AT A LATE STITING of the Academy of Science Father Seechi sent in a paper on his meteorograph, now at the Paris Exhibition. He said the necessity of such an instrument had long been section of the New Postoffice Law, as the our Constitution, and enfranchising the Afrifelt; the curious attempts to construct one in former ages, and recently picked out from scientific records, had fallen completely into oblivion, and were quite unknown to him. They simply proved that the feeling of the necessity of such an instrument for the progress of science was universal. As for his own contrivance, it was the first ever attempted by the aid of electricity. Father Secchi then proceeded to state a few of the results obtained from his meteorograph. The sheets on which the strokes of the different penbearing region three hundred miles square near | cils of the meteorograph are marked, denoting the action of wind, rain, calorie, moisture, etc., on being bound up into books, may be consulted with case, and it is then the intimate connection of all the above elements of observation may be taken in -A New York florist laments $200 worth of at a glance. Thus, for instance, the regularity of the direction and intensity of the wind is such that, when it changes, the rise and fall of the barometer may be foreseen. This circumstance serving any physical instrument. Meteorologists have hitherto neglected the wind too much, and for want of a simple means of hourly ascertaining the horary curve of its intensity, little attention has been paid to it. The wind changes before and after storms with the same precision as the barometer-a result in harmony with theory and easy to be understood, but not hitherto pointed out with sufficient clearness.

THE NEW YORK correspondent of the Boston Post writes: "I am not aware that Bennett's health is failing, but he is certainly pursuing a course that might lead one to that conclusion When men are in extremis they generally repent their past misdeeds and manifest a desire to atone for them. Bennett, I know, is not in extremis. but he seems to be quite penitent, nevertheless. The first symptom of his reformation was his sudden espousal, some weeks ago, of the cause of justice in politics. People were a good deal surprised, but Bennet had so often played them tricks before that they refused to trust him. He is still muskmelons, and one raw sweet potato, and drank on the right side, however, and they begin to think he has reformed for good. The next step that astonished them was his "make up" with Maretzek, to destroy whom he had used the influence of the Herald for two years. As soon as Maretzek shook hands with him he held out the olive branch to the other members of the Managers' Association, and they accepted it. So the war against the managers is ended. It is said, too, that he has decided to give up his frightful project of demolishing the Associated Press. To be sure, the motive in this case is alleged to be pecuniary-a matter of $10,000 a week-but that may be a stander. At any rate, it is gratifying to see an old man reforming, and it would not be charitable to remember that "When the devil was sick, the devil a monk would be, But when the devil got well, the devil a monk was he.

The results of the examination are said to be very creditable to those examined, showing an unusually high scholarship in the subjects upon which they were examined. About ten questions were asked on each of the following subjects: Orthography, reading, geography, arithmetic, latin, algebra, and the theory and practice of teaching. The examination continued through two days, Iqesday and Wednesday. The answers to the questions were written, and the papers were collected, examined and graded by the Committee. The result of this examination was the appointment of Miss Selina Jones and Miss Louisa Harris to the two vacancies in the schools, these two ladies standing highest on the list. Miss Jones has a place in the Girls' Grammar School, and Miss Harris in the Girls' Intermediate School. It will not answer for such men to challenge the dignity of the Presidential office under any incumbency. The motion is simply to familiarize the popular mind with the Radical scheme of impeachment. But the President is not to be arraigned, if at all, from the stump, or even in the public journals. Nor is he to be tried by the body of the people. THE ELECTIONS TO-DAY.

The States of Pennsylvania, Ohio and Iowa, to-day hold elections for State officers. In Ohio and Iowa, a Governor is to be elected, and in Pennsylvania a Judge of the Supreme Court. A member of Congress is also to be elected in Pennsylvania, in the place of Mr. DENNISON. deceased, and in Ohio in place of the Radical nominee for Governor, who resigns his seat in consequence of his nomination. The eyes of all men who love the Union as i was, who aim at the destruction of tyranny, and seek the permanent preservation of their liberty, are turned anxiously towards Pennsylvania and Ohio. On the result of the elections today, largely depends the preservation or the loss of our national freedom. If the Radical majorities are increased in these States, which is very improbable, all hope is dead. They will be as they have been hitherto, the indices of public opinion through the North and the Northwest: and if Radicalism triumphs there, the cause of Constitutional liberty is hopeless indeed. If in these States the Radical majorities are diminished, which is very likely, then may the whole country rejoice at the dawn of returning reason, the commencement of re-action in favor of Constitutional guarantees. If the Radicals are defeated, as they probably will be in Pennsylvania, and not improbably in Ohio, at least on the question of negro suffrage, and possibly with their Legislative ticket, then every man will rejoice who loves his country, and desires to see her institutions pure and undefiled. We are free to confess that we are anxious for this result, because we know that the Constitution of the United States is on trial, and we do not desire to see it condemned by any portion of the American people. The Conservatives of the North are to-day making a manly fight for the liberty of thirtytwo millions of white men. The Radicals, on the other hand, are making a bold struggle for despotic control of the Government. While they have skilfully, artfully and shamelessly avoided making the question of negro suffrage a portion of the Pennsylvania platform, all of the leaders in that State, as do all of the leaders of the party every where else, openly advocate the doctrine. THAD. STEVENS and Forner in that State, certainly dictate terms to the party, and if the prudence of McPHERson succeeded in having it left out of the platform, it was only done in order to veil the intentions of the party from honest and simpleminded men, who are still foolish enough to believe that this is a white man's Government. The party certainly intends to force the issue, and to-day the people of Ohio have it fairly and squarely presented. That the party is revolutionary and means to force its doctrines on the people of the United States, is evident from the fact that there is no Radical organ which does not openly advocate the unconstitutional acts of Congress, and openly insist on negro suffrage. It is true that Mr. Senator TRUMBULL, by a sort of logic which we confess that we were unable to understand, succeeded in demonstrating to his own satisfaction that Ohio and South Carolina are both States in the Union, but that what is constitutional in the State of South Carolina, would be glaringly unconstitutional in Ohio; but the mass of the Radical leaders swallow the whole doctrine without attempting any very refined argument, tending to prove that State may be and not be a member of this Constitutional Union at one and the same moment. Mr. Thurlow WEED who represents what may be called the Conservative wing of the party, said recently in the Commercial Advertiser, in speaking of negro suffrage: "That it is a simple, direct, naked question, without detail or embarrassment. It is also, a present question. Indeed, it is the question. It is the issue between Congress and the President. It is the question that is to determine, immediately, the relations of nine States to the Union. It is the rest question—the Shiboleth of the Republican party."

The Springfield Republican, in speaking on the same subject, calls it the main issue, and

By all means let us adhere to the vital issue until that is settled, and let us understand what it is. Briefly, it is equal suffrage. It includes the Congressional plan of reconstruction, but that is valuable mainly because it provides for equal suffrage in the Convention elections, and in the State Constitutions to be framed for the South. As a matter of comsistency, the party must also endeavor to establish the same principle in the Constitutions of all the States, and any attempt to evade this duty, will necessarily dishonor and weaken the party.

Equal suffrage is the prime issue. It is the strongest possible one. Every man admits that it is just in itself, and that there can be no true Republican Government without it. Let this issue be kept before the people."

Mr. CHABLES SUMNER, than whom no one better knows the views of the Radical party, recently wrote, "Congress will leave undone what it ought to do, if it fails to provide promptly for the establishment of equal rights, whether political or civil, every where throughout the Union. This is a solemn duty which can not be shirked or postponed. The idea is intolerable that any State, under any pretension of State rights, can set up a political oligarchy within its borders, and then call itself a Republican government. I insist with all my soul, that such a government must be rejected, as inconsistent with the requirements of the Declaration of Independence.'

The New York Tribune insists that the ques tion of "manhood suffrage" is the great ques tion before the American people. HENRY Wilson, and almost every other leader of the party, says the same.

This all sounds well and seems to be an ele vated philanthropy, calculated to catch the car and to appeal to the imagination of the unthinking. In America, however, the number of those who can be deluded by such phrases s daily becoming less and less. Four years of war for the preservation of the Union, and near three years of peace spent by the Radicals in attempting to destroy the Union, by subverting the Constitution, have taught many that their own liberty is in danger. Some of the best among the Republican leaders, see the results of the present policy of the Radical party, and have left the organization. The Governor of California, elected a few weeks ago, was formerly a Republican, but he was and is, as his political enemies are forced to doned the party when ne saw that it intended doned the party when ne saw that it intended to abandon the Constitution. LEWIS D: CAMP-BELL of Ohio, who was a Republican leader, when that party was not in the majority, and ably represented his party in Congress, has recently gone over to the Democracy. In a speech made a few nights ago at Hamilton,

Ohio, speaking of the negro, he said: " But now, we have nothing to do with the oppressions of

Let the dead past bury its dead. Were I satisfied to-night that if by sustaining of each week, agreeably to the following this proposition to strike the word white out of can, we would be enabled to carry on the Government any better than we can carry it on without him-better for ourselves or for him-I would raise both hands for giving him the privilege of the ballot. But it is for the reason that I belive he will bring no such assistance, as a citizen of Ohio, that I propose to do all in my power against any change.

"As to who should vote, I should say there would be no more true philosophy in deciding that question by the color of a man's skin than by the color of his hair. But this is a proposition to introduce a new class, who have never before voted, and it becomes a matter of fact for you to decide, whether this class, if the word white be stricken from your Constitution, will bring more intelligence, patriotism and virtue to the ballot box than it will of the opposite elements, depravity and vice." He also argued that as the States had not delegated to the General Government the right to regulate the matter of suffrage in the States, Congress had usurped rights that did not belong to it, in giving colored people the ballot in the ten rebel States. That these were States, we had held. Truly there was nothing in the Constitution by which a State was enabled to secede, and therefore their ordinances of secession were null and void; and as we had fought to keep the States from going out, and whipped the rebels, they had not got out in that way therefore the States were in the Union, and being in the Union, Congress has no more right to impose negro suffrage on them than

Public sentiment at the North seems to be changing in the right direction. Connecticut and California have rejected Radical rule. They are wearied of tyranny and have determined to cast it from them. It is to be hoped for the sake of liberty, that Pennsylvania and Ohio will follow their example, and that an increased Democratic vote in Iowa will reprove the party that seeks to rule on the ruin of one of the fairest countries in the world; that seeks to govern by imposing a cruel despotism on the white men of America.
