The Hartwell (Ga.) Sun, in its issue of last week, comes to us in a thirtytwo page illustrated form, and in all respects is highly creditable to Editors Magill and their assistants. It is styled a trade issue, is a thing of beauty typographically, and makes a most admirable showing of the resources of Hartwell and Hart County.

The coal strike grows worse and worse and the tempers are becoming warmer on both sides, while the public sees the prospect of a winter without fuel. At the present time both sides are evidently as determined as ever, and all the prophecies as to the duration of the strike having failed the people are settling down to the belief that the battle must be fought to a finish.

The Columbia Record thinks that it is likely that the Republicans will have a candidate in every congressional district in this State this year, for the purpose of having contests before congress, a considerable amount of, money bieng allowed for expenses of contestants. It is most important that every Democrat vote for congressmen, so as to give as little excuse as possible for these contests.

A proposition has been introduced

he has not the courage to follow his convictions. There is asentiment of Republican revolt in the West, due to the conviction that there must be a revision of the tariff in the interest of the people. It is this sentiment which has caused the withdrawal of Speaker Henderson in the Third Congressional District of Iowa, this eminent high-tariff revision idea. There is undoubtedly a serious disaffection in Republican ranks. The condition created by the growth of this sentiment for tariff reviis in promises some big surprises in the November elections. The Democratic campaign managers are justified in working confidently and aggressively for the return of a Democratic majority to the next Congress,

THE COMMERCIAL AND AGRICUL TURAL VALUE OF FERTILIZERS.

What is known as the commercia value of fertilizers as published in agricultural bulletins and similar docagricultural bulletins and similar documents, is a valuation made up by adding together the average value of the chemical ingredients which are contained in the fertilizers.

The agricultural value of a fertilizer is variable according to the skill of the farmer and according to the corn, and according to the sensons. It

A proposition has been introduced by the Prohibition party of Corbaid county, New York, which demands that every man who drinks intoxicating beverages shall take out a license costing not less than $5 a year. Every six months the names of the license holders are to be published in the official newspapers of the county. The leaders propose to introduce a measure of this nature in the Legislature.

One of the most important and difficult questions that will come before the next Legislature is that of providing pensions for the deserving Confederate colders. It is unwise to continue to increase the appropriation without first making it impossible for unworthy camp followers to participate in the fund. An increase in the amount paid to each pensioner. The law should protect the deserving by excluding the undeserving.

Attention is directed to an article on page six of this issue on the subject of hw to save sweet potatoes. This article is by A. W. Brabham, of Bamberg County, who is a prominent and successful farmer. What he has to say not only has a common-sensoring to it, but is the result of practical tests after close observation. This article, coming as it does just before the time for harvesting potatoes, will doubtless be appreciated by our readers, and we believe that those who adopt the methods pointed out by Mr. Baham will be most successful farmer. Is as good to you as to any one. Why not save all you can? We'll show you how: Following out this principle the question with us is not how much profit we can make, but how little we can afferd to take, preferring to give our customers all we can, to help them to successfully combat with the hardships they meet. Knowing, then, as we do, that our purchases are made with facilities that could not possibly be excelled, and that we are willing to sell goods at a closer margin of profit, we do not think we are immodest when we claim to deserve the full confidence and patronage of our customers. And especially may we make this claim when the PROOF IS AT HAND to show that whenever this confidence and patronage has been extended to us SPLENDID and ever this confidence and patronage has been extended to us SPLENDID and
