News Summary.

The Flying Dragon is the name of a Chinese newspaper, published in London, by Professor SCOMERON. Prince NAPOLEON is about to sell his bronze and marble statues collected in his Roman House in Paris. M. Louis HOTTINGUER, a rich banker, died lately in Paris. His estate is valued at $12,000,000. CAVE JOHNSON, Postmaster-General under President POLE, is a candidate for the Tennessee State Senate, to fill a vacancy occasioned by the death of Senator BART. VICTOR HUGO declined an offer of $100,000, made by the Societe de Paris, for his "Les Travailleurs de la Mer," having an insuperable objection to publishing a work of art in detached pieces. If Victor is an exile, he cannot be a very poor one. Dispatches from San Francisco record that the shock of an earthquake more severe than any experienced since the memorable one of last October was felt on the 23rd instant on the Pacific coast. Gilroy is the only town from which damage is reported. One of the greatest projects of the age, in the way of engineering, is a marine railway around Niagara Falls. The company propose to construct caissons or docks, capable of floating the largest vessels on the Lakes. The grade to be overcome, in the distance of eight miles, is about three hundred and forty feet, and the whole cost about $7,000,000. There are now eleven vacant Cardinal's hats, and it is reported that six of them will be placed on the heads of the following Prelates at the June Consistory: Monsignore MATTEUCCI, ex-Governor of Rome; HORNHOLZ, the Pope's almoner; CHIEI, Papal Nuncio at Paris, where he will be succeeded by Monsignore FRANCINI; MANNING, Archbishop of Westminster; LYNCH, Bishop of Charleston, and a Mexican Prelate. The Augusta Daily Press says: "A lad of some fourteen years of age, the son of Mrs. GALLAGHER, was killed by a negro boy, on Friday afternoon last. Young GALLAGHER was getting a puppy from under his house to give to the negro boy, who had a loaded pistol in his hand at the time, threatening to shoot another negro, probably in play, when the pistol went off, the ball striking the deceased in the head, killing him almost instantly." A man named DAVIS was sent, some time since, from Xenia, Ohio, to Cincinnati, by a national bank of the former place, with funds to buy for them $16,000 worth of bonds. On his return he announced that the whole amount had been stolen from him. The incredulous bank directors set a detective on him, who followed him to Independence, Mo., and succeeded in getting nearly all the money from him. The alleged principal in the great bond robbery of $1,500,000 from the office of Mr. R. G. LOMB has been apprehended, and there is a strong probability of the stolen property being recovered. Information reached United States Marshal MURRAY a few days since that the persons implicated in the affair were about to leave for Boston. They were watched and followed, and the supposed principal in this mammoth theft was captured on his arrival at Newburyport, Mass. The rewards offered for the arrest of the thieves and recovery of the property amount to nearly a quarter of a million of dollars. A spirited race took place at New Market Course, Va., on Thursday, and much interest was manifested by the large crowd who were present. The running was good, and the betting lively. The distance run was half a mile, three heats, stakes $50. Two nags were entered, viz: Mr. DITMAN'S g. m., sire Portmouth, dam Andredetta, and Mr. DAVIS' b. m., sire Revenue, dam Rot ma. In the first heat the bay mare came out ahead, but was beaten in the second, and distanced in the third. After the first heat, bets as high as two, three and four to one were offered in favor of the grey mare. The result is as follows: DITMAN'S g. m., 2, 1; DAVIS' b. m., 2, 2, distanced. The winning horse was rode by Mr. THOMAS DEWE, of this city. A strong room recently constructed for a London bank is thus described: The walls, two feet thick, are formed of hard bricks laid in cement, and with hoop iron worked in. The room is lined throughout with wrought iron half an inch thick. There are two doors—the outer a strong iron one with two locks, and the inner one of combined steel and iron of extraordinary strength, with two locks throwing ten bolts. A safe placed inside, weighing eight tons and throwing twenty bolts, contains the cash and securities. An alarm in the resident clerk's bedroom is attached to the inside of the strong room, so that if the outer door is opened a gong is set going. A porter sleeps on a bed in front of the outer door, and by pulling a handle he can set the alarm off if necessary, and there is a watchman always on duty. In discussing the point whether or not the late President LINCOLN ever contemplated the evacuation of Fort Sumter, the Herald of the 28th ult. says: "The evidence is principally devoted to a question of veracity between BALDWIN on the one side, and LEWIS and BORRIS on the other, as to whether President LINCOLN did or did not submit to Mr. BALDWIN, as a messenger from the said Secession Convention, sent for by the President, a proposition that if said Convention, without dipping into secession, would adjourn sine die, he would take the responsibility of evacuating Fort Sumter. BALDWIN says he received no such proposition. LEWIS and BORRIS say that, from his own statements at the time, BALDWIN did receive it, and that BORRIS took him to task for not submitting it to the Convention, as a matter of the utmost importance.

GEN. LEE "PUT TO THE QUESTION." The Inquisition at Washington, known as the Committee on Reconstruction, having plenary power "to send for persons and papers," have hadly patronized General LEE. They sent for the great ex-rebel—drawing him from his peaceful seclusion in the mountains of Virginia—to put him through a course of Reconstruction Catechism. We have never had the pleasure of seeing any of the distinguished gentlemen, over which Senator HOWARD presides, but we have very frequently seen the illustrious catechumen, and can well conceive the calm dignity that sat upon his noble brow, and the expression of surprise, pictured in those deep, truthful eyes, at the tenor of some of the questions put to him. We can conceive, moreover, that Senator HOWARD and his fourteen learned assessors, not infrequently must have felt rather sheepish in the course of this catechizing; and sometimes again, the whole farce must have been so apparent, even to themselves, that we are sure they must have experienced no little difficulty to maintain sufficient gravity to play their role. They of course knew perfectly well, beforehand, what would be the tenor of General LEE's replies; and these replies not being to their liking, they seemed to take pleasure in putting perplexing home questions to him. They were not restrained by motives of delicacy. Why should they? Had they not power "to send for persons and papers?" The Reporters do not tell us how the veteran soldier behaved under this inquisitorial infliction; we feel assured, however, he did not tremble in the august presence, but acquitted himself, as he has often done on more trying occasions. Many of the questions are commonplace, trivial and puerile. He was asked about the "loyalty" of the "secessionists;" whether these late rebels would vote for a repudiation of the United States debt; whether they would not also like to pay the "so-called" Confederate debt; how Virginians feel towards freedmen; whether negroes have any special capacity for mathematics and the exact sciences [rather a hard question for our old General, and he very modestly told his interrogators that he did not know]. They asked him about the domestic, social and economic habits of the freedman, and the reasons therefor. What would the "secessionists" do in case of a war between the United States and some foreign power or powers? Are the poor whites of Virginia more fond of work now than they were formerly? Can Northern capitalists and laborers come to Virginia and go to work there? We do not deem it necessary to lay the answers to these questions before our readers. General LEE is a fair representative of the South; every Southern man, therefore, can readily answer these questions for himself, and on comparison he will find that his ideas on loyalty and reconstruction perfectly coincide with those of General LEE. But before we close our brief notice of this lengthy document, we will give one or two specimens of Mr. HOWARD's crucial questions: "Is there not a general dislike of Northern men among Secessionists?" A. I suppose they would prefer not to associate with them; I do not know that they would select them as associates. "Do they avoid and ostracize them socially?" A. They might avoid them; they would not select them as associates unless there was some reason; I do not know that they would associate with them until they became acquainted; I think it probable they would not admit them into their social circles. "Suppose a jury was impaneled in your own neighborhood, taken by lot, would it be possible to convict, for instance, Jefferson Davis, for having levied war upon the United States, and thus having committed the crime of treason?" A. I think it is very probable that they would not consider he had committed treason. "Suppose the jury should be clearly and plainly instructed by the Court that such an act of war upon the part of Mr. Davis, or any other leading man, constituted in itself the crime of treason under the Constitution of the United States, would the jury be likely to heed that instruction, and, if the facts were plainly in proof before them, convict the offender?" A. I do not know, sir, what they would do on that question. As this Committee has examined a great many very prejudiced witnesses on the state of loyalty in the South, and the fitness and capacity of the late rebels for a return into the bosom of the Union, we are glad that the "other side" has had a hearing also, and that General LEE was enabled to record his testimony on the leading topics in controversy. We sincerely hope, though we scarcely expect, that the quiet dignity, and calm, gentleman-like candor of General LEE's replies may exercise a salutary influence on his interrogators, and on the Northern people at large. And, in conclusion, we would again assure them that General LEE's opinions are those of every Southern gentleman.

GREENEY'S. The paternity of Senator STEWART'S proposition, that universal amnesty shall be offered the South in exchange for universal suffrage, really belongs to Mr. GREENEY, who brought forward precisely the same thing in the Tribune a year ago. It is not much to be wondered at that Mr. SIMMONS offered a French embrace to the Senator from Nevada, on hearing a plan of this character from his lips. It is a poor thing for anybody to father, and finds its natural place among the multitude of singular little bantlings of GREENEY.

THE FREEDMEN OF TEXAS. The San Antonio Herald of the 5th ultimo says: "From a friend of ours who has just returned from a trip upon the Colorado, old Caney, and other of the most important sections of the State, we derive the most satisfactory information respecting the prospects for the coming crop. The planters are almost universally possessed of far higher hopes and far brighter prospects than could possibly have been anticipated at the outset of the year. Nearly all the cotton plantations in the sections visited by our friend are in cultivation, most of them with a fair supply of labor, some with more than ever before employed upon them, while some were still short of them. In general, planting operations were fully as far advanced as usual at this time of year, and the proportion of cotton to other crops, though greater than has been customary heretofore, was yet not such as to threaten a scarcity of grain. "In nearly every instance the planters spoke very favorably of the disposition and conduct of the negroes so far. The hands are generally divided into squads, each under a black foreman, and a proportionate extent of ground is assigned to each squad. The foremen exercise a strong control over their squads, and the hands themselves are rapidly learning, from the instinct of self-interest, the necessity of making every laborer do his duty. The portion of the crops assigned to the hands varies from one-quarter to one-third, and in some few instances one-half is allowed them."

A NOBLE PURPOSE AND A GLORIOUS RESULT. THERE ARE AS MANY ROADS TO FAME AND Fortune as there were gateways to the ancient Thebes. The ambitious warrior is for carrying his way with the sabre; your aspiring politician for scheming his way by intrigue and consummate art. But there is one grand broad path to the goal, along which nothing base can travel. It is the path set apart for the march of talent, energy and noble purpose; and, though full of obstacles, it contains none that a brave man cannot surmount. This fact has been exemplified in innumerable instances, but in few more forcibly than in the rise and progress of STEELE'S "HAT HALL," on King-street, opposite State-street. For over seventeen years its course has been onward and upward, scattering HATS at every step, until it now stands on the topmost rounds of the ladder of Fame, as the crowning finish to man. 1 March 3
