

WAR STORIES.

Last Battle of the War.

Columbia State.

The State's readers will no doubt be interested to learn that in the last battle east of the Mississippi...

The last battle was the one fought at West Point, Georgia, on Sunday, April 16, 1865...

Fort Tyler was at this period commanded by Maj. Gen. Robt. C. Tyler, an intrepid Tennessean...

It was a beautiful spring Sabbath day, the skies blue, the sunshine golden...

For nearly seven hours the unequal conflict was waged, the battle of 3,750 federal cavalry men...

Early in the engagement General Tyler was killed. He was plucked off by a sharpshooter...

Again and again the South Carolina battery (White's) was commended for its bravery...

The South Carolinians were conspicuous for their bravery. Almost General Tyler's last speech was words praising them for their daring...

gun mounted upon the western rampart of the fort. Col. James H. Fannin, who had arrived to take command when Capt. Gonzales fell...

Lieut. Waddell, of whose daring old West Pointers love to speak, seeing Webb fall, and noting the condition of the gun...

Lieut. Self, also of White's battery, was another South Carolina hero of the battle of Fort Tyler...

Military experts, who have since made a study of existing conditions and have carefully gathered the facts...

In the cemetery at West Point, Ga., several of the brave South Carolinians who lost their lives in the defense of Fort Tyler...

Old "Yets" in Spartanburg.

Spartanburg, July 14.—The Confederate Veteran has not passed away yet. Quite a number may be seen here on public days...

Early in the engagement General Tyler was killed. He was plucked off by a sharpshooter while exposing himself in the attempt to use his field glass...

of the same regiment, John Turner and his 18-year-old son, John, volunteered. The father was known as "Bully John" and he was always ready and willing for a fight...

Veterans Show Their Appreciation.

All true Southerners are interested in the fact that the federal government has at last made a national appropriation for the preservation and marking of graves of Confederate soldiers...

General Orders No. 63. The general commanding has the greatest possible pleasure in promulgating the following resolution adopted at the present reunion held in the city of New Orleans:

Whereas, after long years of patient toil and laborious effort a national appropriation has been made by the federal government for the preservation and marking of graves of Confederate soldiers...

Whereas, The great burden and necessary labor required to secure this end has fallen upon the members of the Charles Broadway Rouse Camp No. 1191, especially upon Dr. Samuel E. Lewis, commander...

Resolved, That the thanks, not only of this Association, but of all living Confederates and their sympathizers and admirers are justly due these veterans and these noble and unselfish women...

Too much praise cannot be bestowed on these zealous men and noble-hearted women for the work they have done. That this great undertaking has been brought to a successful issue is due in great measure to the unremitting labors of these untiring patriots...

By command of Stephen D. Lee, General Commanding.

Stabbed to Death by a Madman.

Soranton, Pa., July 18.—A terrible tragedy was perpetrated in the Hill-side Home this afternoon when one insane patient killed two of the inmates and mortally wounded one of the keepers.

The murderer is Ignatz Krewypp, deaf and dumb Pole, who was not regarded as dangerous. He was given work in one of the wards with two women, also insane patients...

Seizing the opportunity afforded by the keeper's absence the insane man ran into the doctor's office, and there picked up an amputating knife, and ran up stairs to the upper floor.

After the deed was committed he jabbered in a vehement manner, and no sign of emotion could be obtained from him. He is now a living maniac.

Davies is not expected to live.

See Street Commanded to Death.

London, July 19.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg says the report of the commission appointed to inquire into the circumstances attending the surrender of Fort Arthur...

The commission considers that General Broussard should be expelled from the army and that Admiral Almirante should be expelled from the navy.

overlooked by a man's observation. It is worth noting that the...

President Roosevelt and the Kittens.

President Roosevelt and Mr. Root, the secretary of war, were returning from a horseback ride, when something occurred to throw a new light on the character of the famous president. They heard sharp cries of distress near by.

"What is it?" asked Mr. Root. "Kittens, I think," replied the president, turning his horse round, "and they seem to be in distress."

The president beckoned to two urchins who, from an awed distance, were watching the performance. "Will one of you boys crawl into the opening while the other holds his legs?" President Roosevelt asked.

Sport like that, with the greatest personage in the United States as umpire, could come reasonably only once in a lifetime, and the boys grasped the opportunity.

"That's it!" exclaimed the president. "Now, what do you find there?"

"Cats in a bag," called out the boy, with his head in the drain. The other boy sturdily lunged to his companion's legs. The kittens, unaware that their plight had stirred the sympathies of the head of a nation, and that their deliverance was at hand, waited as if a new calamity were about to befall them.

In a moment the president of the United States, the secretary of war, and two excited youngsters stood around the rescued litter. Three forlorn kittens struggled feebly. Then the wrath of the leader, who has hunted wild game and shot down lions, blazed out upon the wretch who had fled the kittens to die in slow agony.

The commotion brought out a wondering butler from a neighboring residence.

"Will you care for these little kittens?" asked the president; "give them milk and a place to live?"

Had the man been asked to become a member of Mr. Roosevelt's government, he could not have responded with more heartfelt eagerness.

The president thanked him, told the astonished urching that they were little men, and joining the secretary of war moved on to the White House.

It is hardly necessary to add a moral to this true story, as any intelligent boy or girl must see that if the president of the United States, the elected ruler over seventy-five millions of people, can find time to tender a little act of mercy to poor little kittens, there can be no excuse for a boy or girl neglecting to do his or her duty by the so-called "lower animals" whenever any of them are found in distress and needing assistance.

One day a couple of my friends were sitting on the river bank when they heard the cry of a frog in distress. Following the direction from which the sound came, they discovered a snake in the act of swallowing a frog. Just then another frog, evidently attracted by the distressing cries of its mate in jeopardy, hopped up to the scene of action.

Then leaped forward, seized the snake by the neck and tugged it into the river. The water quickly poured between the snake's distended jaws, and it was, of course, compelled to release its victim in order to escape drowning. This it promptly did, and the liberated frog swam away with its plucky mate while the baffled snake wriggled as best it could to the shore.

Do You Open Your Mouth

Like a young bird and gulp down whatever food of medicine may be offered you. Do you want to know something about composition and character of the food you take into your stomach which is food or medicine?

Most intelligent and sensible men now-a-days insist on knowing what they employ whether as food or as medicine. Hence they believe they have a right to know something about the composition and character of the food they eat, and the medicines they use.

A Wise Father.

When Sherman Hoar, a lawyer of recognized ability, left the law school and opened an office in Boston, his father, Judge Hoar, was at the height of his legal reputation. The young man's first client was an Irishman, and the case, though only some small matter of a boundary line, was one that required the examination of a number of deeds and records.

"What's it?" he whispered. "Couldn't ye give me the answer tomorrow, Mister Hoar?"

"No, no," was the reply; "come on Thursday."

The client went as far as the stairs. Then he turned and tiptoed back to the door and put his head inside, with a finger at his lips.

"Whist!" he whispered. "Couldn't ye get to see your father tonight, Mister Hoar?"—Boston Herald.

This Story is Always Good.

Timothy Woodruff tells of a family in Dutches county who recently took into their employ a rosy-cheeked Irish maid-of-all-work, whose blunders afforded them amusement to compensate for any trouble she may entail.

"One day the owner of the place staid in the girl's hearing that he intended to have a wood house built on a piece of ground which at that time enclosed a well.

"Sure, sor," said the inquiring Margaret, "will you be movin' the well to a more convenient spot whin the wood house is builded?"

As a smile crossed the face of her employer Margaret, at once perceived she had made a mistake of some sort. "It's a fool I am, shure," she added hastily, bound to retrieve herself: "of course, whin the well was moved every drop of water would run out of it!"—Harper's Weekly.

Old Dr. Drummond.

After years of patient study and experiment, has given the world a preparation which is an absolute and permanent cure for every form of rheumatism. The price is $5, but it is two large bottles, enough for a month's treatment and will relieve the worst case from the first dose.

Old Dr. Drummond.

S. C. Military Academy.

South Carolina Military Academy. Office of the Chairman Board of Visitors. A vacancy in the State Scholarship exists in Anderson County.

Notice of Partnership.

R. W. Simpson and James P. Cary have this day formed a partnership for the practice of law, under the firm name of Cary & Simpson.

College of Charleston.

121st Year Begins September 23. Letters, Science, Engineering. One scholarship, giving free tuition, to each county of South Carolina.

University of South Carolina.

Session 1887-1887 Begins Wednesday, September 25th. Five courses leading to B. A. degree and one to L. B. degree.

Don West Female College.

For the year 1887-1888. Full course of study. Tuition free. Board $1.00 per week.

Notice of Election.

Notice of election for the year 1887-1888. The election will be held on the 1st day of October.

CASTORIA advertisement with signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and text describing the product's benefits.

ARE YOU WANTING A HOME advertisement for Anderson County, listing various tracts and their features.

A. C. STRICKLAND, DENTIST advertisement with logo and office information.

The Anderson Real Estate and Investment Co. advertisement listing services and contact information.