MISSING. Boat No. 3, from the Raleigh, it now appears reached Kiawah Inlet in safety on Christmas morn ing, having thirteen persons aboard. The boa was abandoned, and the crew and passengers werpiloted by some colored people across the country to this city. These are the names of the thirteen additional who are now known to be saved:

Dr. J. Cass, passenger. Lawrence Sweeney, passenger. James Brady, passenger. John Sloan, passcager. Angelo Garragan, passenger. Robert Phoenix, crew. Charles P. Marshman, Jr., acting quartermaster. Nathaniel Boy 1, crew.

Wm. Welsh, crew. Eugene H. Ellis, crew. James Penfield, crew. Michael Lark n, crew. Patrick Harragan, crew.

Thirty-one persons in all from the Raleigh have now arrived here, and of those still issing it is nearly certain that ten were drowned. There is still some hope that Captain Marshman and those on the ship with him when the first boats left have been picked up by a passing vessel. The steamtug Christiana left port on Christmas

Miller attempted to make his Christmas out of a confiding countryman by offering to sell his turkeys. The countryman agreed, but found that he was sold, as neither negro or turkeys were seen again. He laid the case before the detectives who soon had the crafty Miller in bonds. He stated that he had sold the turkeys for two dollars, but the money was gone. He was detained and will be tried for theft. A RUNAWAY.-Yesterday morning, while the Turners were coming up King-street, preceded by a band of music, a horse that was in a buggy near the sidewalk became alarmed at the noise and dashed off. Unlike most, he boldly faced the music, and caused the band to scatter and the Turners to turn aside. Fortunately the negro groom kept a firm grip on the rein, and succeeded in controlling the excited animal, who did no damage beyond breaking a shaft.

INQUEST .- An inquest was held yesterday on the body of Mr. Campbell, who died from injuries received by falling from a car on the South Carolina Railroad. He fell between the platforms, and the rear car passed over him, inflicting what were supposed to be slight bruises. After his removal to Charleston it appeared that he had received some internal injuries, which resulted in his death. The jury returned a verdict in accordance with

THE WIDOWS' HOME BAZAAB .- After an interval of a few days the Bazaar was reopened last night, and crowds has ened to renew their acquaintance with its differen, attractive features. The ladies have not been idle during the recess, as the appearance of the tables proved. The grotto of eggs, the fortune-teller, the archer's tree and the other popular attractions were attended by a large number of guests. At each booth some new article was exhibited which gave an air of freshness to even the old habitues of the Bazaar. The confectionery table was literally covered with delicacies and was liberally patronized by those who preferred sweetmeats to greenbacks, while the supper room was not neglected and its choice viands soon disappeared before the inroads of the

When the party arrived here Mr. Hartman was released and the negroes were arrested and turned over to the military authorities. The negroes, viz: Squash Bowles, Sandy Steplight, Tom Bryan, and Peter Brown, were tried by military commission and sentenced to two years' imprisonment, and this sentence has been mitigated by General Canby to two months' imprisonment at hard labor. In announcing the sentence in General Orders

No. 159, General Canby says: II. It appears, from the investigation of the foregoing case, that on the afternoon of Saturday, November 2, a dispute occurred between two per-November 2, a dispute occurred between two per-sons, not parties to this trial, and that the inter-ference of a third person resulted in a breach of the peace, the merits of which disturbance have not been investigated. The cause of the negro was espoused by some of his friends, who, to the number of eight or ten, went to the house of Hart-man, and demanded satisfaction for the alleged assault. After some angry discussion the party left and applied to a neighboring magistrate to obtain a warrant for the arrest of Hartman. This, left and applied to a heighboring magistrate to obtain a warrant for the arrest of Hartman. This, for some reason which does not appear, was re-fused, and the party then retired and aunounced their determination to take Hartman to Charles-ton and turn him over to the military authorities. The prisoners allege, in substance, that I volunteered to come with them; that there was o arrest and no violence; but the evidence is clear that the volunteering was under the constraint of threats that force would be employed if ne refused. Upon reaching the city Hartman was released, and the arresting party was turned over to the military authorities, and brought to trial upon the charge of false imprisonment.

It does not appear from the evidence, that the It does not appear from the evidence, that the prisoners had any other motive in making the arrest than to procure, by proper means, the redress of a wrong that had been inflicted upon one of their companions. Failing to obtain action from the nearest civil authority, they assumed the power to arrest and bring the alleged offender before the nearest military authorities. This assumption was a legitimate deduction from the laws of the States and the practice toward the black population; but this power is subject to gross abuses, and its exercise should not be permitted except in the case of grave crimes, or when there is manifest dauger that the delay in procuring the necessary warrant will enable the criminal to escape. There was no such necessity in this case, and both the arrest and the manner in which it was made are without sufficient justification.

The Commanding General thinks this is a proper occasion to invite attention to the fact, that several of the disorders that have recently been brought to his notice have resulted from the criminal contents.

corner-stone of the new German Lutheran Church, ook place vesterday. The German Lutheran Church, at the corner o Anson and Hasel streets, was the place of meeting for the different societies and organizations which were to march in procession to the spot where the corner stone was to be laid. The sun was shining with almost intolerable brightness, and there was not a single cloud to dim the splendor of the skies. In the interior of the church there were assembled at about midday the children of the St. Matthew's Sabbath School. As they arrived they were divided into classes, under the direction of the Principal, Mr. A. J. Hoffman. About three hundred and fifty of the Sabbath school children were pres-

Post Band.
German Fire Company.
Sunday School St. Matthew's Church.
Turn-Verein.
Rifle Club. Bruderliche Bund. Sængerbund.
German Artillery Relief Association.
German Volunteer Relief Association.
Schiller Lodge, I. O. O. F.
La Candeur Lodge, A. F. M.
Walhalla Lodge, A. F. M.
German Friendly Society. German Friendly Society.

German Fusilier Society. Freundschaftsbund. Congregation St. Matthew's Church.
Military and Civil Officers and Clergy.
Vestry St. Matthew's Church.
Building Committee.
Lutheran Ministry.

This order is altogether different from that already published, some necessary changes having been made by the indetatigable marshals.

The line of the procession was through Hasel to King, and along that street to their destination; and it may be noticed here that the procession met punctually, moved off punctually, and arrived upon the ground at exactly the time which had been previously laid down. Along the route there was great and evident interest. The steps of the postoffice, the steps of Trinity Church, the doors of the stores, and indeed all available spots, were occupied by eager spectators. Those who were deprived of the gratification of participating were determined to show that their hearts were in the good and holy work.

The site of the new church was of course the great centre of interest, and the greater part of those who did not walk in the procession had evidently made up their minds to have a full view of the proceedings on the spot where the stone was to be laid.

In the middle of the lot, which was enclosed on the King-street side by a wooden fence, was a deep hole where a foundation had once stood. Behind this was an clevated platform for the clergy and officials. This platform was tastefully decorated with pine bushes. In the northeast corner of the lot was a brick column with a hollow centre, and by this stood the corner-stone itself. At the back of the lot were piles of old brick, which will be made use of in the erection of the new build-

As the band, at the head of the procession reached the gates of the lot it halted, and continued to play stirring music until every person had entered. The fire company lined the path towards the gate for some distance, and through the double line formed by its members passed the rest of the procession. First came the Sabbath school children who filed to the right and took a position near the corner-stone. There was then a pause, and in a minute or two there entered the venerable Dr. Bachman in his ministerial robes, supported on the right and left by the Revs. L. Muller and W. S. Bowman. By them Dr. Bachman was escorted to the speaker's stand already mentioned.

The rest of the procession had now arrived, and every inch of available room was occupied. Walls, fences, mounds, piazzas, which commanded any kind of view of the scene, were seized upon by the eager spectators. The windows of the Boylston House, the windows and parapets of the Citadel, tree boughs and chimney pots, were darkened by those who saw from a distance, and the wall in the rear, which separates the church enclosure from the Orphan House, was dotted with excited youngsters who saw nothing and were delighted accord-

After the reading of the Apostles' Creed, Rev. Dr. Bachman arose, his white hairs gleaming like silver in the sun, and proceeded to deliver the following eloquent and appropriate address:

THE ADDRESS OF DR. BACHMAN.

My Christian Friences:

On this very interesting and solemn occasion On this very interesting and solemn coasion, my Christian friends, we meet to rejoice together that God in his mercy is still present with his children. We yesterday commemorated the Redeemer's birth-day in the last week of the dying year, and we come to-day to lay the foundation of a temple reared in his honor and service, and to be dedicated to his name.

Three hundred and lifty years have bassed away Three hundred and fifty years have passed away

Three hundred and fifty years have passed away since the great events occurred that proclaimed the doctrines of Protestantism and of the Bible, to be the truths of God. Three and a half centuries have elapsed since the great Luther gave to the world those Theseses which have since formed the creed of all Protestant nations, and which have carried the light of teligion and an open Bible throughout a large portion of the earth.

It is during my own ministerial labors in Charleston that I have been permitted to witness the spread of our sentiments in our City and State. A small dilapidated ouilding, which has now disappeared, contained all that could be collected, both of German and English, of those who had embraced the faith of Luther. The English language had just been introduced into the services of the church, and no doubt the German was still regarded as the language most needed in the Lutheran Church of America. Time has passed away, and generation after generation has come and gone. He who ministered at that altar in his youth, comes now with tottering steps, in the days of his old age, to testify to you and to the world his faith in those doctrines which he proclaimed in this city fifty-three years ago—sentiments which have encouraged and supported him theough his long and weary pilgrimage, and which ments which have encouraged and supported him through his long and weary pilgrimage, and which cheet him now, when the tabors or his life are duct of white men to the blacks, and the indifference with which well founded complaints of the latter have been treated by local magistrates. This course is not an impartial administration of justice, nor is it well calculated to preserve the peace of the community.

To this last paragraph particular attention is called. No such cases have come to our knowledge, and we are satisfied that the opinions of the vast majority of the people of this State are altogether opposed to any injustice towards any race or class.

Another English Luther an Church is called for each citizen will be doing no more than his duty on Ch rierion N ck, which it is hoped will soon be on Ch rierion N ck, which it is hoped will soon be built. Who that is interested in the success of the doctrine of the Reformation will not rejoice with us that God has so signally sauctioned and biessed those efforts, which have been made to plant the seeds of divine truth into a soil so congenial, and which has yielded such abundant fruits to the honor and glory of God.

Let the aged man who now addresses you, advise his German friends, in erecting this temple to the worship of God, to be actuated by the same spirit that caused Luther and the early Reformers to go forward with united zeal and perseverance in carrying on this great work of Protestant Christianity. Do not allow difficulties to discourage you. Let there be no strife between you, for ye are brethren. Remember that you are engaged in a work that will be a blessing to your children and descendants to the latest posterity; let us show that we are not ashamed of the language and literature, the morals and religion of our German forefathers. Germany has given a tone to the philosophy, literature and science of the world. Luther's translation of the Bible is a standard work, not only in the purity of the language, but has accompanied the German emigrant from his Luther's translation of the Bible is a standard work, not only in the purity of the language, but has accompanied the German emigrant from his fatherland to every portion of the globe. Go on, then, my German brethren, and in the fear and love of God erect to His name your holy temple, which will be an honor to your zeal and devotion in the cause of our beloved church.

Here, in after ages, when these hoary heads shall lie low in the dust, will the authems of praise ascend from human voices to the courts of the living God; here will hosts of children, now unborn, be offered up at the font of baptism; here will the young crowd to the alar and be dedicated by confirmation to the Saviour of sinners. At this moment the strains of music were heard, and the other societies which music were heard and the other societies which were heard and the other societies which were he

And now I pray that God may bless all your praiseworthy efforts in this holy cause; that your beloved pastor may be spared to see the completion of the work in which he is so deeply interested; that he may dedicate this holy temple to the service of the Triune God; that he may witness the influence of God's Holy Spirit in the conversion of thousands to the Redeemer; and that when all our troubles shall be ended, and our sun of life be gone down, we may all meet in that happier world where war and despotism, and oppression, and sin and sorrow shall be unknown, and we shall enjoy immortal and blissful happiness throughout the ages of eternity. Amen! At the close of the address, the ceremony hollow space, and in it stood the stone which is to form the northeastern angle of the new church. Around the stone were grouped the Masonic fraternity and the Odd Fellows. The Rev. Mr. Muller, who had left the speaker's stand, now took up a position on the brick work over the cavity where the stone was to be laid, and delivered the following introductory address: Beloved in the Lord!

It is meet and consistent and in the spirit of the Bock of Books that we, in all our actions, look up to Almighty God, the Father of Light, from whom do come all good and perfect gifts, and pray Him that He will lead us with His spirit and further our work with His gracious help. Let us, therefore, now, in humility and devotion, pray to Him for assistance, protection and blessing while we are assembled here, to begin the building of a house which shall be dedicated to His honor and service, and in which His Holy Name will be adored, His word preached, and His sacraments administered through the ministers ordained by Him.

Mr. Muller then read the Lord's Prayer, which Mr. Muller then read the Lord's Prayer, which was earnestly repeated after him by those who were near enough to make their voices heard.

It was a beautiful day, and a noble work; the arrangements were in every way judicious and complete; there was no break in the course of the ceremonies; the large attendance showed the interest of the general public. The pastor and the vestry are congratulated upon their successful first step, and it is hoped that, before many months have passed, we may chronicle the opening of that sacred building which is to be known as St. Matthew's Lutheran Church.

THE GERMAN SUNDAY SCHOOL CHRISTMAS FESTI-VAL came off last night with great eclat. The hall of the Bruderliche Bund was crowded to its utmost capacity at an early hour in the evening. There were over three hundred and fifty children present, keeping up an active chatter before the exer cises commenced. As these chirpings were under the shadowof the illuminated tree, they may fairly be considered Christmas carols. The children were crowded closely together, and did not appear near so many as we know they were, but when they commenced singing, they soon convinced even the most skeptical of their strength of number and of lung.

wenty-eight classes. The school numbers from three hundred and fifty to three hundred and seventy-five children. Average attendance three hundred.

The boys were ranged to the right of the stage n the auditorum, and the girls to the lett, the Christmas tree in the centre. Rehind the tree on the stage were seated the larger girls of the school, who took part in the exercises, reading, singing and playing on the piano, whenever it came to their turn.

The hall was tastefully decorated with flowers and evergreens, but the Christmas tree was the chief object of attraction. It was a large pine branch, as usual in such cases, profusely hung with fruit and dainties, burning tapers, and all sorts of glittering beauties. On its boughs was read the great Gospel inscription, as rendered by Luther: "Liebe, ich verkundige euch grosse Freude, denn euch ist heute der Heuand geboren." ["Beloved, I announce to you good tidings of great joy, for to you this day is a Saviour born."] The exercises were very interesting, the more so because they were in a large measure impromptu, the celebration having only been arranged a few days ago. They consisted of singing, reading, declamation, and music on the piano. The first part of the programme was followed by a recess of a few minutes, during which time the children were treated to refreshments, which they enjoyed no less than the feast of reason which preceded and followed. As a curious feature we may observe that of the wo score of httle performers who trod the mimic stage last night we did not see a single one who had a dark complexion or black hair. They were all, as Casar had so long ago depicted their ancestors, of light hair and blue eyes.

HAS RAPIDLY DISTINGUISHED HISELF FOR ITS wonderful restorative and curative qualities. Under its stimulative inducate, and by its penetrative agency, this health invigorating cordial excites a general beneficial reaction, and disperses the impermeable obstructions which prevent access to other remedies. While gradually reducing the accompanying constriction which attends the malady, it reproduces the essential warmth and elastic vigor of the respiratory vessels, which by this remedial combination, promotes the healing process by which relief and cure is effected.

Hemorrhages are arrested and cured, with every other concurrent disorder.

As neither narcotte nor emetic properties of any kind are employed in this Pulmonic Compound, and the most assiduous attention given to the quality and medical River for Sale or Rent.

BY LOUIS D. DeSAUSSURE. BY LOUIS D. DeSAUSSURE.

The Valuable RICE PLANTATION on New River, known as the property of Estate G. Henry Guerard, ten miles from Savannah and Bluffton, and six from Hardesville, containing 6000 acres of land, of which 450 acres are prime rice tide swamp lands, under good banks, 400 of cotton and provision land, the balance heavily timbered pine land. Ten negro houses are on the place; on the tract, two miles from the plantation, is a farm of 40 acres, with a dwelling house of four rooms, and cate-buildings and a fine orchard, which is well still das a summer residence.

This is a safe and very valuable Plantation, bod or account of the rice land and pine land. During 1886 five thousand dollars worth of timber was sold in the woods, and an unlimited supply still remains.

I have always recommended the Faber Polygrada Lead Pencils as the only pencils fitted for both ornamential and mathematical drawing; but, after a thorough trial of the American Polygrade Lead Pencils, manunactured by the American Lead Pencil Company, New York. I find them superior to any pencil in use, even to the Faber or the old English Cumberland Lead Pencil being a superior pencil for sketching, ornamental and machanical drawing, and all the ordinary uses of a lead pencil. These pencils are very finely graded and have a very Valuable Plantation in St. Andrews Parish, three miles from Charleston, with handsome Residence

For sale—

The very valuable PLANTATION in St. Andrews', suited for the raising of Sea Island Cot'on or Farming purposes, situate two and a half miles from the New Bridge Ferry, on the main road, lying on the waters of Wappoo Creek, about one hour's row from Charleston, and on the Savannah and Charleston Railroad, containing 360% acres of land, of which 125% acres are in woods, and 234% acres of cleared Cotton and Provision land, upon which there has been made 199% ibs. clean long staple cotton to the acre. From the location of this place, having three direct lines of communication with Charleston, it is most admirably suited for farming purposes. Great pains have been taken in manuring the place with stable manure from the city, and fow places in the State are in a better condition of cultivation. The facilities for manuring with marsh mud are great, the tract being indented with creeks and marshes. The tract, except 19% acres, is banked in with heavy diiches and bank. The settlement consists of a handsome House with thirteen rooms, built in modern style, two good stables for at least twenty horses, four large barns and cotton houses, gin house with tin roof, and negro houses to ac-
