-Father Babas, a French savant, has been studying the habits of spiders, and asserts that they can fly and swim in the sir. He says they perform this feat by turning their backs to the ground and keeping their legs closely folded up on their bodies, and that in this posture they sail about with perfect ease.

-The "turning to Rome" of several Anglican sisters and clergymen in England, recently chronicled, has been followed by the protession of the Roman Catholic religion by three members of the Irish aristocracy, Lords Louth and Granard, and the Countess of Portarlington. These events have caused much comment in religious orrcles in Great Britain.

This is the age of paper. Almost everything is made of paper, from money to hats and shirt collars, and even water pipes. The latest adaptation of the article has been discovered in Maine, where a local paper advertises, for the benefit of the ladies, the productions of the "Paper Pantalette Company."

-A gossiping writer in Macmillan's Magasine tells of the demeanor of a leading English statesman recently, while being bullied by the opposition in the House of Commons. -The "White Fawn" burst brilliantly upon New York. Niblo's was densely crowded. The papers say the dance of the "Fire Flies" is a ballet of striking originality; the fairy creatures caper about with torches on their heads, and there is a march of little fishes and an adaptation of the principal effect of a London pantomime called "The House that Jack Built." An army of juvenile masons, carpenters, etc., with all the necessary tools and materials, enter and go through the mimic action of erecting the dark tower for the princess, who is condemned to be kept from the Maht of day for seventeen years. Fortune evidently will smile upon the "Fawn" as upon the "Black Crook."

THE DAILY NEWS. ty," the Richmond Whig says: "Major E. G. Wall, of Prince Edward, who experienced the rough surgery of the war, in the loss of a leg RIORDAN, DAWSON & CO., at Gaines' Mill, found himself under the necessity, a few weeks ago, of visiting Baltimore, to obtain the surgical services of Dr. N. R. Smith. As the war had deprived the major not only of a limb, but of his substance and means of living, he took with him to Baltimore little save a letter or two of introduction cases IN ADVANCE), SIX DOLLARS A YEAR; FOUR and the certificate of honorable service that his maimed person afforded. But these were enough for the warm-hearted Baltimoreans. He had no need for money. Not only were all THERE DOLLARS A YEAR; TWO DOLLARS FOR SIX his wants ministered to, but every attention suggest was bestowed, and the services of the most skilful surgeon in America were rendered gratuitously. Major Wall is now in Richmond, on his return home, not only relieved of the pain that his amputated limb had given him, but possessing other valuable mementoes of the kindness and generosity of newly made friends in Baltimore. They have large hearts and warm ones, those Baltimoreans."

The Tax on Incomes.

Every dweller in our good old city has the privilege of paying taxes to three corporations. He owes tribute to the United States, to the State of South Carolina, and lastly to the City of Charleston.

The United States tax is five per cent. or all incomes over one thousand dollarsallowing a deduction, however, for house rent.

The State has laid a tax of two and a half per cent. upon all gross incomes derived from employments, faculties and professions. The City Tax bill for 1868, printed in THE NEWS of Wednesday, levies a tax of three dollars on every hundred dollars of gross income, and all gross profits derived from the pursuit of any faculty, profession, occupation or employment, or from the exercise of any office," etc., "payable monthly." This is unquestionably a heavy tax, but not quite so onerous as some people seem to think, who urge that "three per cent, payable monthly is equal to thirty-six per cent. per annum." This is a misapprehension of the terms of the ordinance. The returns are to be made monthly, and the tax to be paid on the amount returned. Of course no one will return the same profits, salary, or income of any description, more than once; and he will thus only pay tax once-i. e., three per cent., and not thirtysix per cent. In the case of capitalists, whose chief revenue is from stocks, bonds, etc., the dividends or interest upon which is only paid once or twice a year, it would seem to us impracticable to make monthly

The State and city taxes are upon all incomes, without any minimum limit. A man with an income of one thousand dollars thus pays twenty-five dollars to the State, thirty dollars to the city, and nothing (s. c., no income tax) to the United States. If his income is two thousand dollars, he pays fity dollars to the State, sixty dollars to the city, and (if five hundred dollars is exempted for house rent, and one thousand dollars needful expenses of living) twentyfive dollars on the remaining five hundred dollars to the United States. So that one thousand dollars income pays a tax of fiftyfive dollars, and two thousand dollars pays one hundred and thirty-five dollars.

These are the direct taxes upon incomes. We need not say that every merchant, professional man, indeed every man, woman and dres child, makes additional contribution to the revenue, in the payment of licenses, in the purchase of stamps, in the additional price placed upon every article of household consumption, because of the onerous customs duties, or the complex and exorbitant Internal Revenue tax.

Wester and Vestetables.

We have from time to time taken occasion to speak of what is now often denominated the "minor industries." We have endeavored to induce our agricultural friends to plant less cotton, and devote more attention to cereals, to stock raising, and to various other pursuits, for which our soil and climate are known to be adapted. Prominent among these is the culture of fruit and vegetables. In some parts of the State, in and around Aiken particularly, this source of industry has commanded considerable attention for a number of years, and even before the war brought remunerative returns to those engaged in it. In Columbia, also, and vicinity, a few gentlemen have for years expended much time, labor and money, in intelligent experiments in vine and fruit culture. The people at large, the yeomanry of the land, have, however, not yet taken hold of the matter; and peaches and grapes, generally, have received but little more nurture than their less worthy compeers, the persimmon or the "bulleses."

There are fine and extensive orchards in different parts of the State, and their proprietors are entitled to the gratitude of the public; for they have demonstrated that South Carolina has a capacity for producing the fruits of almost every clime. Oranges, lemons, apples, pears, plums, almonds, grapes, cherries, nuts, strawberries, currants, watermelons, figs, apricots-in short, all the choicest fruits of the temperate zone. and many of what are usually called West India fruits, can be produced in perfection within the limits of our State. Let any one skeptical on these points visit the large and splendid orchards of Chancellor WM. D. JOHNSON, or of Major B. D. Townsend, of Bennettsville, and he will find that our assertions are borne out by facts.

From the latter gentleman we learned, some time ago, that he was making arrangements to establish a large fruit farm at Society Hill, in company with Mr. CARY (brother of General S. F. CARY, M. C., from Cincinnati), an old, experienced, and very successfal farmer and gardener, who understands the science as well as the art of horticulture and arboriculture. We sincerely hope that nothing may hinder this experiment from being fairly tried, and, moreover, that it may prove successful; for it is only by successful example that we can reasonably hope to convert our people from the old and traditional mode of planting. -Under the head of "Surgery and Generosi-

MILITARY HISTORY OF ULYSSES S. GRANT, from April, 1861, to April 18, 1865. By Adam Badeau, Colonel and Aide-de-Camp to the General-in-Chief, Brevet Brigadier-General United States Army. Volume 1. New York: D. Appleton & Co., 443 and 445 Broadway. 1868. Charleston: John Russell.

Colonel BADEAU, in preparing his military history of General GRANT, had access to the records of the United States War Department as well as to the captured military papers of the Confederate States. The official dispatches and letters of General GRANT were at Colonel BADEAU's disposal, and he had every opportunity of consulting with those who played the most conspicuous parts in the events which he has endeavored to describe. It is, therefore, surprising that the volume now before us should possess so little interest and so few attractions; and, unless it is admitted that the subject of the memoir is so dull that no recital of his public acts could awaken interest or enthusiasm, the presumption is that the omission of details of personal habits and manners, and the circumstance that the author was not an eye-witness of General GRANT's earlier successes, are the causes of its comparative failure.

The style of the book is plain and technical, without being vigorous or dramatic, and, while many of the extracts given from hitherto unpublished dispatches will be read with care, there are many others which have been published because they were written by GRANT, and not on account of their intrinsic importance. The book is illustrated with excellent maps and plans, and the print is clear and neat.

It is a pity that Colonel BADEAU could not have published his work at once in a complete form, for if the volume yet to appear is no more graphic that that which closes with the operations of the winter of 1863-64, the first literary effort of Colonel Bapeau will have brought him no honor and General GRANT no profit.

It has been used for many years in the West India Islands in the cultivation of Sugar Cane and careals with great success; was introduced for the first time to the farmers and planters of the United States in the spring of 1866, and has met with unprecedented success, as the subjoined reports and testimonials fully corroborate.

The regularity and uniformity of the fineness and condition of the various cargoes already imported by us into the United States, tested by the analysis of the most eminent Chemists of this country and Europe, is sufficient proof of its origin and a guarance of our shilly to furnish this Guano of the quality and must represented.

The PRICE of the HODUNDA GUANO is not the The PRICE of the MODUNDA GUANO is not the least unimportant in these days of agricultural competition and pecuniary embarrasment.

The very low price at which it can be sold places it within the reach of every farmer, and avoids the risk of large loss frequently incurred by failures of the crops in the purchase of high priced fertilizers.

In the preparation of lands for Wheat and other cereals this Guano possesses properties that reader it more desirable for these crops than any yet offered to the public.

Pamphlets containing the analysis and experiments made by the most prominent Chemiets of this country and in Europe, together with innumerable certificates of its entire success from farmers and planters, can be obtained at our Office, to which we invite extention.

THIS GUANO IS FROM A RECENTLY DIS-COVERED deposit on Rodunds Island, in the Carribean Sea, West Indies, latitude 16 degrees 86 minutes north, longitude 62 degrees 23 minutes

The RODUNDA GUANO is not a mineral phosphate, requiring the action of the Sulphuric Acid to render it soluble; its great power as a fertilizer is in its entire solublity, without the sid of acid. It is not a "manipulation" or Compound of rish or Fisch with Mineral Phosphates, the regularity of which is always uncertain and dependent upon, and controlled by the honesty of the manufacturer. The RODUNDA is a PURE NATURAL GUANO (that term being understood to mean the excrement of fish-est-
