-In San Francisco, it is noticed, as one of the ffects of the cession of Russian America, that large quantities of choice Siberian sables have been received in that market at one-half the former price.

-Belgium furnishes the largest number of recruits for the Papal army. The only limit as to age is that they must be over fifteen years old. Three hundred a week is the average rate of recruiting. -Baker, the Englishman who killed a little girl last summer and cut her up in small pieces, was hanged the day before Christmas. He confessed the crime, and said he was crazed by liquor when he perpetrated it. -English papers record the death of Maria, Countess of Harrington. The Countess, previous to her marriage with Charles, fourth Earl of Harrington, in April, 1831, was one of the most popular actresses on the stage. -Maine was once a great ship building

State, but the Portland newspapers say that the aggregate tonnage of new vessels built at that port the past year is only about half as large as the year previous. -It costs fifty dollars a year to subscribe to semi-weekly, and single copies are two dollars, but as the currency is worth only about three cents in gold, the price is not exorbitant.

ation is on the incre in New York city. Within the last eighteen months over two hundred children have been initiated by one rabbi alone. The Hebrew Fuel Society intends to relieve one thousand cases of distress this winter in New York.

-The Newark sheriff gives as his reason for excluding New York reporters from the recent execution, that, on a previous occasion of that sort, when the reporters were admitted before the preparations had been made, one of the more enterprising woke the prisoner from a sound sleep and endeavored to get his confession exclusively for his paper. -The New York World continues to give statistics of the number of workmen out of employment. It recently stated that 50,000 wanted work in New York city, and 10,000 in Brooklyn, and now says that the depression in New England throws out of work at least 160,-000 people-10,000 in Maine, 20,000 in New Hampshire, 30,000 in Connecticut and Rhode Island, and 100,000 in Massachusetts.

-A large number of the leading merchants, manufacturers and others of Philadelphia have signed a memorial to Congress praying that the existing tax of two and a half cents per pound on cotton, of the crop of 1867, be repealed. They say they believe that, by the removal of this tax, it will at once bring the cotton into market, and thereby relieve not only all classes in the Southern States, but also all the merchants of all our great commercial cities.

-The Washington Star, of Monday, says: "This morning a difficulty occurred at the banking office of Mesars, Riggs & Co., between General W. R. Emory, commanding the department of Washington, and Captain Adams, author of the "Siege of Washington," which occasioned much commotion at the time. General Emory had entered the private office of the banking house, and Captain Adams followed him in, when the General asked the latter what he meant by following him to a gentleman's office to insult him. Captain Adams was understood, in reply, to have accused the General of cowardice, when the latter drew a revolver, but, friends interposing, he was prevented from using it. The affair caused considerable encitement.' -The question of the rights of American naturalized citizens when abroad is now occupying a large share of the public attention. Meetings demanding protection for adopted citizens are being held in all parts of the country. It is reported that a foreign born citizen of Cincinnati has written to Secretary Seward, stating that his name has been published in the papers of his native country as a deserter from the army, although he had left that country when he was only five years old, eighteen years ago. He inquires, in case he should make a visit to his native country, whether he would be liable to impressment into the army of that country. Mr. Seward answers that he may be subject to some detention and trouble, to which the United States Government cannot recommend him to expose himself.

-Fenian alarms continue to trouble England. Great numbers of special constables London, and a circular has been sent from the Home Department to the Mayors of about fifty towns in England and Ireland, requesting that special constables may be sworn in for the preservation of property and the suppression ernment," says the circular, "have received in- contradict the assertion of Dr. Mackey. A formation which renders it in their judgment | fifth Reconstruction act may soon provide arise during the winter." The fear of Fenian outbreaks is more widely extended at present than during any previous period of English history.

-The latest allocation of the Pope, delivered in Secret Consistory on the 20th ultimo, is of the nature of a congratulatory address .- He sees in the recent difficulties which have beset the Pontifical throne, or rather in the dispersal of those dangers, a subject for encouragement. He speaks of the valor with which the Papal authority has been defended, mentioning especially the demonstrations in the French Legislature in favor of the cause of his temporal power, which he describes as "splendid and magnificent." He mentions the demonstrations of filial affection made by the various Catholic nations, and by individuals, but returns with fervor to the subject of the French intervention. The Emperor he mentions by name, recounting how he "sent his valiant soldiers, who, as well as their distinguished commandere, with the utmost zoal and ardor, especially in the combats of Mentana and Monte Rotondo, rejoiced to come to the aid of our soldiers, to fight courageously in their ranks, and brave death for the Holy See, thus covering their name with glory." In conclusion he says he shall not neglect to supplicate all blessings upon those who are such "intrepid defenders of the church."

-It is a noteworthy fact that all the New York papers, the Radical journals included, denounce the new Reconstruction rieasure in the bitterest terms. The Herald closes a long article in the following words: "Let the people of the North reflect on the unquesti mable fact that the danger in this matter is to their own liberties, not to those of the Southern people; for the South is so beaten down now that it is out of fortune's power; there is hardly a depth of political degradation that its people have not sounded under Radical military rule, and they seem to feel that any change may possibly be for the better. The danger is to those who daily in anarchy, as we grow from bad to worse under the misgovernment of a Congress that forgets its plain duty to the nation in the pursuit of partisan schemes, the people by and by may grow to envy even those who live under the tranquility of a despotism, and may lock on with satisfaction when the commander of an army posted to keep down the Southern people (perhaps recruited to a great extent in the Southern States) shall suddenly march to Washington, seize the Capitol and disperse that chattering, jabbering, corrupt and contemptible rabble, the Congress of the United

FRIDAY MORNING, JANUARY 17, 1868.

Dr. Maskey's Address.

The address of Dr. A. G. MACKEY, on taking his seat as President of the Conven- infraction of the law: We take a different tion, opens with the remark that that body differed from all previous State Conventions in South Carolina-irst, because in the election of its members the ballotbox was made accessible to every man not disqualified by legal or political crime; and secondly, because the fundamental law, as framed by previous conventions, at once became a finality; whereas the action of terday. Of course we have no positive inthe present convention is to be reviewed and ratified by the people.

It is a little singular that Dr. MACKEY, in selecting points of contrast, should have chosen but two, and those rather imaginary than real. What are the facts of the case? We shall not now dispute the constitutionality of the Reconstruction acts, ones wanted for sardine boxes, etc. He may the Monteur, the official journal of Hayti, a for upon that point there can be no controversy between us and Dr. MACKEY. He says the convention was convened by com- had to come away without them. If so, we petent legal authority, else he would not cannot wonder that the grand jury should have been there. We will concede this for the sake of argument, though we fail to see the cogency with which he seems to think the conclusion follows the premiss.

When the first Reconstruction act was passed, calculations were made to ascertain how many persons would probably be disfranchised under its provisions. The estimate varied from twenty thousand to thirty thousand in all, in the ten unreconstructed States. Under the ruling of the Attorney-General, the number would perhaps not have been as large. But with every supplementary act the purpose of Congress became more and more evident, viz: to enfranchise the negro and disfranchise the Southern white. Every conceivable difficulty was thrown into the way of the white man before he could register, and every possible facility afforded the negro. The latter could not only register with ease, but he had every encouragement to register as often as he liked; the chances of his detection being very few. So again at the time of the election. The white population saw from the beginning that negro supremacy, and not reconstruction, was the object of the legislation of Congress, and they kept away from the polls. Had Dr. MACKEY, therefore, said that in the election to this convention the ballot was made accessible to every negro and inaccessible to almost every white man, his statement would have been much more correct. Dr. MACKEY says, secondly, that the action of the previous conventions in the State were not submitted to the people for ratification, whereas in the present case the people will have this privilege. In answer to this we might say, Dr. MACKEY to the contrary notwithstanding, that heretofore the members of a convention were, in every proper sense of the word, the representatives of the people, and enjoyed the full confidence of their constituents: therefore, to all intents and purposes, they represented the sovereignty of the State; and it mattered little whether or not their action was again brought before the people for ratification. The present convention does not, in any sense, represent the people of South Carolina, and it is eminently proper, therefore, that their action should be subjected to a close scrutiny and revision, before it is made the organic law of the State. But will the constitution framed by this convention be submitted to the people for ratification? We think it more than doubtful. Dr. MACKEY bases his assertion upon the authority of the first Reconstruction act have been sworn in for public protection in of Congress. Already we have four of these acts, and Mr. THADDEUS STEVENS voted against the fourth because "it does not go far enough." His views on this subject. and those of his wing of the Radical party, of riotons proceedings. "Her Majesty's Gov. have been explicitly stated, and directly

THE DAILY NEWS. desirable that the local authorities should be that the constitutions framed by the convenprepared to meet any disturbances that may tions shall be adopted by Congress, without any ratification by the people. The exigencies of the case, it is urged, call for this modification of the original act. The Southern States must be represented in the approaching Republican National Convention, otherwise the Radicals will fail to secure the nomination of their candidate. and as there is not time to carry out the original programme of reconstruction, the Southern States must be smuggled into the Union by some hocus pocus, whether with or without constitutions matters little, provided they are there to vote for the Simon Pure Radical nominee.

If Dr. MACKEY wished to contrast former conventions and the one over which he presides, he might have said: "Heretofore a convention represented the virtue, the wisdom, the intelligence, the wealth of the State"-in short, all that confers greatness, honor and lustre upon a commonwealth; whereas the present convention represents none of these. Hitherto we had lawvers. judges, statesmen, scholars and planters to make the organic laws of the State. The people in those days considered that these several callings were a good preparation tor a proper discharge of the solemn duties to which these gentlemen had been called. The delegates were men of education and character, who enjoyed the respect and the confidence of their constituents. We will not say that barbers, butchers, tailors, jailors, waiters, shoe-blacks and chimney sweeps, are not respectable. Far from it. We deem all labor honorable; but we believe that these last named callings are not those from which a people usually select the men to frame their constitutions.

The Grand Jury and the Stamp Cases.

The grand jury at the present term of the United States District Court, have had a number of cases of violation of the Intermal Revenue laws presented to them, and have brought in some twenty "true bills" thus far. Yesterday another batch of the same sort was submitted to them, upon which the grand jury found "no bill." Thereupon, as will be seen in the report of the proceedings of the court in our local columns, the District Attorney threatened to challenge the grand jury before submitting any further cases to them, and object to all such of their number as may not have registered under the Reconstruction acts. It is very clear that the District Attorney, by this course, insinuates that the grand jury have perjured themselves in order to shield their fellow-citizens from the consequences of an view of the case. We have always been a law-abiding community, and we do not believe that there is any disposition in this city to evade the law. The grand jury, bound by their oaths to a proper discharge of their duty, may have found extenuating circumstances which led to their not finding true bills in the cases presented them yesformation on the subject; but we understand that F. A. SAWYER, Esq., Collector of Internal Revenue, was summoned before them as a witness. He may have testified to the fact that his office has sometimes for weeks been without certain denominations of stamps-say one cent stamps-the very to his office and asked for these stamps, and have refused to lend itself to a system of persecution injurious as it is cruel. The detectives were turned loose upon the community at the very time the Internal Revenue Bureau in the city was without stamps. The concurrence of the two circumstances may have been accidental, but we do not see how the grand jury can be reasonably blamed for not seeing it in that light.
