Of what are thy blue eyes dreaming, And where are thy thoughts at play? As we sit on the sofa together In the old familiar way?

Ot the rosy hours reclining, Like weary children at rest, With their dewy dreams descending At the zephyr's soft behest; While twilight is tenderly arching

A gossamer bridge where they lie.

And the day and the night at their meeting In wonder stand silently by. Yes, well may our spirits linger, O'er nature just hushed to repos And mark the omnipotent finger Take care of the lily and rose.

Are you searching sweet memory's casket

For the gem she put there last ; To look once more on its beau'y In the light of the dear old past That jewel is one of love's making, And is brighter and richer by far, Than when with a heart that was breaking, We laid it aside "for the war;" And the tear that settled around it.

But gave it a holier hue : For see, my love, it is starting For our desolate cause anew. DREAMER.

The Elections as Viewel Abroad

ENGLISH NOTES OF THE PROGRESS OF THE POLITICAL REVOLUTION IN THE UNITED STATES.

From the London Times, November 11.] The news from America, which we publish this morning, shows that the Reconstruction difficulty morning, shows that the Reconstruction dimenti-remains exactly what it was when the war came to an end. The condict of parties, however, is gra-dually becoming more severe, owing to the in-creased strength of the Democratic organization, which is now in a position to offer some kind of steady resistance to the policy of the extreme ite-publicans. An influential committee of the Re-steady resistance to the points of the stream its publicans. An influential committee of the Republican party made an appeal to the people at the latter end of October for support, upon the ground that their defeat at the elections then approaching would be "a national disaster, and jeopardize the lives and property of the Union men in the South, and even the national credit and existence, and would probably result in another rebellion."

We now know that these representations were disregarded by the electors. They have either heard them so often as to be deadened to their influence, or they are aware that the facts do not warrant alarming statements. The Raulal policy has been tried for more than two years and a half, and its fruits are not such as to satisfy the nation. New York and New Jersey have both pronounced against the Republicans, and if we might credit the assurances of this party, we should look for-

New York and New Jersey have both pronounced against the Republicans, and if we might credit the assurances of this party, we should look forward to repudiation of the debt, a massacre of Union men in the South, and a revival of the rebellion. But the Radicals never intended that their gloomy predictions should be taken literally. They formed a portion of their electioneering machinery, and they were intended solely to work upon the fears of the community. The "Union men" in the South are in no danger, for even in Georgia the negroes hold undisputed possession of the polls, and in Virginia white citizens have been "ordered to leave" their homes by a colored "vigilance committee."

 Mr. McCulloch's reports do not realize the sanguine expectations of the Radical leaders. They have made taxation heavier, without enabling the Financial Secretary to make a corresponding reduction in the national debt. The money produced has, in fact, been spent as fast as it flowed into the exchequer. The expense of keeping up military governments in ten States must be enormous, and even if it were proposed to levy a special tax upon the Southern people to meet this expense, the money could not be wrung from them. Their bare lands would not furnish a quarter of the amount required. These are the questions which the American people must, some day or other, insist upon receiving proper attention from their representatives in Congress. The policy of reconstruction will evidently be governed by the necessities of the nation. In the absence of express provocation from the South, the only interest of the North can be, to let commerce flow in its old channels through the country. The Republicans may in the meantime abuse President interest of the North can be, to let commerce flow in its old channels through the country. The Republicans may in the meantime abuse President Johnson as an "apostate and a rebel sympathiser," for hard words do not break national credit. A continuance of the present protective system in trading operations over a few years more would enquestionably have a strong tendency in that direction. Even if the Democrats recovered the assendancy, they would not be able to bring free trace in with them all at once; but the people know that there would be a cessation of tariff bills which are exhausting the country. This consideration has greatly affected the course of recent elections, and if no exciting causes occur to disture the national judgment, it must inevitably exercise a controlling influence upon the still more important contests to be decided next year.

Augusta Market.

AUGUSTA, November 25.—There has been no change in the general trade of the city for the past week. Our remarks in the report of last week will apply to this. Trade generally has been dull and inactive, the demand from the country being limited, and the low price of cotton causing prices of other commodities to decline.

COTTON.—This, has preceding weeks, has been character sed by frequent flucturitions, and well calculated to disconcert both buyers and sellers, and make parties not on the spot think their agents are remiss to their interest. Those changes, irequently from ½ to I cent during the day, are occasioned by the fluctuations of other and more important ma keis, say Liverpool and New York, which is telegraphed to us half dozen times daily, and as they are up or down are we effected. This explanation is made to explain to those not familiar with the trade its working.

Under unfavorable advices, both from Liverpool and New York, our market is quiet, and but that the offerings are light, prices would be lower; as it is, it is difficult to sustain them, at 15½c for New York Midding.

Our receipts are not increasing as we had a right to

Our receipts are not increasing, as we had a right to hope they would at this time. The good weather for gathering, and low prices, conspire to keep planters from hurrying ionward their crops. Sales of the week amounted to 3374 bales. Receipts

New York Money Market.

The Baltimore Sun, of Monday, November 25th, says:
Our financial report from New York on Saturday night says the money market was very quiet, and the brokers freely supplied at 7 per cent on call. The discount market is in an unsettled condition, and the banks are not in a position to discount freely, while money lenders generally are afraid of business paper, in view of the continued reports of failures and suscensions. The failure of a meer ber of the New York Stock Exchange operating on the bull side, was announced to-day. The gold market closed up firmly at 140 a 140%. Government Securities were strong, with a tendency to improve. The general stock market was steady at the close. The bank statement is very unravorable, showing a continued expansion of loans in the face of a heavy decrease in deposits and legal tenders. The specie shows a large in unsion of loans in the tace of a heavy decrease in de-osits and legal tenders. The specie shows a large in case, owing to in crest payments and sales by the Gov-nment. The Sub-Treasury lass gained a considerable ortion of the currency lost by the banks.

I have always recommended the Faber Polygrade Lead Pencils as the only pencils fitted for both ornamental and mathematical drawing; but, after a thorough trial of the American Polygrade Lead Pencils, manfactured by the American Lead Pencil Company, New York, I find them superior to any pencil in use, even to the Faber or the old English Cumberland Lead Pencil, being a superior pencil for sketching, ornamental and mechanical drawing, and all the ordinary uses of a lead pencil.

These pencils are very finely graded and have a very smooth lead; even the softest pencils hold the point well; they are all that can be desired in a pencil. It gives me great pleasure to be able to assure Americans that they will no longer be compelled to depend upon Germany or any other foreign market for pencils.
