Just finished we did the Largest Business of any September in the history of the Honse! : : : : : ; : : : : : : :

For the nine months of 1902 the sales have mounted to a height never before attained. This may interest some of you who have been trading with us year after year, for it's human nature to have pride in the Store where you trade.

Now, there must be some good reason for this increase in our business. People don't come here to trade because they like us. If they could buy the same Goods at the same prices on credit they wouldn't come here and pay us cash in advance.

No, the only reason they pay us the Cash is because we save them money. They have found out that it pays them to trade here, and it'll pay you, too.

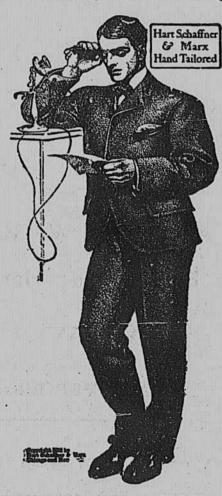

We are selling GOOD CLOTHING at a smaller margin of profit than any Credit Clothiers can afford. No doubt about it.

We have told you this before, and we mean every word of it-every word. If we weren't doing this very thing, instead of a large and prosperous Clothing Store you would find here simply an empty space.

Every Credit Clothier has a certain amount of losses by bad debts. Then there's a high-priced book-keeper to pay.

Here we have no losses. No book-keeper to pay. Every sale is Cash. We don't have to add on a certain per cent to our Goods to cover losses by bad debts and to pay book-

If we can't save you money we don't want your trade.

Our Fall Clothing is Here READY FOR YOUR INSPECTION.

Here are some of the Values we offer:

$5.00

Is the low price we place on a big line of Men's and Young Men's Suits. Blue and Black Cheviots, also Cassimeres in Checks and Plaids. Every one of them are excellent value, and we doubt if a Credit Store can match them for a dollar-

$7.50

Is the small price we place on an excellent line of Men's Suits in Blue and Black Worsteds, Blue and Diack All Wool Chevicts. Also Cassimers in Stripes, Checks and Plaids. These Suits are not usually sold at $7.50, but here you save at least a dollar to a dollar and a half on them.

At $10.00, 12.50, 15.00, 16.50, 18.00 and 20.00 you will find an assortment that would do credit to a much larger city These Suits have to be seen to be appreciated. But you can take our word for it that there's a saving for you at each price.

THE VIEWS OF AN EXPERT.

What Has Been Done in Development of Dairying and Stocking Raising.

Mr. L. A. Ransom, who is well known in the South on account of his conspicuous work in agricultural matters and his connection with the South Carolina department of agriculture, and now with the Southern Cotton Oil Company, as District Manager, & Atlanta, Ga., in writing about the influence of cotton seed products on the development of dairying in the South, says:

Company, as District Manager, a Atlanta, Ga., in writing about the influence of cotton seed products on the development of dairying in the South, says:

"About 1850, a few wealthy and enterprising Southern planters imported some Devon cattle from England. These were turned loose in canebrakes with the native scrubs and allowed to roam over large areas of wooded country, picking up a precarious living on the scant pasturage afforded by the woods freshly burned over by the forest fires in the spring. Although widely scattered and a few in number, the prepotency of this breed was so great that in many sections the evidence of this infusion of good blood is still visible in the stock.

"No well-to-do planter at that time considered that he had milch cows enough to supply the wants of his family unles he owned at least twenty-five or thirty head. These droves of half-wild and half-famished animals were located towards nightfall by the ringing of a bell hung around the neck of the leader. They were driven to the cow-pen, sometimes miles from where they were found in the woods, a spasmodic effort was made to extract milk from them, penned up over night, and a second attempt made upon them the next morning. The 'average yield' was about one quart per cow.

"The idea of increasing this production by judicious feeding was not thought of. This was the rule, but of course there were notable exceptions. People who did not own unlimited acres of land, and who appreciated milk and butter, took better care of their cows, fed them regularly, and allowed them to pasture during the day on their neighbors' land. This pasturing was more to give them proper exercise, and keep them heaithy than to afford them any means of subsistence. To such an extent had the cattle interests of South Carolina in 1880 depreciated that the repairs to the farm fence cost more than the value of the cattle instead of the crops. This forced the farmers to own good milch cows, or none at all, as it became too expensive to feed poor stock. About this time, proper attention, gave rich returns on her cost and keep, and, like the Irishman's pig that he raised in the cabin with his children, she "paid the rent" as well as the freight. As compared with the Devon, she was smaller in statue and gave less milk, but the proportion of cream to water in what she did give, far exceeded that of the Devon, the Durham, and Holstein, and she promptly became the prime favorite of smail families and butter-makers. But she could not live without feed, and butter could not be produced profitably on corn meal, wheatbran, or cowpea diet, nor could it be produced at all on what the Jersey could pick up in the pastures.

Nature, always lavish, but provident, hid away coal in the earth for ages, only to be uncovered when the world needed it most, pointed the way to the gold fields only when this precious metal was absolutely required for the world's commerce, and covered from sight the phosphete rock of the Caro-metal was absolutely required for the world's commerce. and covered from sight the phosphete rock of the Carolinas until improvident man had destroyed the fertility of the fields, likewise she held back the material required to make dairying in the South possible and profitable, until conditions were favorable for its use.

The advent of the Jersey cov created a demand for a cheap and rich food, which the oil mills supplied with hults and meal. In a list of fifty of the leading feed materials of the United States, the National Department of Agriculture ranks cotton seed meal first, in feeding value and places the value of cotton seed hulls for the same purpose above the best timothy hay. The use of these products has fully sustained the department's reports, and dairy farming is fast becoming an industry of importance, and this has been largely the result of the liberal policy of the Southern Cotton Oil Co. of the Carolinas and Georgia, which has headquarters at Columbia, S. C., Atlanta, Ga., Savannah, Ga. and Charlotte, N. C., Goldsboro, N. C., and Augusta, Ga.

Around the large cities in the South.

Atlanta, Ga., Savannah, Ga. and Charlotte, N. C., Goldsboro, N. C., and Augusta, Ga.

Around the large cities in the South. dairies are successfully operated, supplying the people with wholesome milk, and rich golden butter from cows fed on hulls and meal. The country mills have accomplished the same thing for the farms and small towns. Around the factory towns the small mills make dairying possible, and profitable, as the demand from the operatives is sufficient to consume all the milk and butter that can be produced, and the use of meal for fertilizing the land, which is sold reasonably by the Southern Cotton Oil Company, has greatly enlarged the area devoted to truck farming of all kinds.

Without oil mill products dairying would be impossible in many sections would be impossible in many sections of the South. The abundance, cheapness and convenience of the prodifits has already developed the business to an interesting extent and it is only in its infancy, and its growth will increase rapidly each year with the steady improvement in the grade of milch cows. Oleomargarine contains about forty per cent. milk, and the compound is a wholesome product. The establishment of co-operative factories for its manufacture in the vicinity of oil mills where refined oil can be had would give a tremendous impetus to dairying in the South.

A New Feature to Secure Accurate Statistics of the Cotton Crop.

Mr. James W. Bowden, of Anderson, has been appointed a local special agent of the Census Office to collect agent of the Census Office to collect cotton-ginning statistics of this County, and we join the Government in urging the ginners to give Mr. Bowden their hearty support and co-operation. The county support and co-operation thus enabling him to make prompt and accurate returns. We would impress upon the gimers the fact that this agent is a sworn officer of the Government, and that their reports are forwarded as given to him directly to the Census Office, at Washington, without passing through the hands of any middlemen. The information given is held as strictly confidential, and the operations of individual ginners are not divulged. Upon the joint co-operation of the cotton growers, ginners, and local agents must depend the success of the Census Office in this inquiry, and its ability to render this great scrice to the Southern people and to all interested in the cotton staple.

The Census Office has demonstrated in three annual reports the fact that the ginners are the only reliable source.

The Census Office has demonstrated in three annual reports the fact that the ginners are the only reliable source of information as to the volume of the annual cotton crop. This is very complimentary to the ginners, who, no doubt, will feel a pride in sustaining the reputation earned.

In recognition of this interest shown by the ginners, and of a general de-by the ginners, and of a general demand for more frequent reports through this source, Congress, in the act creatthis source, Congress, in the act creating a permanent census office, provided for the collection and publication of these statistics at intervals during the ginning season. For the crop of 1902 the office will issue three reports: the first two will cover the quantity of cotton ginned up to and including October 18 and December 13, respectively; and the final report will cover the total quantity ginned from the growth of 1902.

Realizing that the collection of the data for these reports is made at a sea-data for these reports is made at a season when the ginners' time is greatly taxed, and appreciating the necessity for prompt returns, the Census office has located, in each county containing ten or more ginneries, an agent, who will visit each ginnery in the county will visit each ginnery in the county and secure a report of the quantity of cotton ginned up to certain dates. In undertaking the frequent and hurried reports now sought, it is of vital importance that the returns be made with absolute uniformity, and that all be received at Washington at one time. This result could not be expected from individual requests made by mail of 30,000 ginners, at a time when they are 30,000 ginners, at a time when they are engrossed in their ginning work. Fur-thermore, the Census Office must be kept advised of all changes in the management and operation of these estab-lishments, and secure returns from al new and revived plants. To accomplish such results, it becomes necessary for the office to have local representatives who shall be charged with the duty of keeping in close touch with the giuning industry in each county, and of prompt-ly reporting the quantity of cotton gin-

Nothing short of official reports, made sufficiently early to form a basis of prices, will entirely satisfy the cotton grower or manufacturer. It is gratifying to know that the South has the assistance and co-operation of the Government in bringing about the result they desire—an undertaking the success of which now depends upon the cotton growers and ginners themselves.

"Contributions as a result of your inspired and inspiring letter continue to reach me from nearly every part of the Union. I have received up to date, as a result of your letter, $541. But, better than all money that could be sent me, is the brotherly love, good will, expressions of kindness which prevade every letter that I have received, and I have yet to hear of a any adverse criticism anywhere in Alabama, either as to your action or as to mine in receiving the funds contributed. Grant, 'Let us have peace."
