What thine eye, bustling West
Thy soft on comes and thine
Wherein the sunset's golden red,
Or richly tinted landscape.

When in the vale the wood-brook's note
Thine in a cadence flows
As when the notes of thy sweet
Tup to a winged splendor.

How glad thy gentle eye
Thy child of Orient trances
On thy soft feet glances
On thy white feet glances

Child's gentle eyes
Thy child of Orient trances
On thy soft feet glances
On thy white feet glances

confident of the recuperative power of South Carolina, but in view of the fact that the farm has been in a state of low consumption, and a half or two of cotton bales. Some of you will perhaps be astonished to learn that our farms have been in a state of low consumption, and a half or two of cotton bales. Some of you will perhaps be astonished to learn that our farms have been in a state of low consumption, and a half or two of cotton bales.

There is another fact which may be curious to you and which I may here mention in favor of our friends. The fact is, that our friends in the West, who have been in a state of low consumption, and a half or two of cotton bales, are now in a state of high consumption, and a half or two of cotton bales.

SPEECH OF GEN. JOHN A. WAGNER.

In compliance with a resolution adopted at a preliminary meeting of the colonists of Darlington District, held at Florence on the 11th inst., an adjourned meeting, which was largely attended by the planters in that vicinity, took place Saturday last, for the purpose of initiating measures for the promotion of European immigration, and to hear the report of the Colonization Committee, the Commission of Immigration of this State, which had been invited to attend.

General WAGNER was then introduced, and spoke as follows:

"Mr. President and Fellow-Citizens: I am grateful to you for the privilege of being present on this occasion, and I most sincerely appreciate your patriotism, which has prompted your assembly here to-day. It is now about twenty years ago that I first addressed the public of South Carolina in favor of our European immigration. It was a subject which was then generally regarded as a matter of the purchase of slaves, provisions, horses, and other articles, and it was then generally regarded as a matter of the purchase of slaves, provisions, horses, and other articles, and it was then generally regarded as a matter of the purchase of slaves, provisions, horses, and other articles."

els per acre, he would make for you 2000 pounds of cotton and 70 bushels corn. Let us assume that, and calculate accordingly.

NEW ORLEANS MARKET.

NEW ORLEANS, May 16.—Cotton.—The market opened this morning with a limited inquiry, and was quiet. The demand for cotton was such that it was not possible to supply to meet ordinary requirements, and the market was consequently a fair one. The price of cotton was 12 1/2 cents for upland and 13 1/2 cents for sea island.

There is one other subject which I deem of vast importance, and to which I desire to call your serious attention, and that is the power of the people to control the machinery of every branch, and for the profitable employment of our citizens. It is our duty to develop the resources of our State to such an extent, as to make her truly independent of the rest of the world, and to secure for her a position of honor and respect.

WILMINGTON MARKET.

WILMINGTON, May 20.—Cotton.—Market quiet. Sea island cotton, 12 1/2 cents; upland cotton, 13 1/2 cents. The market was generally quiet, and the demand for cotton was such that it was not possible to supply to meet ordinary requirements.
