during the ensuing year, and that they will eat everything in sight.

The first public reception of President Roosevelt on New Year's day was the largest for years. No one was refused admittance and over 8,000 people were present.

The protocol between Nicaragua and the United States gives the latter complete jurisdiction throughout a zone six miles wide and extending from ocean to ocean.

Secretary Ritchie, of the Cincinnati Municipal Reform League, reports that there are 8,440 penny-in-the-slot machines in that city and that over $3,000,000 drops into them every year.

An armed robber compelled the woman cashier to deliver the contents of the safe in the Boston office of the Prudential Insurance Company just before closing. The amount is unknown, the cashier being alone at the time.

Congressman Loud, chairman of the House committee on postoffices consulted President Roosevelt about postal legislation. He afterwards stated that one cent postage was out of the question. It would result in a deficit of thirty-five millions.

T. M. Exum, a farmer living near Centerville, Tenn., went home and when his wife objected to his shooting into the floor about her feet, shot her dead. He carefully laid her on the bed with the assistance of his children and then blew out his own brains.

A new version of the Bible is being prepared in England. The work, under the guidance of Samuel Lloyd, of Birmingham, has been prosecuted by leading scholars for the past eight years and is nearly complete. It is entirely distinct from the American translation.

Frank Royal, a young man, was shot and killed Christmas night, near Duck Hill, Mass., by the daughter of his brother-in-law, T. S. Mills, whom he and his wife were visiting. Mills and Royal went to town in the evening and upon their return by way of a joke, Royal refused to answer Mrs. Mills, who called to him as he started to enter the hallway. Beatrice Mills, a 14-year-old girl, thinking it was some one bent on mischief, seized a shotgun, and fired as he opened the hall door, killing him instantly.

The most beautiful place in the United States to live in is Marion, Iowa, according to reports received by the marine hospital service from 1,190 cities and towns having a population of 100 or more. Marion has a population of 4,100, and there were only six deaths in 1901, making the death rate the phenomenally low figure of 1.46 per 1,000. The town in the United States having the highest rate of mortality last year was Carlyle, Ill. The population was 1,874, and the number of deaths 100, making a death rate of 53.31.

FROM THE NATION'S CAPITAL.

From Our Own Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 5, 1902.

"Is Mr. Roosevelt and his administration really in favor of the Nicaragua Canal?" That question is being asked more frequently every day, and not without reason, either. It is quite certain that elements are at work against Congressional legislation for the Nicaragua Canal, and the administration is accused of encouraging, if not directly assisting them. There may be some sensational developments in this connection soon after Congress reassembles. Public opinion, regardless of politics, has shown itself to be so strongly in favor of the Nicaragua Canal that no man in public life dares to openly oppose it, but there are more ways to kill a dog than hanging, and the talk about going slow and being sure that our best interests will be served by constructing the canal over the Nicaragua route is increasing in Washington, and some of it is coming from unexpected quarters. This is simply a revival of the policy which has been used for years to prevent legislation for the canal without going on record against it. The new offer of the Panama Canal Company to sell at a little more than one-third of the price named by its president several months ago is merely a part of the game of delay. Secretary Hay is said to favor the purchase of the Panama Canal, but he has not done so openly. Every man who advocates delay in Nicaragua Canal legislation may not be in the pay of the Panama Canal lobby, but every man who does so will place himself under suspicion. The House will take up the Nicaragua Canal bill next week, and there is no doubt that it will pass it without a division on political lines; it is on the Senators that the obstructive forces are working, but Senator Morgan, who will be in charge of the matter in the Senate, is a hard man to fool, and a man who will not hesitate to show up any crookedness that may be resorted to in any effort to indirectly kill the legislation by delay.

After devoting a week to his personal affairs, mostly to laying the foundation for a Roosevelt machine, Mr. Roosevelt has resumed his place behind the official pie-counter. About as hungry a lot of pie-hunters, mostly Republican Senators and Representatives, confronts him as ever besieged a President, and if he is at all wise he will distribute the pie slowly. The more pie he keeps on hand the fewer anti-Roosevelt Senators and Representatives there will be, as they do not wish to appear openly against the chief pie-distributor until they have got everybody else possibly get.

There is much gossip concerning the manner in which Gen. Miles and Admiral Dewey paid their "respects" to the President at his New Year reception. It was a dumb farce, so far as those two officers were concerned, as both of them passed Mr. Roosevelt with a stiff and formal bow, without touching his hand or speaking a word. They regarded it their duty to head the army and navy officers respectively at the reception, but they evidently did not regard it their duty to pretend a cordiality they did not feel. Neither is a man who has been in the habit of meekly receiving snubs, even from Presidents.

The New York corporation, known as the International Banking Corporation, won out in the somewhat spirited competition in which the other competitors were English banks, for the position of United States fiscal agent in the Orient, and will at its Shanghai branch handle all the indemnity money that China will pay this government, receiving thereon a commission that will go far toward making the new concern profitable from the start. Besides, it has received promises of large government business at its Manila branch. Banking in the east is doubtless very profitable, but it will be noticed that these gentlemen did not jump into the game until they made connection with United States government. Those interested admit that they are figuring on making big money out of the government, but say they might as well get it as the foreign bankers who do business in Chin.

It has been suggested to Mr. Roosevelt that if the United States is to have a special representative at the coronation of King Edward, in addition to our ambassador, Hon. Grover Cleveland, who was twice elected President and who is the only living ex-President, would be the proper man to send, but those who know Mr. Cleveland best express doubts as to whether he would accept the appointment, even if Mr. Roosevelt should tender it to him.

Ex-Gov. Bradley, of Ky., aspires to the position of Republican boss of his State. He is now in Washington urging the appointment of Daniel Collier to collector of the port of Louisville, to succeed S. M. Barrett, and laying the wires to secure a place in the Republican National Committee for himself.

Rear Admiral Schley is only human. That is why he did not participate in the White House New Year reception. Mr. Roosevelt's treatment of him has not been calculated to cause him to desire to play the hypocrite by calling to pay his respects. Therefore, he made it convenient to remember that he owed his sister, in Baltimore, a visit. He is now back in Washington, but next week he will go to Savannah, Ga., where he and Mrs. Schley will be the guests of Gen. William W. Gordon for ten days.

Dowie Likened to a Devil-Fish.

Many of our readers are acquainted with Rev. W. R. Royal, who was in this city a year or more ago, as a returned missionary from China delivered interesting lectures in several churches. Mr. Royal was formerly a Baptist minister at Reidsville, N. C., and went from there to labor as a missionary in China, where he married Miss Mary Sullivan, who went from Anderson as a missionary, and who is extensively connected with prominent families in this county. After staying in this section for several months, Mr. Royal and his wife went to Chicago, where he became a disciple of the notorious Dr. John Alexander Dowie, and was made an elder in the Dowie church organization. A week ago Mr. Royal attended the Chicago Baptist ministers' conference, and made the declaration that he wished to retrace his steps and resume his ministerial connection with the Baptist denomination. He was quite emphatic in asserting his severance from the Dowie organization, and said: "I'm sick and tired of Dowie and his teachings, and I hereby renounce him and his church forever," which was applauded by the members of the minister's conference.

A suit against Dr. Dowie had just closed, in which a receiver was asked to take charge of the Zion lace industry established by Dowie, and his attorneys had to show that, while he was not infallible, he was a great organizer like J. Pierpont Morgan, and one of them said he would prefer Dowie at his bedside, if he were at the point of death, rather than any skilled physician. On the other hand, Dowie to the plaintiff likened his arms out its victim and quieted him until it got a stronger hold with which the victim was strangled. The revelations in this trial doubtless led to the course pursued by Mr. Royal, who became convinced that he was being duped by an imposter and charlatan, and one of the stupendous humbugs of this remarkable age.

Dr. John Alexander Dowie was at home among the religious cranks in Chicago. He had a strong personal following and exercised a hypnotic influence over them. Zion come, an imposing structure of seven stories, is the headquarters in Chicago, adjoining the handsome terminal station of the Illinois Central on Michigan avenue, the stateliest and most aristocratic thoroughfare in the city. Dr. Dowie lives in the two upper stories of the building, while the ground floor is devoted to the banking business. Zion Tabernacle, which seats three thousand people, is further down the avenue, where instruction is given in divine healing. The favorite distinction is that diseases belong to the devil while healing is God's property.

Zion City is forty miles from Chicago, where Dr. Dowie was projecting a model community after his own fashion, and among other things he had established the industry of lace-making, which he imported from Nottingham, England. Dr. Dowie is a short man, broad-shouldered and portly. He is a native of Edinburgh, and was brought up a Congregationalist, in which church he was a minister for nearly twenty years until his views on healing the sick made it impossible for him to remain with them. He claims to be the prophet Elijah, is intensely argumentative, delights in sarcasm and in inveighing against sin and sinners, and prides himself on his outspokenness; fearlessness. Like all pretenders he makes a bold front, and by this means draws men and women into his net, which serves his purpose until an exposure of his real conduct is made visible to the public, and the collapse follows.—Greenville Mountaineer.

Holland's Store.

The old year has passed and the recollections of its joys and sorrows are fresh in our memories. The mistakes that we made are irremediable, but if we are more careful in the future they will serve to help us steer clear of the breakers. About the best thing we all can do in the way of resolutions is to adopt the golden rule and stick closely to it, and at the end of the year we will feel better, humanity will be elevated, untold sorrow will be a thing of the past and the road blazed out for brighter and better days. Christmas passed off very quietly in this vicinity. The occasional crack of a gun or fire cracker reminded us that it was not one continual Sunday.

The young people enjoyed the festive season by punch parties, dances, etc. The absence of "John Barley Corn" was conspicuously noticeable, which speaks well for any country.

The recent rains were heavy and continued in this neighborhood. The Savannah River was higher than at any time the past year. Generosee Creek was also very high. McGee's bridge on this creek was damaged but not seriously.

Mr. Wm. Shearer, who moved from Grant County, Ark., is on a visit with his wife to relatives and old friends in this and adjoining communities. Both are holding their own remarkably well. Mr. Shearer says he has not been sick a day since he left this county, and so much talk about the unhealthfulness of the West is all bosh. Shearidan is the county seat of his county, and about 18 miles from Little Rock. Mr. Shearer speaks in glowing terms of his adopted State.

Mr. Paul Earle lost the greater part of a bale of cotton recently by fire. A spark was supposed to have been packed in it, which was not discovered until a considerable quantity was consumed.

We are sorry to note the illness of Mrs. Hampton Earle. We learn that her physicians have very little hope of her recovery.

The following verses were composed by an illiterate darkey who lives with McGee Bros. A few months ago Mr. E. and Mrs. McGee had quite a severe attack of fever, and was attended by Dr. W. A. Clinkscales, which called forth this political genius:

"Last week when I was so sick,
I thought I was going to die;
I washed my eyes I rubbed my hands
And Sally she would cry.

My body it was racked with pain,
My arms were very slim;
I had no one to stay with me
And I sent for Rube and Jim.

The salts and tea they would not act,
I tried to take a pill;
That was more than I could stand
So I sent for Dr. Bill.

My eyes sunk back in my head,
So far I could not see;
Friends and relatives gathered round
And said good-bye, Jud McGee.

Neiva Items.

Only a few days ago we were looking forward to the comforts and pleasures that Christmas would bring, and I believe I speak the voice of this community when I say, "It brought much pleasure and happiness to all." But as Christmas, with all its merriments, has passed and a new year has dawned upon us, the question naturally arises as to what we will do to pass the time. But the question is not hard for the school boy to settle when he hears the sturdy command of the father: "Get your books and off to school." The question is yet easier settled with the industrious farmer, who when New Year morning comes, will find himself bustling about before daybreak, ringing the farm bell or giving the war-whoop. The lads and lassies look out a little farther to the time when the flowers appear, the time when everything seems to be in harmony, and even the birds and flowers join in singing nature's charms. Then you may hear lad suggest to lassie that "we gather wild flowers," and about this time "a young man's fancies lightly turns to thoughts of love." Our Heavenly Father has arranged in nature things for our pleasure and happiness in every month during the year, if we will only look for them.

Misses Mollie and Bessie Shirley returned to Lebanon last Monday to resume their studies in the Lebanon High School.

Cadet Major Shirley returned to Clemson last Saturday.

Misses Mary and Myrtle Haynie, of Belton, worshipped at Long Branch Sunday.

One of our clever bachelors took his girl to a rainbow party the other night. Bachelors, you know, are naturally careless, and during the stay his mule became restless, slipped the rein from the post which it was thrown over, and went home. This, of course, was very unfortunate for a bachelor, as they have no time to lose.

The young people of this community enjoyed several nice parties during the holidays and since.

Our new pastor at Long Branch, Rev. L. E. Campbell, preached two eloquent sermons last Saturday and Sunday. We heartily welcome Bro. Campbell into our midst, as we believe he is a truly consecrated Christian gentleman, and trust that this, his first pastoral year, will be crowned with great success. H. M.

S. C. Inter-State and West Indian Exposition.

The Charleston and Western Carolina Railway beg to announce that they have arranged reduced rates from all their stations to Charleston on account of the Exposition.

Parties can avail themselves of a season ticket, a ten-day or a seven-day ticket, from any point on this line at very low rates. Apply to agents for further information, as to schedules, rates, etc. W. J. Craig, General Passenger Agent.
