-A New York letter of the 8th instant says: "Some stir was occasioned in political circles this afternoon, by a dispatch from Washington announcing as a positive fact that the Supreme Court will render a decision (in the Mississippi and Georgia test case) adverse to the constitutionality of the Military Reconstruction acts of Congress—the practical effect of which will be to leave the decision of the next Presidential election with the North. The be a caution and a warning; for, when the authority for the statement is said to be un- Supreme Court shall have declared the Redoubted. It is also said that it is doubtful whether even Chief Justice Chase will be among the dissenters."

-Mr. Gladstone's late speech on Fenianism is attracting much attention throughout Ireland. | suits for damages ?

THE DAILY NEWS. The Irish Times says the Fenians will ridicule ed university, reject as inadequate any system of land tenure he may invent, and scoff at the notion of any Church Establishment. They have not conocaled their objects. There is no mystery about their purpose. They seek for a total separation of Ireland from England, the establishment of a republic, and union with the United States. These are their objects, and against them Mr. Gladstone's proposed conessions are as oil cast upon flame.

-A suit has been commenced against Mr. Charles A. Dana, in the Supreme Court of New York, by Mr. J. B. Lamar, for the recove ry of $100,000 damages, for alleged false imprisonment by defendant's order, while acting as Assistant Secretary of War. Lamar says he was arrested in Savannah on the 27th of April, 1865, and taken to Washington, where he was confined in an ill-ventilated and vermininfected cell. After suffering three months' imprisonment, he was released on parole. Dana's counsel moving to transfer the action to a United States Court, plaintiff's counsel opposed the motion, on the ground that the act of 1867, affirming the validity of the President's proclamations, virtually repealed the act authorizing the transfer of such cases to United States Courts. This suit is one of a series which certain parties similarly aggrieved have combined to institute against such government officials as are supposed to have imprisoned them during the war without proper authority.

The Powers of Military Convention

Held Under the Reconstruction Acts.

In Alabama, Georgia and Louisiana the nilitary conventions have played every description of prank, and have taken under their sapient consideration every social and financial question from bigamy to the stay law. But, whatever these military conventions may do, their powers under the Reconstruction acts are explicitly defined and limited. In all matters which concern the white people and the blacks of the South, they, however, do not attempt to confine themselves within the bounds of their authority, but trust to Congress to justify them in all that they perform.

The first allusion to the powers of a convention elected under authority of Congress is found in the Reconstruction act of March 2, 1867, section five of which declares that "when the people of any one of said rebel States shall have formed a constitution of government in conformity with the Constitution of the United States in all respects,' and when such constitution shall have been ratified by the qualified voters and examined and approved by Congress, and when the State Legislature shall have adopted the 14th, or Howard, constitutional amendment, said State shall be entitled to representation. In the supplementary act, passed March 23, 1867, it is provided that within sixty days from the date of the convention elections the Commanding General "shall notify the delegates to assemble in convention, at a time and place to be mentioned in the notification, and said convention, when tion and civil government according to the provisions of this act and the act to which it is supplementary." Also, that if the said constitution shall be ratified, "the President of the convention shall transmit a copy of the same, duly certified, to the President of the United States," who shall transmit rectly to the before mentioned conventions In brief, then, the conventions have only power to frame a constitution in conformity with the Constitution of the United States in all respects, or to frame a constitution and the Sunis to make up the balance, if it and civil government. This is all the power that is granted them by Congress, and, as the laws now stand, the constitutions which they may form are inoperative and of no effect until they have been ratified by the people, and examined and approved by Congress, and until the Legislatures of the States have adopted the 14th constitutional amendment and the same has become a part of the Constitution of the United States.

THE ADDRESS of the Georgia Conservative Convention describes the condition of the South at the close of the war, and the hope that then existed that at least political fraternity would be restored. It was supposed that Georgia was a State in the Union, but the the man called for, and while they went out to people consented to organize a new government as required by the President. Disappointment was the only result, and, demand after demand having been submitted to, the cup of military reconstruction was offered on pain of political death. This scheme of military reconstruction was intended to abdispatches from Alaska to December 8th, that rogate the constitution and lead to negro supremacy. Power has, so far, triumphed, and appeal is now made to the friends of constitutional government. For the sake of enfranchising the negroes Congress has put in jeopardy the liberties of thirty millions of white men. If secession was void, the Southern governments were not destroyed; and the remedy is for Congress to go back and restore the governments wrongfully displaced, and for the United States to return to the principles of the constitution. In conclusion the address appeals to the conservative men of Georgia, and the citizens of the North, to unite in an effort to restore the United States Constitution to its original supremacy. The address is signed by Hon. HERSCHEL V. JOHNSON, AB-SALOM H. CHAPPEL, Hon. B. H. HILL, WAR-REN AKIN and T. L. GUERRY.

> THE SUIT commenced against Mr. CHARLES A. Dana, for the recovery of $100,000 damages for alleged false imprisonment by defendant's order while acting as Assistant Secretary of War, is but one of a series which certain persons similarly aggrieved have combined to institute against government officials who have imprisoned them during the war without proper authority. There will be a time when no Congressional amnesty will protect those who use their power arbitrarily and illegally. This should construction acts void from the beginning, what shelter will the appointees or agents of Congress have against prosecutions and

The PRICE of the RODANA GARNO is the capleast unimportant in these days of agricultural competition and pecuniary embarrassment.

The very low price at which it can be sold piacosit within the reach of every farmer, and avoids the risk of large loss frequently incurred by failures of the crops in the purchase of high priced fertilizers.

In the preparation of lands for Wheat and other cereals this Guano possesses properties that reader it more desirable for these crops than any yet offered to the rubile.
