This is the Spot Cash -Clothing Store-

You have heard so much about. The Store where Credit is unknown. The Store where Reliable Clothing is sold at a small margin of profit, smaller by far than any Credit Clothier can afford.

We have told you this before, and we mean every word of it. If we weren't doing this very thing, instead of a large and prosperous Clothing Store you would find here simply an empty place.

The trade wouldn't come to us and pay Cash if they could get the same Goods at the same prices on a credit.

People don't come here to trade because they like us. They have found out that it pays them to trade here. And it'll pay you, too.

More customers are coming every month, and our business is by far the largest we have ever known.

Our Fall Clothing is here, ready for your inspection. Here are some of the values we offer:

Hart, Schaffner & Marx Tailor Made Clothes

$5.00

Is the low price we place on a big line of Men's and Young Men's Suits. Blue and Black Cheviots, also Cassimers in Checks and Plaids. Every one of them excellent value, and we doubt if a Credit Store can match them for a dollar more.

$7.50

Is the small price we place on an excellent line of Men's Suits in Blue and Black Worsteds, Blue and Black All Wool Cheviots. Also, Cassimers in Stripes, Checks and Plaids. These Suits are not usually sold at $7.50, but here you save at least a dollar to a dollar and a half on them.

At $10.00, $12.50, $15.00, $16.50, $18.00 and $20.00 you will find an assortment that would do credit to a much larger city. These Suits have to be seen to be appreciated. But you can take our word for it that there's a saving for you at each price.

Our Hurricane Creek Correspondent Dilates on Various Subjects.

Noticing the editor's call to his scattered correspondents—whom no doubt he knew were now wrestling with the mighty forces of mother earth and her produce—a Piedmont contributor (once ye "Portman scribe") rises to the rally of Hurricane Creek section and proclaims we are not all dead—we sleeping.

Edits are peculiar geniuses, though this is not an essay on the man with the quill. Once we may enter the hair-brained sanctum and fear lest our irrelevant toes may, within the hallowed ground, touch upon some effusion which is one of a thousand occupying all space from the floor to ceiling. We fear to speak lest the vibration of our voice sends rickets into the cerebellum of the body corporate of literature, or that one word more on or off the subject may be the last straw. We retire from the place silently as though from suffocation and cramming of brains the miniature Pantheon nerve become a mausoleum, our freezing breaths aspirating the while: How fearfully and wonderfully made thou art, oh man!

Again, we enter, when from the despoiled appearance of the sanctum, suggestions materialize before us a hobgoblin from Plutonian shores who had surfeited his ghoulish maw on cemented cellular tissue. The editor occupied in calling up the shades of his invisible contributors, and the compositor within his outer sanctum transferring to type the proclamation to a mystic circle: "Where are our correspondents? Friends, awake!"

Correspondents are glad to be remembered, even collectively. Something within them swells up at the challenge of extinction and exclaims: "here am I!"

Perhaps the corps of quill wielders were effacing from the earth the written history of negligence or time's defacement. Ye dilatory correspondent was in Pelzer absorbing the stock show, or was discussing what outer boundaries of Pelzer have not yet been still doing. Pelzer itself is the center of accomplishment. One point conspicuous upon the arena of this city's activity is where she throws the gauntlet. His challenge, admirable from north to south in this State, is the chief innovation known as "kindness to old soldiers."

Pelzer sets an example to larger and older cities in her patriotic kindness; and when the dusty Confederate veterans on the last tired camping ground are thanking the good angels of past recollections for the cup of cold water, they won't forget Pelzer and her creamy hot coffee.

There is also a suggestion that when Williamston, the academic neighbor, is in the near future erecting a monument to Co. D, 61st Rifles, Pelzer will say: "I am in the contribution. I love the old soldier. I inscribe my name on the tablet of donation. Here is remembrance to the old soldier."

The wives with the sedate veterans enjoyed all privileges gratis; and that is one way in which Pelzer substantiates her claim to popularity and is likely to set the march to prosperity to Piedmont and Anderson and Belton. Women have long memories for good and bad, and have a peculiar way of tickling their husbands' ears with recollections.

The stock show was a thing of beauty. Let anybody ask anybody who was there. Everything from bird to beast that had excellence of its own was on parade or exhibition. We were interested in the spirited horses and riders, and especially was ye scribe transfixed by the third heaven in the vagaries of the festive mule; whose heels thereof might be shod with burnished gold as translucently they shimmered in the upper air where the warm sun laughed in their mirrors at its own reflection. Of the happy owners of the agile animals the writer learned no name; but each proud proprietor of its kind will know his own quadruped by the above description.

We would like to say a word of Piedmont—at least of our little town in connection with Pelzer. It cannot be easily said that Piedmont was not in it. Piedmont was, and all the glory of her whirling mills and clean life and exclusive population was with her as she paid her addresses to Pelzer.

Piedmont's surrounding country is jubilant in the success of crops better than the country has seen for years. We believe the country needs a little time for other labor than bringing within shelter the various commodities exchangeable for yellow gold. One neighbor, however, Mr. Richard Jones, has found time for the labor of love and called to the interest of his heart and home an estimable lady whom he denominates wife. This simply to announce Mr. Jones' timely wisdom, and forewarn all the young ladies accustomed to await the appearance of Mr. Jones' buggy at Shiloh Friday. The big church has been captured, relieving benevolent financial ligations of kind-hearted young persons who sought to check the gentleman's seemingly willful career of widowed bachelorhood. So mote it be! With this happy effect to a Piedmont country letter we leave the field now to further contributors who are prize by reader and editor as weekly correspondents to The Intelligencer. R. R. L. Piedmont, Sept. 20.

A Most Shocking Tragedy in a Church.

One of the most shocking panics that has been reported in this country occurred in Shiloh Baptist Church, at Birmingham, Ala., where the negro Baptist convention is in session, last Friday. The big church was packed. Booker Washington had just finished speaking. A negro lawyer from Baltimore got into a row with a choir leader and the people near them called "fight," which the audience mistook for "fire." A minister got on the rostrum and led "quiet" waving his arms, which the crowd took for a further warning and they went wild. The church is about 15 feet from the ground, the approaches being high brick guards, which proved a veritable death trap. The people were pushed over and "quiet" was finished. The walls, ground in the earth and mashed to a pulp in many cases, while the mass behind struggled and fought for exit. The trouble was increased by people on the outside trying to break in through the jam.

The police had to remove the mass from the doors. It was so jammed that it could not loosen itself any more than it had been composed of so many logs. One hundred and ten people were killed and many injured.
