The Manchester (N. H.) The same state of things exists with the Ameskear Company. The Stark mills are said to have kear Company. The Stark mills are said to have sunk $10,000 within a few months for the same reasons. The shoe business at Lynn, Haverhill, Randelph, and other large shee-manufacturing towns in New England is said to be in a very low condition as compared with what it has been in former years, when orders for shoes came in thick and fast from the South and West. These diffi ties are attributed to the chaotic state of the political affairs of the nation.

MR. STEPHENS AND MR. SWINTON.

The Augusta Constitutionalist of Saturday ontains a scurrillous attack on Mr. William SWINTON, the correspondent of the New York Times, alleging that in his recent letter on the Ion. Alexander II. Stephens, he was guilty f a gross breach of confidence, in repeating and publishing what Mr. Sterness had told him "under the rose;" and moreover, that many of the statements contained in the said letter are not such as Mr. Swinton heard them from Mr. STEPHENS, but perversions of fact, or the creations of his fancy. In the elegant phrase of the Constitutionalist, he has proved himself both "a Paul Pry and a Munchausen." This is a most unwarranted and unprovoked attack on the character of a gentleman. Has the Constitutionalist the keeping of Mr. STE PHEN'S views? Does Mr. S. invariably consult that sheet before he utters an opinion on men or measures? How does the Constitutionalist know that Mr. Swinton is guilty of a breach of confidence, or that his statements are in-correct? Has Mr. Sternens so informed it? We presume not; for if he had, such fact would have been blazoned in huge capitals. Now it strikes us that Mr. STEPHENS is the only man who has a right to object, and until he does so, it is mere impertinence in any one else to speak of the matter, as the Augusta aper lins done. We saw much of Mr. S. while he was in this ity, and heard him speak freely of his visit o Liberty Hall. He was very careful in drawng the distinction, even in the familiarity of rivate conversation between topics, which, he aid Mr. Strengus told him in confidence, and such as were given him with no such restricion. On the latter Mr. Swixton conversed reely, on the former he preserved a profound

A PLENTEOUS HARVEST.

Throughout the whole of the United States East and West, North and South, reports of the crops are extremely favorable. In the West and the South the yield of wheat has far exceeded the most sanguine expectations. In he southwest they sowed extensively, and the result has been bread in superabundance, with large surplus for market. The South never cultivated wheat so largely before, and never has the yield been so abundant. The lessons taught by the war have inculcated wisdom and impressed upon the minds of all the neces sity of producing at least a regular and abundant supply of bread. Sections of country which heretofore were exclusively devoted to the cultivation of cotton, have planted largely of corn, and we hope their example will be charitable to deny that one is free to read and to drink as much as he pleases in Boston on Sunday, provided he is a stockholder in the Boston everywhere imitated. True, we have heard of rust and weevil and rain, of the army worm, the cotton worm, and the internal revenue "tags"-but after all deductions are made, we believe we are warranted by facts in stating that the prospect for a fair general crop in the South this year is on the whole good, while the farmers of the West have gathered such wealth of grain as their storehouses had never known before.

> The wheat crop is estimated at 300 bushels, allowing a large surplus for exportation. Oats, rye, and barley also have been gathered in unusual quantities. To a kind and gracious Providence, who has vouchsafed such blessings to our distracted country, we cannot be sufficiently grateful.

How much corn may be counted on as the yield of the present crop, it is impossible to surmise. From our Western exchanges we gather that the breadth of land plunted in this cercal is far beyond preceding years. Much of it, it is true, was planted late, and great damage was sustained by rains, breaking of levees, etc., but we do not know that in the great aggregate these drawbacks will appear appreciable factors. The corn crop is now made, and from information we have from various sections, we are glad to be able to say hat the yield promises well.

The cotton crop, notwithstanding the rains and the worm, is at present in a promising condition. If the weather is favorable during the present month, and the fall a late one, we may look for an abundant crop in proportion to the quantity planted.

In our own State the wheat crop has been abundant, far beyond preceding years. Corn promises to be a much better crop than last year; and cotton, particularly in the middle and upper districts, is as fine as could be expected. We know there will be many who will not accept this as a correct statement, who will grumble and growl, and talk of "half orops" and "quarter crops," and speak dis-paragingly of "newspaper pieces." But our opportunities for information are superior to those within the reach of any one planter. We have letters daily from every part of the State, and from adjoining States, and it is upon a careful consideration of these that we have arrived at the opinion given above.

These accounts cannot but he cheering to the heart of every citizen; for whatever his pursuit, he must needs be interested in what goes to contribute to the general welfare of the country, and more particularly as coming at once home to his own exchequer, he cannot be indifferent to the prospect of a fall in the price of provisions. But our business men have a still greater stake in the truth or falsity of these speculations. The business of our State is based exclusively upon her agricultural products. Heretoforo we had a large banking capital, as well as a considerable surplus of money in private hands, together with a superabundance of slaves, of horses, mules, cattle, of agricultural implements, and of a thousand other represenatives of value, the accumulation of a century of toil and thrift. The war has stripped us of nearly all of these. The failure of a crop then, in business circles, caused inconvenience, a stringency in the money market, perhaps, and, in the agricultural districts, here and there, scarcity, and destitution to a limited extent. But the failure of a crop now will be a calamity, some of the effects of which were experienced during the present year. Two such years successively would inevitably result in the bankruptcy of the entire South, if not of the whole country. How grateful then ought we to be at the LARGEST CIRCULATION .- The DAILY prospect of a good crop, and the impetus if must give to business in all its varied ramifica tions. The grain and the cotton will freight our railroad cars and our ships, and give employ ent to hundreds and thousands who have suf fered for many mouths because of the stagnation of business, and the impossibility of obtaining work of any kind. We will not say that there will be a seasor of prosperity, such as we had before the war The country is too much exhausted to recover by one telerable crop. We only predict a great improvement of the existing state of things. Our farmers, we think, will be better off next spring than they were at the commencement of the present year. If our people will be energetic, industrious and frugal, they have much to make them hopeful of a better future, notwithstanding all the accumulated weight of calamity that has befallen them during the past seven years. Our renources are inexhaustible, and with a stout heart, a deter nined purpose, and a fixed trust in God, we may yet hope to "work out" the salvation of the State and of her people.

THE ELECTION IN TENNESSEE.

While we cannot rejoice in the result of the ecent elections in Tennessee, believing that infair means were used to accomplish it, we are glad to learn that the crisis passed off without any of the numerous troubles and difficulties that were so confidently expected. A special telegram to the Herald, dated Nashville, August 1, 7 P. M., says :

ville, August 1, 7 P. M., says:

The polls have closed upon one of the most peaceable elections ever held in this city, and no reports have been received an yet which indicate trouble elsewhere, though it is difficult to conceive that the election has passed off in the interior wholly without disturbance. In Nashville there was a general suspension of business, and people kept their houses; so that the streets, except in the interior their houses; so that the streets, except in the interior as deserted and quiet as on Sunday. There was no intexisation and no disorder. A few arrests were made for violation of the ordinance 13 to carrying concealed weapons, and a couple of colored men were apprehended for attempting the Democratic strategy of voting more than once. Even the disfranchised wore, as a general thing, in good humor, and seemed to make a jest of the greater privileges of the negro. Nor was this good order due to martial effect, for General Duncan had disposed the military most unobstrusive at the Capitol, and a horseman quietly watched each poll from a distance; otherwise toe military were out of sight.

The challengers of the Conservatives acted im-wise the military were out of sight.

The challengers of the Conservatives acted impartially in their duties. They did not seem to manifest any improper desire to impede the voting they were assisted him to a prompt deposit of his ballot. When it was necessary to question the voter, the well-known ignorance of the African as to dates and time was illustrated—all were over twenty-one years of age according to what they were told by their parents and relatives; but not one in a dozen could name his birthday.

The registration list of colored voters is also remarkable for the long array of distinguished names. The best families of Tennessec, the most renowned statesmen and soldiers of the Union since its incipioner, and even the glorious cogn—mons of Roman history, bid tair is be perpetuated, in mane at least, among the future citizens of Tennessee.
