MY WIFE. This beautiful poem was written by Joseph freman, au Irish poet, who died in New Orleans a number of years ago. He had been but a short into in this country, and his wife was still at their old home in the Emerald Isle:

me to me, degress—I'm lenely without thre— y-thme and night-time I'm thinking about thee; tht-Line and dry-time in decaust I behold thee; welcome my waking which ceares to fold thee; me to me, darling, my sorrows to lighten, me in thy beauty, to bless and to brighten, me in thy womanhood, meekly and lowly, me in thy womanhood, meekly and lowly, me in thy lovingness, queenly and holy!

Swallows will flit round the desolate ruin, l'elling of spring and its joyous renowing; And thoughts of my love and its mainfold treasure for electing my heart with a promise of pleasure; Dalf Spring of my heart—old May of my bosons! Shino out on my soul till it bourgeen and blossons! The whole of my life has a recroot within it, And thy fondness alone to be sunshine can win it.

At the Exposition, the section of jewels, which we have not yet applied of, is most dazzling. In the French department the beauty of the materials is surpassed by the extreme perfection of the handlwork. Diamonds and precious stones are mounted with the most exquisite art.

We notice in particular a branch of lifac, which is a real masterpiece. The flowers and foliage are all made of diamonds. This lovely jewel is a brooch. The blosecons tremble and gitter upon their delicate stoms, and must be brilliant indeed by gaslight.

Another brooch is formed of a butterfly. The body is of gold and turquoise; the delicate wings are of diamonds studded with emeralds.

emeralds, and is destined for the Empress Eugenic.

Another, again, is a small peaceck, with outspread tail, brilliant with sapphires, emeralds, diamonds and rubics.

Fashionable necklaces are made with pendent ornaments all round; the parare of diamonds consists of a bandeau or diadem, carrings, necklace, bracelets and brooch. Light mountings, extremely fine and elegant, are those preferred.

In a simpler skyle cameos are in great favor. They are mounted in pure Greein style.

Artistic jewels of oxidized silver are much valued, and also jewels in the Byzantine style of enamel, inlaid with small pearls and precious stones, and with very delicate gold mountings.

The most general shape for brooches is that of a small round shield. Gold of several shades of color, inlaid with timy pearls, makes protty, simple jowels. But faucitul shapes, in the Chinese and Turkish style, are fashionable for car-rings, necklaces and bracelets.

In fact, fautaise is quite the order of the day in overy department of in mode.

Look a' modern boots and shoes, can anything be more dainty or coquettish?

Gloves embr idered with different patterns of colored silk. The neatest thing is just the crest or cipher upon the cuff.

The great warehouse, La Malle des Indea, Nos. 24 and 26, Passage Verdeau, which we have already spoken of to our readers, have just obtained a very great success at the Universal Exhibition, Class 31, Galerie de Tours, where their magnificent foulards for dresses have been chosen and bought by her Majesty the Empress Engenie, by the Princess Mathilde, the Queen Marie Anne of Austria, and the Queens of the Netherlands, of Wurtemburg and Saxony.

Such a list of illustrious names is more elequent than any praise of ours could be to prove the superior excellence of La Malle des Indees; a visit to the warchouse will prove it better still, for there is an immense choice of materials which have not been exhibited for want of space. Ladice can have the collection of specimens sent to them post free, if they address their demand direct to the proprietor of La Malles des Indees, They are requested to send their directions very plainly, so that no parcel of specimens may be lost.

Let us now leave the galleries of the Great Exposition to visit the saloons of Madame Pleffort, No. 1 Rue de La Grange Batellore; there we shall see a number of new and tasteful dresses.

A dinner dress of maize-colored gros-stain silk has a sweeping train, trimmed with with a ruche round the bottom; a tunic of white lace comes down as far as the ruche; it is alightly looped up on either side with bunches of Parmese violets. The low bodice is ernamented with a fancy drapery of white tulle, fastened with violets upon the shoulders. A bouquet of the same flowers is placed in front.

A charming white costume is composed of an underskirt, trimmed with vandykes of black braid, and of an upper one looped up at each seam. There is no body to the skirt, but it is replaced by a bodies of white muslin, striped with narrow black ribbon velvet. A short loose paletot is ornamented to correspond with the skirt.

A ball dress of Brunsels net is arranged in bouillions placed long thwise, and divided by atrips of open-work straw braid. The skirt is edged round the bottom with a narrow qualling of maize-colored ribbon; a wide sush of white tulle, embroidered with straw, is fastened at the waist with a bunch of wheat-cars.

The low bodice is rounded off at the sides and ornamented with a plastron of small bouillions, Madame Preflort also prepares bodiess of tarlatine, foulard, and muslin.

A bodic of white tarlatine is ornamented with braces of bine silk, embroidered with a pattern of whost cars in maize-colored silk; the neck, wrist and waist-bands are also formed is sembroidered and waist-bands are also formed is subjected and waist-bands are also formed is subjected.

and wase-comes are also of Diuc suk, embroidered in the same style.

A very pretty white muslin bodice is embroidered around the neck, the top and bottom of the sleeves, and the waisthand, and in front there is a plain strip of linen, stitched on either side.

White foulard bodices, made very simply, are embroidered in point Russe, with black or with bright-colored silk.

Other bodices are made entirely of white guipure lace; they are worn with a colored silk skirt, and a necklace and bracelets of ribbon the color of the skirt, studded with pearl or crystal beads. This forms a pretty tolet for a concert, dinner party or evening promonade.

Tulio bonnets are generally of the fanchion shape. Straw or crinoline bonnets of different round or oval patterns.

Bloe straw is more fashionable this sammer than crinoline. There are also some very pretty kinds of fancy straw.

A Leghorn bonnet of the Dubarry shape is trimmed with black ribbon and chains of straw-passementeric. A bequet of red slik poppies is placed on one side. The strings of black ribbon are fastened with one poppy.

The Bismarck color is still more fashionable both for bonnets and dresses. It is a rich shade of-oill it alle de hanneton.—Englishcoman's Domestic Mogazine,

The bilisty secretions of the liver overflowing into the stomach polation the entire system and exhibit the above symptoms. After long research, we are able to present the most remarkable cure for these horrid nightnare diseases, the world has ever produced. Within one year over aix hundred and forty thomsand persons have taken the FLANTAINOR EXPERIES, and not an instance of complaint in the second sec Among the chief points of excellence of the Ohickering Pianos, of which speak the renowned artists in their congratulatory teatmonials to the Mocerts Chickering, are the greatest peasible depth, richness and volume of tone, combined with a rare brilliancy, clearness and perfect ovenness throughout the entire scale; and, above all, a surprising duration of sound, the pure and sympathetic quality of which never changes under the most delicate or powerful touch.

During the past forty-three years this firm has manuscutred

I consider Chickering & Sons' Pianos superior to any in the world.

They are unrivalled for their singing qualities and for the harmonious roundness of their tone. There is a perfect homogeneity throughout all the registers. The upper notes are remarkable for a clearness and purity which I do not find in any other instrument, while the base is distinguished for power without harshness, and for a magnificent sonerity.

Your Planes are superior to any I have ever seen in this country or in Europa.

I have never heard a tone so perfect; it yields every expression that is needed in music, and its quality is capable of change to meet every sentiment. This is rare power, and is derived from the perfect purity of its tone, together with its sympathetic, elastic and well balanced fouch.

It may be satisfactory to our pairons and friends among the publicat large to state that testimonials have been received from all the leading artists who have visited or are now residing in the United States, a few of whose names, besides those above, we append: LEO. DR MEYER.
