The Augusta (Ga.) Constitutionalist of the 18th inst. advocates the formation of a Land Company, for the purpose of furnishing means to the planters of Georgia, and for inducing laborers and farmers from Europe to remove to central Georgia. It fears that, in consequence of the large migration of blacks from that portion of the State, that much of it will become a temporary wilderness, ess some effective means are immediately used to draw a large amount of white labor in that di

The Erie Railway Company has recently been swindled ent of between thirty and forty thousand dollars. EDWARD H. The broad expanse of marsh lying between the Mobile and Spanish Rivers, which was thickly evergrown with tall grass, was set on fire, either accidentally or intentionally, a few days ago, and the grass being as dry as tinder, the fiames spread the grass being as dry as tinder, the fiames spread rapidly, presenting a magnificent spectacle to those who had a good view of it from the opposite side of the river. Immense volumes of smoke rolled heaven-ward, and in their midst innumerable tongues of Same constantly leaped forth as "the devouring element" swept across the plain, driving all living things before the flery tempest. The scene was grand in the extreme as seen from many of the higher buildings of the city.

The market for tobacco has been very much de presend over since the suspension of sales just prior to Christmae. There are many reasons which have produced this result. In the first place, the stoppage of the factories has lessened the demand for consumption in manufacturing, and then the extreme stringency in the money market has checked speculation. To the ked speculation. To these can may be added the uncertainty attending the action of Congress in relation to the tax; all parties seem to be standing still, waiting for some indication as to the course the market will take, and in the meantime the farmer has to go without the money which he hoped to realize from the sale of his crop

HISTORIC DOUBTS.

"The truths of history are lies every one of them." This appears to be the sum and sub-stance of all modern historical teaching. Faith is natural to the child, and according to this school of philosophy, the one great task in life, the object of all learning, in truction and knowledge, is to believe nothing,—to doubt everything. In many riages within the county, during 1856, report 116 cases this sublime degree of distruct is not attain births, 172 deaths, and 275 marriages. The city of ed before old age, and still oftener men leave this ed before old age, and still oftener men leave this world in happy ignorance of the exacting require-ments of unbelief. Some of this latter class there may be, so ignorant of their own ignorance, that they may even question the utility of a life spent in endeavoring to show that "nobody don't know nothing."

Doubting philosophers there have always been, and always will be; to doubt is one of the idiosyncracies of human character, which, if not combat girating in jealousy. In the height of his passions he drews revolver and shot at her. The ball struck the metallic portion of her corset, and glanced off without doing any harm.

St. Augustine is said to be a delightful residence. The Examiner, of that place, speaking of scholars whose pride it is to unsettle popular conviction in historic truth. viction in historic truth. The vonnger Nussung in modern times, may be considered the father of this nefarious brood. Gibbon, it is true, by an trees on the sides of the streets, and the soft air artful collocation of facts, succeeded in throwing coubt upon the truths of Christianity, without ap-pearing to do so designedly. Others, by specious arguments, have, at various times, endeavoyed to Of make history corroborate some previously con-in ceived theory in politics, philosophy or religion. in Few, indeed, can be entirely absolved from such

But it is otherwise with a historian like NIEBUHR, A suit has been brought for $10,000 damages against the Georgetown Gas Light Company, by Richard T. Merrice, Esq., acting as counsel, for Mr. W. D. Huernes, proprietor of the Georgetown Daily Times. Mr. Huennes alleges that the Gas Company shut off his light without reason, there ally supposed; that the Rome was not built by these said founders, nor at the time usually supposed; that the Rapo of the Sabines is a myth; that Edenius was no nymph at all; that the "auld wives' tales;" that Tarquinius, in the language of Sydner Sarre, was a very good family man; that the title of the modern Anserines to ancient nobility was spurious, geese never having saved the capitol—in fact it is now ascortained tha the geese did not eackle at all. The Caudin Forks are a mere legend. Hannibal is not yet entirely put aside, we believe, but it is now certainly ascertained that he did not blast the Alne with vinegar. Modern historians, with the aid of a competent corps of analytical chemists, hav demonstrated that the work could not have been accomplished with acetic acid, and, in fact, that The average value of the 11,220 Baptist Churches in the United States in 1860 was $1700; of the 10 883 Methodist Churches, $2000; of the 5061 have turned out more paste. Cickeo, they say, was a coward and a coxcomb; never delivered his orations against Cataline; that the latter gentleman was a very respectable citizen, and no con-spirator; that SALLUWT, the teacher of virtue, was a great rascal, and Casan never said "Veni, vidi, vici;" that Live was a perfect MUNCHHAUSEN; that The Edgefield Advertiser, of a late date, says tained, was a scamp, and Ovio, it is now ascortained present commandant of the post of Authat Nzzo has been much slandered, and old Belisarius was not blind at all.

When we come down to CHARLEMAGNE, we find matters still worse, the several ancient and me-dieval historians having scarcely left is ahred of him. It is now gravely contended by many that there never was any such man as Canar German Emperor, has been proven a figment of the fancy; and this, too, while it is well known that the old gen-tleman is sleeping in his tower in the Kyfihausson mountain in Thuringia, where he is patiently wait-ing for the unification of the fatherland. Here he has long been alceping, his chin resting on nis hands, and his elbows on a marble table, an his long heard grown through the stone. Every hundred years he awakes, and sends out a raven to see if Germany is united. Whenever the raven shall come back with an affirmative reply Barrais a myth; that Prince Hal was a milked mond is a myta; that frince has was a milksop and Falstaff the jolly Knight, the baseless fabric of a vision; that burly Harry VIII. was a very proper sort of husband, and Queen Anne Boleyn no better than she should be. Nay worse than all, Miss Bacon, a down-east young lady, gravely tells ns that it was not SHAWSPEABE who wrote Shakspeake, but that Lord Bacon wrote Shakspeare speaks, out that Lore DACON WIGHT CHARSPEARS; and very lately a Missouri Judge, profound in his-torical research, comes forward in a book of dignified dimensions and first rate argument, endors ing Miss Bacon's theory.

We are told that Christopher Columbus never wo are told that CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS never made that egg stand on end, nor was the first who discovered America; that LE SAOR did not write Gil Blas, but stole the manuscript from a Spanish monk, and translated it into French; that Sir Wal-TER RALEIGH did not throw his cloak into the gutter; that ELIZABETH was not entitled to her virgin epitaph, and that Marr, Queen of Scots, was a model of chastity; that the first JAMES of England was a very wise monarch, and that OLIVER CROM-WELL was a scoundrel and a hypocrite; that the imperor Charles V. was a very ordinary man, and WALLENGTEIN a mere adventurer; that Robespierer was a very pious and tender-hearted gentleman; that Marshal Nxv was not the last of the Grand Army, and had never said that he was; that Naro-Army, and lisd never said that he was; that Naro-LEON was a very bad man in his private character; that Whilliam III. was a very pleasant gentleman, and very popular with his subjects; that the Pro-tenders were not those heroes of romance we have always been led to believe, and that prodd Cux-BERLAND was not always prancing, insulting the slain; and that it is all a mistake about King GEORGE III. and the apple dumplings.

Leoninas, they say, had three hundred and eighteen men with him at Thermopylae, instead of three hundred, as is the current belief; though some go further, and maintain that there is no truth whatevar in the whole story of the battle at this Pass. They barely concede that there is such a place as Thermopylae. So with Marathon; though they cannot denote the contract of the contrac though they cannot deny the existence of the lat-ter, for Lord Buron, a disinterested witness, re-marks that the field of Marathon was offered him at the very reasonable price of four thousand pounds sterling.

Archbishop Whatkler wrote an ingeni phlet, proving with all the force of logic that there never existed such an individual as Napoleon Bo-NAPARTE. He did this by using the same class of arguments, relied on by deists and others for dis arguments, rened on by delasts and others for dis-proving the historic verity of the existence of Christ; and in thus calling into question the ex-istence of the greatest man then living, or but re-cently deceased, he brought an analogical reduction ad absurdant to bear upon their argument.

Here, in America, we have not hitherto suffered much from these doubting attacks. One reason, doubtless, is that our history is but of yesterday; and legendary lore has scarcely had sufficient time to become indirectually the head with the sober facts of history. Markows the control of history. to become indicaclubly blended with the sober races of history. Moreover, the entire historical spoch of history. of America has been subsequent to the invention of printing, and tradition has not been much deof printing, and tradition has not been much de-pended on for records. But even here the doubt-ing Thomas has laid his hand. The goodness, wealth and grandeur of MORTEZUMAS have been exploded. The beautiful tales of the poor Indiana, and their blissful existence under the gloomy can-opy of the virgin forest, are all gone. We are now only treated to the naked savage; and "In-dians not taxed" in public bills and acts, is now the only mention we have of the abortions save the only mention we have of the aborigine, save where we read of a great massacre in the West, and a general Indian hunt, in consequence, by the United States troops.

We have heard the Mayflower, Plymonth Rock, and the Charter Oak all doubted; but we indignantially 12

LARGEST CIRCULATION.—The DAILY by reject such historical undermining. The beautiful story of Figure McDonald, a Scotch lady, who saved the Chevaller's life, and ended her days in North Carolina, is now enveloped in a highland mist. Dut, worse than all—greatest of heresies-the Yankess, having conquered the South, are no beginning to make war upon her past his by way of commencement, they naturally attack the very corner-stone of Virginia—no less than the existence of Pocanontas. Captain SMITE the greatest of all the John Smiths, they say was not a reliable gentleman, and invented the whole story of Powillann and FOAMONIAS. A Mr. Charles Deane, a Massachusetts antiquary, in a cont article in the North American Review, is guilty of this sacrilegious profanity. Of course, the entire press of the North at once takes up the cry, determined to rob the Old Dominion of the first of her F. F. V.'s. Wo knew, when we very first of her F. F. V.'s. We knew, when we first saw this announcement, that Mr. DEANS would "catch it" from our Virginia friends. The Richmond Whig, of the 15th, in speaking of the subject, says:

Such is New England's envy and jealousy towards the South and all that is Southern, that she cannot bear to contemplate anything that stamps lustre upon our slistery or adds to our influence and prosperity. It would rob us, if it could, of all the glories of the past, strip us of present influence and respectability, and degrade us into a mero Territorial dependency upon the Government. These same writers will soon probably turn their attention to George Washington, and if they shall not be able to establish that no such man ever existed they will probably undertake to prove that he was of Yankee birth and lineage.

This is a very mild rebuke, and by no means, we

This is a very mild rebuke, and by no means, we take it, the last word that will be said on this arbject. We have, of course, nothing to say on so purely Virginian a theme. Our friends along the James are abundantly able to take care of themselves, and of Pocahontas too.

We will now conclude our long catalogue of doubts by saying that we doubt nothing. We be-lieve in the she-wolf, King ALFRED's pancakes and the beautiful POCARONYAS; and we are certain that children learned more of Greek and Roman his tory in Errodotus, Livy, Rollin and Goldserte, than they have learned, or ever will learn, in Niz-BURE and Arnold, THIRLWALL and GROTE. The old facts, or what were so considered, having been unsettled, what remains there now to teach the inquiring young wind? What kind of mental training can you expect, when you tall a child that the whole world is mistaken in observing Christ-mas on the 25th of December; that CHRIST was not born on that day, etc., and that it is ministering to superstition either to burn fire-crackers or mince-pie on that day? Is it not better to let child lean on certainties? Doubt and childhood, as we have said, are incompatibles. Let him be-lieve these things implicitly, and well for him if in after life, he is permitted to retain the with of his childhood. Doubt and error will assert their sway soon enough; but it is best, when they do come, that the youth should be clad in the panoply of faith, and thus not necessitate an instant uning surrender of the citadel.
