The Literature of Vice"—the penny and halfpenny romances of murder, robbery, seduction and adultary in which we find some curious details. Thus we read : "As to the rate of remuneration received by the writers of these stories, we under-stand that two guineas for a sheet of eight pages is considered good payment, while in some few cases men are to be found who can provide enough writing to fill eight pages of close print, each number warranted to contain at least one mur-der, fire, shipwrock or seduction, for fifteen shil-lings! On the other hand, two or three of the writers of these sensation stories are likewise their proprietors; and considerable sums are said to have been yearly netted for their sale in penny

The portrait of Queen Victoria, to be presented to Mr. Prancor, has just been finished in London. It is painted in enamel, and is an oval miniature, former inches by ton. The enamel is on a stont gold plate, and represents the Queen seated, half-length, the arms and hands thrown out admirably from the black dress. Her Majesty wears the blue ribbn of the Garter and the George; she is repre-sented in a Man; Swarr cap, surmounted by a coronet, and her black dress is relieved by a trim-ming of ermine. It is a good likeness of the Queen, and very handsomely framed in deep maroon valvet, ornamented with the ormelu. Above the portrait are the royal arms, at each side the rose thistle, and shamrock, and beneath the inscription, which was given by the Queen herself: "Pre-sented by the Queen to Gronza Pranouv, Esq., the Benefictor of the Poor of London."

CHARLESTON. THURSDAY MORNING, APRIL 4, 1867.

AGITATION.

If there is one thing which is repulsive to our people just now it is political agitation. We have gone through so exhausting a struggle that we have scarcely the energy for further contest. We have been so deceived in our calculations, so disappointed in our hopes that wo have lost all faith in advice from any quarter. Our individual embarrassments are so pressing that we have neither the time nor the temper to think of public interests, and we are tempted in utter despair to confine ours 's to the hard work of making our daily cread and leaving to Providence to accomplish results which we cannot anticipate. But the issue which is upon us is one which will not let us alone. Not only is there no safety in passive submission but there is no rest for us until that issue is settled. We are not permitted simply to suffer, we are forced to do. What is our condition? A whole population has been made voters and to them we are compelled in a few months to submit the complete revolution of our political society. This privilege of voting is to them the consum mation of their freedom-there is not one who does not regard its exercise as the final and triumphant proof that he has been made a free man. It is the power by which he has been governed and he looks to it as the power by which his further wants are to be supplied. The more ignorant the voter the more import ance will be attached to the privilege which is to guarantee his full equality with the white Every colored citizen of this State will vote, in him there is no apathy to overcome, no despair to counteract, no need of party con rivance to stimulate. He is all hope and energy and activity. He has interests which he does not fully comprehend and prejudices which it is not easy to overcome, and to-day, and from to-day on to the end, there are and will be, busy, indefatigable, unscrupulous men actually at work to misrepresent these interests, excite and misdirect these prejudices.

There is not an intelligent man in the State. white or black, who does not know that the white people of the State cannot be put in a been investigating the affairs of the Pacific Hail condition of political inferiority without infin-Steamship Company, Among the depositions its disturbance and terrible danger. There is taken was that of LEGNARD W. JERGER, who stated not one white or black who does not know that such a condition, if ever reached, could not last and would cure itself at the cost of much suf fering to the white race, but at the price of destruction to the black. And there is not one who does not know that the only way to prevent such a consummation is the earnest union of the white vote with the intelligent and respeciable colored vote.

How is that union to be brought about? It matters not a straw whether men call themor Union Republicans; all men can work to gether now who honestly desire to secure th adoption of a sound and healthy State Constitution, who wish to lay the foundations wisely of that local legislation which is to determine our taxation, encourage education, govern the re-lations of daily life-in a word, protect life, liberty and property. When we have restored the State, there will be time enough to decide what the politics of the State should be. Let all those who desire this earnestly go to work faithfully, and before very long they will find themselves working together. ...

It is not our purpose, perhaps it is not our duty, to give advice to the colored voters. As yet they have not given us the opportunity, but we can speak to the white voters of this city. It is perfectly clear that, with the numerical majority of the colored vote, if it acts in combined antagonism to you, it defeats you. That the better class of the colored voters do not desire an unnecessary hostility. They know, as General Sickles so judiciously advised them, that their interests are identical with ours, that if they possess some, we possess others of those elements, the combination of which is necessary to their prosperity, and that the worst advisers they can have are those who would sow the seeds of animosity between the races.

Why not then at once proceed to the practi-cal work of effecting that union as far as lies in our power?

. Let us do that work not in the spirit of buying and selling, which the Northern press seems to consider the only motive power of political action, but with the open and resolute determination to do justice to all classes of our citizens; with the manly avowal that however we may regret the change, we intend to use it, if possible, for the advantage and prosperity of the whole State, and with the fixed purpose to preserve, as we are bound to do, in the interest of every man, white or black, in this State, that influence which belongs to brains, character and property. Better for us to do this boldly and promptly than to allow malignant and passionate men to appeal to selfishness, ignorance, and prejudice in the manner indicated in the following editorial from the Herald: or main following editorial from the Herald:

But. our point in this case is the negro vote of the South. It is a Southern political balance of power; it covers the popular majority in South Carolina, the importance of which, to the ruling white class is thoroughly grasped by Hampton. Like a wiso man he accepts the issues of the war, and bows to the terms of Congress. He appeals to the blacks, lately, his slaves, as his political superiors, to try the political operiment of harmonizing with their late white masters before they go over into the political service of strangers. There is in this appeal a degree of chivalry and bolitical sagacity far higher than anything class in the line of chivalry of which South Carolina can justife boast. The broad fact that two races in the South must honceforth harmonize on a political basis to avoid a bloody conflict of races, is the ground covered by Wade Hampton. But the Northern Radicals, and even the old Northern Bourbon Democracy, are in the field for this Southern negro balance of power. What, then is most likely to follow from this rivalry for the smiles of Sambo?

Black though it may be, we have to look this

Sambo?

Black though it may be, we have to look this thing in the face. You cannot give "the Southern colored gentleman" the ballot and still expect to keep him ant of office. Where he has the majority in the matter of color he must be bought off or the white man must stand back when the time comes. comes.

The logical programme from negro suffrage in the South must be carried out by the Republicans in the North, or the party will be broken to pieces. Thus there is a fair prospect that the Radiosi Wadi Hampton, of South Carolins, on his South-orn platform, will yet be more than a match for the Radiosis of Massachusetts.

THE BANQUET OF THE BOARD OF

This banquet was a brilliant success, and rom the character of its proceedings, is entitled to be regarded as a matter of political significance. The presence of the higher au-thorities, both of the Etato and of the United States, and their frank expression of opinion, gives to the speeches made on this occasion more than ordinary importance.

The speech of Gen. Stortne was a greeful acknowledgment of the hospitality or his hoars, and while, in the nature of things, it could not be very definite in its declarations, was another with the civil authorities of the State, and to administer the functions of his command in the nterest and for the welfare of our people.

The speech of the Governor was a decided political pronunciamento. It was a full and nanly expression of his opinions on the pres ent condition of the country, and was marked by that able and practical mode of looking a facts which is characteristic of his style. It is well that the new order of things should be so distinctly recognized by one who acted so distinguished and influential a part in the old. We are glad to see that his excellency so thoroughly comprehends the public senti ment of the State, and has so well expressed opinions which needed only the endorsement of some man of great public position to give them authority. Especially are we pleased, that if it has to be done, one who has so long stood in close and affectionate relation to the Democratic party, has given them notice of the dissolution of that old political partner ship, the assets of which are now fairly re urned "Nulla Bona."

Nor should we omit to state, that among the pleasantest incidents of the evening, was the speech of or distinguished Senator. It was grateful to the purest sensibilities to hear him turning from the perplexities of politics and he common place of commercial congratulations, expatiate with taste and feeling upon the excellencies of that "charity" which covers multitude of sins.
