MONDAY MORNING, JANUARY 14, 1867. LOCAL MATTERS.

To our Subschibers.-We would call the atten tion of those who are indebted to us throughout the country, that the old year is closing and their accounts are not yet settled. The price of sub-scription is not large, and will not be missed from their plethoric pockets. The first of January has long been colebrated as a day set apart for closing old accounts, and we would not have our friends depart from this time-honored custom. Money is the motive power of every enterprise, and newspapers are no exception, and we respectfully ask our country subser bers to eash up and commence the new year with a clear record.

We have received, from Messrs. D. J. Daw-son & Co., Meeting street, a copy, in pamphlet form, of the decision of the Supreme Court on military commissions, in the case of Millians and others, which has been creating such general comment. Messrs. Dawson & Co. have copies of the decision for sale.

AT AN election held January 13, 1867, in the Vestry room of the new Catholic Chapel, Queen street, the following named gentlemon were duly clocted as Vestrymon, to serve for one year:

JOHN MERKEGAN.

M. W. ST. AMAND.
THOS. O'BRIEN.

M. W. ST. AMAND.
BERNARD O'N EILL.
M. P. O'CONNOIL.
JOHN F. O'N EILL.

LUCKY AND UNLUCKY DAYS .- A "book of precedents," published in London in 1616, contains a calendar, many of the days in which have the letter Baffixed, which signifies such days as the Egyptians note to be dangerous to begin or take thing. The days thus marked are:

ning. The days thus marked are January 1, 2, 4, 6, 10, 15, 17, 20. February 7, 10, 17, 27, 28. March 15, 16, 28. April 7, 10, 16, 20, 21. May 7, 15, 20. June 4, 10, 22. July 15, 20. and made deadly threats about small merchants, William Jefferson, a colored youth, who was found at night lying about cotton, but supposing it was no barm, as a great many people better off than he do the same thing every day, and make money by it, was imprisoned one week.

Daniel Green, a darkey of taking appearance, who said that he picked up in the streets a bag containing eight fowls and a turkey, but was'nt believed, was taken care of for one week, in the hope that the owner of these gallinaceous birds will pick up the illustrious Green and bag him. COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.—The January this Court will commence on Monday Judge T. N. DAWKINS, who so ably presided last term, will be again the officiating Justice. The long interim between the sittings of the Court has been a hotiday time for offenders, and the criminal docket is larger than it has been for years. Civil cases always remain in abeyance until the others are disposed of, and judging from the size of the adverse docket they will hardly have a hearing at upon as a great event, and one which adds to the osperity of the place by the custom brought ere. In the city it is generally regarded as a their duty, and the criminals will be sure of re-der, burglary, &c. The punishment in these cases is death, and if convicted it should be imposed. It is the fear of inflicting death that often deters a jury from expressing an honest conviction, but they forget that they are only offering a promium for crime. Let us enforce the laws, and if a crime demands a stringent punishment we should not shrink from inflicting it, for this temporizing will result in no good.

swept fiercely through it. The numerous windows interior was a mass of flame, which it was impossi ble to extinguish. The outbuildings con with the mill were soon burnt, and after the rafters were destroyed the huge walls fell with a crash, carrying everything before them. .

At the time of the fire the building was used as a store house, and contained several thousand bushels of grain. Very little of this was saved, as the heat was too intense to allow the men to work. The Palmetto Engine House and the buildings on the opposite side of Anson street were in great danger, and only saved by the persevering assiduity of the firemen. During the progress of the fire a skylight was blown up by the heat and fell into the yard, striking Mr. TROS. O'KREFE, Secretary of the Palmetto Engine Company, on the head, indenting his hat and inflicting a sovere contusion. Mr. JNO. MAY, a member of the same company was struck on the arm and slightly in-

The building was formerly a sugar refinery, and the walls and timber were so saturated with mohasee and oil that it was a perfect tinder-box, and burned down in an hour's time. We learn that the building belonged to Mr. W. C. Duxes, and was insured for only $10,000. The grain stored therein was the property of Mr. R. H. RIKER. The lower floor was occupied as a corn and meal store, and one wing was used as a plumby's shop by Mr. John Lono. The latter gentleman suc-ceeded in saving all of his stock. It was extremely fortunate that this fire occurred se early in the evening, for the neighborhood is thickly built, and if the flames had spread they would have caused great damage.

The stock in the building at the time of the fire

The Bigur of Way.—This has been a contested question for some time, and though it is now established by regulations, they are not always followed. "Drive to the right" is the golden rule of the Johus, and if it was conformed to accidents would become far more rare than at present; but the impulsive drivers rush madly ahead, not looking to the right or left, or caring little who is in their way. The recent introduction of the street cars has complicated this question considerably; the cars are obliged to keep the centre of the street, and evidently have the right of way as far as track is concerned.

In every street through which the railroad passes the space between the track and sidewalk is amply sufficient to admit the passage of any vehicle, and when the cars are not running, the whole street is at their disposal. Notwithstanding this, there appears to be an ill-concealed dislike among the draymen and other drivers to the rail-road as an innovation, and their movements when they hear the car bell are very deliberate, and the speed of the latter has to be checked to allow them time to ness.

So far, the rivals have moved together with amity, but on Saturday an omnibus, wishing to avoid the mud from the drain, endeavored to cross the track near the Central Church, but it was not up to time, and a collision with the car was the result. T. driver of the omnibus endeavored to defend his position by stating his right to the street, Lot he was clearly in one wrong, and closed the argument as soon as he was extricated. At the next meeting of the City Council the rights and privileges of the street railway will be discussed and their charter clearly defined. This decision will be the governing rule for Johus of every class, and is the only way to nip the present ill-feeling in the bud, and restore amicable

A New Sensation.—A large audience was col-ceted in Trinity Church last night, to attend the ministrations of a Quakeress. The fact had been protty generally promulgated from the different pulpits during the morning, and long before the hour announced every seat was occupied, and numbers were standing in the rear. A female speaker is a regg or in this leading speaker is a rara avis in this locality, and accordgly proved a great attraction. About twenty years ago a Quakeress held forth in the same church; and still later, discourses were delivered in the old Quaker Chapel, in King were derived in the great fire of 1861.

On the former occasion, while the preacher so was waiting to be moved by the spirit, a gentleman from the rural parts disconcerted her by starting a hymn, as was the custom of Methodism in those days; but he was completely taken down, and his song ceased, when she slowly arose and gravely aid: "The mighty God the Lord hath spoken let all the earth keep silence." And silence was religiously kept until the fair (?) speaker commenced her discourse.

The present oratress, Mrs. Sybit Jones, is a native of Mairo. The party, consisting of herself, two Missos Metcalf, of Rhode Island, and Dr. MENDENBALL, from Greensboro', N. C., are stopping at the Charleston Hotol. Aside from her peculiar head-dress, there is nothing to denote her sect, and the old "drab" theory is therefore exploded. Mrs. Jones were a "mob cap" of ancient appearance, and though its dimensions are huge it is not an ugly ornament. Her discourse was not based on any text, but was a general appeal to her hearers, in which she exhibited the advantages of Christianity, and exhorted all unbelievers to re Christianity, and exhorted all unpolicers to re-pent while it was yet time. She was listened to with marked attention, and her voice being very clear and distinct, was heard throughout the building. If her stay is lengthened she will probably give our citizens another opportunity to at-Hampstrad Mall.—Although Charleston has "the age" on most of her sister cities, yet in one respect they are far ahead of her. Few of them December 6, 7, 9, 15, 17, 22.

Mayon's Courr, January 12.—An individual who ad rushed into a crowd under a high pressure of Mayon's Court, January 12.—An individual who had rushed into a crowd under a high pressure of whiskey, and threatened to cut several throats, was fined but $5, because it was found that the only dangerous instrument he had about him was his tongue, and the amnouncement of the penalty took the edge off of that.

John Fraser, a man of dark complexion, who went with an associate into the store of a person went with an associate into the store of a person that sells fine goots, and there intimated to his friend that he could buy an article cheaper at the days of the could buy an article cheaper at the could be compared to the indignation. and destruction of the thriving business of the shopkeeper, who instantly ordered him out, and then went into the street and flourished a pistol and made deadly threater these parts are no doubt appreciated by the neighboring residents, especially when they were in their prime. Alker's Square and that in front of the Second Presbyterian Church are both quite small, and of not work. quite small, and of not much use except as a ornament to the city. They do not either abridge the distance or afford any short cuts, and are, consequently, frequented by few persons. Hampstead Mall, on the contrary, has an area of some three or four acres, and when fenced in and furnished with benches was quite a pleasant walk; and admirably adapted for a lovers' retreat. The war and its blighting influences destroyed its serenity, and being used as a camping ground for the troops, and subsequently as a common pasture for cattle, the grass withered and was trampled into the ground, while the trees were denuded of their bark, and at present the Mall is a bright example of the results of war, neglect, and disnec. Its location is very favorable, and the streets that surround it are built up with fine houses, the owners of which were no doubt prompted to improve their property when they saw the city authorities de-sirous of reclaiming the sandy waste that formerly occupied this site and transforming it into Park. A great incentive to private improvement is the action of the authorities, and any steps that they take will be imitated and acted upon by pri-Charlestonian's pride.

At present the Mall is in a miserable condition; the fence is dostroyed, and the grounds open to the deprodation of every one. America and Conecessary evil, and as a decided nuisance by the poor jurymen, whose business suffers in their absence. Although confined to but a portion of the what was once the oasis of that section, has deday, yet it is very irksome to listen to long disquisi-tione and legal arguments that are often worse than Greek to the hearers; but in spite of these draw-backs a Charleston jury have always discharged that the want is not felt, and the few we do possess suffer from neglect. The grand project of establishing a central park, or a Palais Royal, in the burnt district, has apparently been abandoned, and little interest is now manifested in the sub-ject. The Battery is in a dilapidated condition, and although the workmen are busy removing the warlike obstructions, it will be long before it presents its former appearance.

It is true that the financial embarrassment to is true that the inancial embarrassment, consequent on the result of the war, was an effectual impediment to any improvement; but any effort made to develop and add to the beauty of the city, is a strong incentive for emulation; and Fire.—About quarter-past 10 P. M. on Saturday, the alarm of fire was sounded, and the flames were seen breaking out of the second story windows of the second story window will result in the growth, development, and en-hanced appearance of our battered and ruined the building known as the old sugar refinery, in
